DEWEY TO MEET DELEGATIONS OF STATE LEADERS

First Group from Massachusetts.

BY HAL FOUST.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Albany, N. Y., July 5.—Gov. Dewey announced this afternoon he has invited Gov. Saltonstall of Massachusetts and all Republican senatorial and congressional incumbents and candidates of the Bay State to confer with him here on Monday.

Gov. Saltonstall.

"I want to see many similar delegations from other states this summer," said Dewey. "I want to get the ideas of all Republican legislators."

This program evidently was in keeping with Dewey's policy that he is not a one man political party. It follows tentative plans for a conference of the 26 Republican governors, possibly late this month. Saltonstall, now a candidate for the senate, has been a leader among New England governors. Monday's visitors will also include Rep. Martin [Mass.], house minority leader, and Sen. Weeks [Mass.], who resigned as treasurer of the national Republican committee when he was named United States senator for the place left vacant by Sen. Lodge's entry into military service.

Will Discuss Issues.

"Does the appearance of Weeks, who is a close friend of Wendell Willkie, have any special significance," a reporter asked.

"All of us are going to discuss issues of the forthcoming campaign," Dewey replied, "and that is as far as I can answer your question."

Eugene Meyer, internationalist publisher of the Washington [D. C.] Post, earlier in the afternoon was the candidate's first out of state visitor since the nomination. The publisher dodged a question from reporters on whether he will support Dewey for election, replying that the Post will discuss the issues, but its readers in the District of Columbia are without a vote in the election.

Dewey was interviewed by a corps of newspaper men here on a broad porch of the governor's mansion while a thunder squall waved the big elms in the yard. Without committing himself, he indicated he will probably begin his discussion of campaign issues thru the press either during or soon after the Democratic national convention which opens in Chicago in two weeks.

MUNITION SHIP BLAST IN DENMARK KILLS 80; 93 ARE DEAD IN STRIKE

STOCKHOLM, Sweden, July 5 (AP).—The Free Danish news service said tonight that an estimated $25,000,000 in damage was caused yesterday when a German munitions ship blew up in the harbor of Aarhus, Denmark's second largest city.

Underground sources, the Free Danish press said, indicated at least 80 persons were killed and 300 injured by the blast which damaged at least 1,000 buildings in Aarhus and set fire to several vessels in the harbor.

The news service said Copenhagen civilians picked their way to work this morning over sidewalks torn up for barricades during the five day general strike and disturbances which forced concessions yesterday from German occupation authorities. The streets of the city were reported littered with glass from shattered windows of shops whose owners were regarded as pro-German. The death toll from the strike was placed at 93.

Report Stalin Won't Reveal Post-war Plan

Washington, D. C., July 5 [Special].—Unwillingness of Dictator Stalin to allow Russia to make preliminary commitments in writing on her post-war plans has caused a hitch in proposed exploratory conversations among the great powers on formation of a world organization to enforce the peace, it was reported here today.

As a result, conversations among representatives of the United States, Great Britain, Russia, and China, which Secretary of State Hull proposed in invitations a month ago, will be delayed at least until August, according to reports in state department circles.

The soviet government balked not only at a request that its views on the general principles of a world organization be put on paper, it was said, but also refused to participate in multilateral talks of any kind with representatives of China.

U. S. and Britain Prepared.

Diplomatic sources stated the United States and Britain favored preparation and exchange of papers embodying the views of each nation on the post-war security setup as a means of facilitating the conversations. Both countries, it was said, have been prepared for several weeks to exchange these papers.

Unless the soviet government agrees to the plan for an exchange of papers, it is considered doubtful if the papers prepared by the United States and Britain will be exchanged, it was said. Both countries wish to avoid any impression that they are reaching any agreements in advance of the official conversations, it was explained.

Both the state department and the British foreign office are understood to be disappointed at Stalin's reported refusal to enter a conference including representatives of the Chinese government. Since soviet Russia is not at war with Japan, Moscow's unwillingness to join in war conferences with China has been understood, but it was hoped the soviet government would make a distinction between conferences relating to the war and conferences relating to the organization of machinery to keep the peace after the war.

Two Conferences Likely.

Russian insistence on its policy against multilateral discussions with the Chinese will necessitate two sets of conferences, as in the Cairo and Teheran talks, state department sources indicated. In one set the United States and Britain would talk with China and in another the United States and Britain would confer with Russia.

"Experts" from the various foreign offices are expected to conduct the first phases of the conversations, it was learned. The British delegation is to be headed by Alexander Cadogan, permanent undersecretary of state for foreign affairs.

Neither the Russian nor Chinese delegations have been chosen, altho it has been considered probable that those now representing China at the monetary conference at Bretton Woods, N. H., may also represent China in the peace discussions.

Shuttle Flyer Teaches Russian Girl to Jitterbug

A UNITED STATES AIR BASE IN ENGLAND, July 5 (AP).—"My contribution to Russian-American friendship was to teach a Russian girl named Nina to jitterbug," said Lt. F. C. Petrdil, 23, of Cicero, Ill., a co-pilot on the Flying Fortress Black Cat which took part in the England-Russia-Italy shuttle-bombing mission.

Port Edwards, Wis., July 5 [Special].—This paper mill town of 1,200 population was abuzz tonight over the news that one of its golden haired daughters in the women's army corps had become engaged to Col. Elliott Roosevelt, twice divorced son of the President.

Col. Elliott Roosevelt.

The girl is Capt. Ruth Briggs, now on duty in England as secretary to Lt. Gen. Walter Bedell Smith, chief of staff to Gen. Eisenhower. She is the daughter of Mrs. Franz Rosebush, wife of the personnel manager of the Nekoosa-Edwards Paper company, and is remembered here as a secretary to one of the paper mill executives before she joined the WAC in July, 1942.

Ruth was the first girl from this area to enlist. She attended the first officer candidate school for women at Fort Des Moines, Ia., and was in the first group to receive commissions. She arrived in England in November, 1942, as one of five who made up the first WAC contingent to go overseas.

Her Ship Torpedoed.

Two months later she landed in Africa, again a first, coming ashore from a British destroyer which picked her up after the ship on which she had embarked for Africa from England had been torpedoed. She was assigned to the Casablanca conference as a secretary and her first meeting with the President's son is reported to have taken place at that historic parley.

Rumors of a romance between Elliott and Capt. Briggs, which have emanated from abroad in recent weeks, were confirmed by Mrs. Rosebush this afternoon, who said in an interview with the Wisconsin Rapids Tribune that she had been aware of the romance for some time, but "we have observed Ruth's request that we say nothing of the engagement until she is willing that an announcement be made."

Elliott was the first of three of the President's children to obtain divorces and the only one to get two of them. Shortly after his father had become President he was divorced at Minden, Nev., by his first wife, the former Elizabeth Donner, on grounds of cruelty. Five days later he married the socially prominent Ruth Googins, a marriage which lasted 11 years. They had three children.

Called Him "Tyrannical."

When the former Miss Googins obtained her divorce in Fort Worth, Tex., in April, on charges of cruelty and desertion, she testified Elliott had asked her to start proceedings and had told her he no longer cared for her. She accused him of "unkind, harsh, and tyrannical treatment," and said they had been separated since Oct. 1, 1943. Last June 23 she married Lt. Col. H. T. Eidson, a former pilot for her divorced husband.

EDEN SAYS BRITAIN HOPES TO BRING U. S., DE GAULLE INTO PACT

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, July 5.—The British government is working hard to obtain an agreement between Gen. Charles de Gaulle on the one hand and the United States and Britain on the other, and is hopeful of success, Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden told the house of commons today.

It was reported here that while the Anglo-French agreement is to be political, the parallel American-French agreement would be military and signed by Gen. Eisenhower.

The advantage in such an agreement, said the Daily Telegraph diplomatic correspondent, is that it will make it unnecessary for President Roosevelt to obtain the approval of two-thirds of the American senate, which would be required if the agreement were political.

[De Gaulle expected in Washington, D. C., today. Story on page 7.]

BULLDOZER ON SAIPAN SEALS UP JAPS IN A CAVE

GARAPAN, Saipan, June 27 [Delayed]—(AP).—In a corner of a meadow on a farm near here, Japanese soldiers dug a cave some weeks ago, cleverly camouflaging it. When American marines invading the island passed right by it, the Nipponese stayed under ground. Then they fired a few bursts from their machine gun.

The marines surrounded the cave and called a few times thru an interpreter for the soldiers in the cave to surrender. They didn't.

The marines called up a bulldozer. It shoved a big pile of earth right up to the door of the cave, sealing the cavern. The total of Japanese dead on Saipan doesn't include those inside the cave. Nobody knows how many there were.

Claim Passenger Record for Trans-Atlantic Clipper

New York, July 5 (AP)—A new world record in passenger transportation in the flight of a trans-Atlantic Clipper from Africa to Natal, Brazil, with 51 passengers and 500 pounds of freight was announced today by Panamerican Airways officials. The company said the 42-ton flying boat carried six more passengers than had ever been transported in a single plane.

Fight to Save 50 Trapped by Fire in Mine

Bellaire, O., July 5 [Special].—Rescue crews worked thru the night tonight in an effort to extinguish flames in a tunnel of the Powhatan soft coal mine behind which at least 50 miners have been trapped since 1 p. m. One report said 75 persons were cut off in the mine by the fire.

Altho Adolph Pacifico, a vice president of the United Mine Workers, expressed doubt after an examination at the scene that any of the trapped men could be brought out alive, mine officials insisted at a late hour that "good progress" was being made in controling the fire and that they had confidence the men would be rescued.

State's Largest Pit.

The Powhatan mine is located about 12 miles south of here and is the largest soft coal pit in the state. The fire broke out shortly after a quantity of slate fell from the roof of a tunnel, striking a trolley wire.

Members of the mine's fire fighting crew, aided by a state mine rescue squad, were near exhaustion after their long battle with the flames. They were using both water and rock dust in their efforts to smother the blaze.

H. E. Smith, purchasing agent for the mine, said tonight communication with the trapped men had been established by rapping on a water pipe, and that the men had erected a barricade against the fire and were temporarily safe. He said the men were getting fresh air.

Phone Cables Severed.

Burning of telephone cables has severed communication between the mine officers and rescue workers, he said, but no word has been received from the fire fighters indicating that they have lost touch with the imprisoned miners.

"The fact we have not received such information leads us to assume that the trapped men are still able to communicate with the rescuers by Morse code tappings and that they are still all right," Smith said.

Smith asserted there were no more than 50 persons in the fire trap, but Henry Aby of Clarington, a member of the rescue crew, placed the number at 75.

Mine Extends Two Miles.

Rescue workers said the fire started in the main haulage route in entry No. 3 and burned 100 feet along the passage, which is about eight feet wide. This fire was extinguished but another broke out in entry No. 2, which is connected with No. 3 by an air passage, and spread to the No. 1 entry. They said the mine extends two miles back of the fire barrier.

RUSSIANS SEIZE RAIL HUBS FAR BEYOND MINSK

Germans Give Up Kowel, Poland.

LONDON, July 6 [Thursday] (AP).—Russian troops smashed closer to Wilno [Vilna] in pre-war Poland yesterday, capturing two important rail junctions on the line from Minsk, Moscow announced. At the same time Germany said Kowel, Poland, had been evacuated, indicating a new Russian offensive.

Premier Stalin announced capture of the rail center of Molodeczno, 40 miles northwest of the White Russian capital of Minsk. Later the soviet war report said the 3d White Russian army also had taken Smorgonie, 21 miles farther west on the same railroad.

Molodeczno, which Stalin called the guardian of the road to Riga, Latvian capital, fell after two days of street fighting.

Capture Finnish Center.

Other Russian troops already were much farther westward—some reports said within 30 miles of Wilno — and also were striking within a few miles of the Baltic states of Latvia and Lithuania on the north and Baranowicze in old Poland on the south central front.

The 3d army, pounding at Wilno, occupied more than 150 localities and other troops south and southwest of Minsk took 100 communities, including three railway stations.

Isolated German pockets east of Minsk were wiped out. These included remnants of the surrounded Nazi 12th and 27th army corps and 39th tank corps.

Only 10 Miles from Latvia.

The drive toward Baranowicze swept into more than 50 populated places. A heavy air attack on Baranowicze Tuesday night was reported. Rail yards at Wilno and Lida also were bombed.

The Russian advance toward the Baltic sea, spearheaded by the 1st Baltic army, earlier had pressed within 10 miles of the Latvian frontier and within 14 miles of Lithuania across the narrow neck of Wilno province.

As waves of Russian tanks, infantry and artillery pressed the advance, which has carried within 100 to 120 miles of the border of East Prussia, Germany said it had evacuated Kowel, on a main railroad 175 miles southeast of Warsaw, "to shorten the front."

Nazis "Fight Backwards."

South of Minsk, which the Russians took on Monday, Berlin said "German formations fought their way further backwards."

The Moscow radio broadcast a report from Stockholm that Adolf Hitler had decided to throw all his Nazi reserves into the gigantic struggle on the eastern front "at once to stop the soviet advance."

Finnish and German accounts said the Russians had landed on five islands in the Gulf of Finland, but that the Finns had regained two.

Berlin said German fighters shot down 26 Russian planes stabbing last night toward the Norwegian harbor of Kirkenes, above the Arctic circle.

New Landings Reported.

STOCKHOLM, Sweden, July 5 (AP).—Russian troops have begun large-scale landing operations on the northern shores of Viipuri bay in southern Finland in an apparent attempt to establish a bridgehead behind Finnish lines, the Finnish war bulletin said today.

Saved by Chute, He Pays $20 to Man Who Packed It

AN 8TH AIR FORCE BOMBER BASE, England, July 5 (AP).—From a Nazi prison camp, Fortress Navigator Lt. Richard Perle wrote his parents in Forest Hills, N. Y., to send $20 to the man who packed the parachute in which Perle bailed out over Germany on April 18. The parents mailed a check to Col. Eugene Romig of Byesville, O., commander of this base. He presented it to Sgt. Dale Schindele of Manly, Ia., the parachute rigger.

Spain Did Not Help Nazis on Robots: Eden

BY LARRY RUE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, July 5.—Moscow reports that the Spanish government helped Germany test its pilotless bombers were denied by Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden in the house of commons today. He also discounted reports that Spanish shipyards are being used for German war production and that Nazi air forces personnel have landed in Spain.

Moscow charges regarding the robots aroused considerable feeling here among members of parliament and in the press. Eden repeatedly was urged to ask the soviet government about the reports, but Eden refused to do so. He said the Spanish ambassador had informed him "on instructions from his government" that the reports are not true.

However, Eden told the M. P.'s that he understood "two nitrate factories are being constructed in Spain, for which machinery is to be delivered from Germany." He said production by the plants will be to meet Spanish requirements."

Meanwhile, on the eve of Prime Minister Churchill's eagerly awaited statement in commons on the robots, the premier was urged to relax the "secrecy about the flying bombs." The Evening Standard asked for a "more rational, modern, and open treatment of the subject."

Spain Denies It Aids Nazis.

MADRID, July 5 (AP).—An official Spanish announcement tonight denied that parts of German flying bombs were being manufactured in Spain, as it said the Russian Tass agency had reported.

Rescue Babies from Robot.

LONDON, July 5 (AP).—Dozens of babies were carried to safety tonight by nurses—some holding three or four infants—when a flying bomb struck a hospital in southern England.

All of the babies were saved. One nurse was killed. The fiery bomb's blast damaged both the hospital and an adjoining nurses' home.

Later a second hospital was damaged. A woman nurse was killed. Several patients were cut by flying glass.

Whole families were wiped out in some instances as the rocket raiders continued to smash into southern England.

Air Marshal Fights Robots.

Famous pilots, who participated in the "Battle of Britain," are taking a leading part in the fight against the flying bombs, it was disclosed. They are led by Air Marshal Roderic Hill, commanding the entire defense scheme against the robots. He took to the air himself today for the second time and joined a fighter patrol.

Fighter pilots reported they were successful in destroying the flying bombs over wide areas.

Windows Crash on Girls.

A dispatch by Wes Gallagher of the Associated Press from "southern England" said British civilians were developing "fighter pilot's neck" from constantly turning their heads to watch for the flying bombs.

He said a heavy casualty list was caused when a blast caved in plate glass windows on girl typists and clerks working in makeshift offices. Some buildings now have roof spotters who sound alarms when it looks as if a bomb is coming directly overhead, upon which the building occupants step into the corridors.

DRIVE TO RING BURNING TOWN; CUT NAZI ROADS

Bayonets Hack Path Thru Streets.

BY JOHN THOMPSON.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

U. S. ARMY FIELD HDQ. IN NORMANDY, July 5.—American troops wielding bayonets and tossing hand grenades fought into the streets of burning La Haye du Puits tonight after capturing the railroad station on the northern edge of the town.

Other forces plunged forward in an enveloping drive east and west of the Germans' Normandy defense anchor and big allied guns shelled enemy nests inside the town and the escape roads beyond it.

Main railroads and highways on the east and west were cut and with the exception of a few secondary roads the only main escape route left to the Germans is the southern outlet that leads to their next bastion at Lessay, five miles away.

German rear guards were putting up stiff resistance both inside La Haye and at Mont Castre forest three miles east.

Nazi Defense Is Stubborn.

They were stubbornly defending the town from high ground and other vantage points on its perimeter, where the Germans were using every hedgerow and thick undergrowth in an attempt to hold up the American forces. They were making liberal use of mortars, mines, and booby traps to make up for their definite inferiority in artillery.

The allied war bulletin, issued before midnight and trailing by some hours the actual events in the field, told of the capture of St. Nicholas de Pierre, three miles northwest of La Haye, and Neufmesnil, one and a half miles north of the German hinge town.

Two miles east of Mont Castre forest, the Yanks were pushing south into the swampy ground beyond St. Jores against extremely stiff opposition. They had won, lost and regained St. Jores in the preceding two days of attack and counter-attack.

[Berlin radio said United States forces had been reinforced with the 83d infantry division landing from Britain. There was no allied confirmation.]

Battle on 20 Mile Front.

Fighting raged on a 20 mile front from Carentan westward thru La Haye to the coast, as the Americans won 17 villages in the last 24 hours.

A total of 58 cities, towns and villages have been captured in France at the end of the first month of the invasion. The allied bag of prisoners totaled more than 50,000.

NAZIS RETAKE AIR FIELD

BY E. R. NODEREER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SUPREME HDQ., ALLIED EXPEDITIONARY FORCE, July 5.—Canadian troops battling fierce counter-attacks by fresh German tank forces rushed into battle yesterday gave up part of Carpiquet air field, three miles west of Caen, but kept their hold on Carpiquet village with intense machine gun and tank fire.

The Canadians retired to the hangars on the northern end of the field, and "the position is being maintained and improved," a staff officer said. The air field is south of the village and is one of the defense keys to Caen.

South of Carpiquet, British troops were engaged in a bitter struggle for high ground between Baron and Esquay, which has changed hands several times, and were fighting in the streets of Fontaine, on the Odon river four miles southwest of Caen.

British patrols occupied Fontaine Monday, and on Tuesday the British thrust reached Verson, a mile north, in their attempt to close in on Caen.

A British officer said his troops had lost "some tanks" in the seesaw struggle around Caen, and pointed out that seven German tank divisions still confronted the British and Canadians at that end of the front.

East of the Orne river, northeast of Caen, British loudspeakers broadcast messages to both Poles and Germans, warning them to surrender before it was too late, field dispatches said. "Wherever you go on the high sea you see British ships," the broadcast said. "Wherever you are looking in the skies you see allied planes."

There was no reply when the message was delivered in German, but the Nazis opened up with a vicious bombardment when it was delivered in Polish, the dispatch said.

The weather still was hampering aerial operations. The day began with a broken overcast and a ceiling of 4,000 feet, but by afternoon the ceiling was down to 2,000 feet or less and there was a drizzle over parts of the battlefront.

United States Thunderbolts dive bombed three German gun sites near Caen, and attacked railway yards in the eastern part of the city. No enemy aerial opposition was encountered.

Caen, ancient Gothic city of 61,000 in peace time, was described by one pilot as a flattened city with the exception of some houses emblazoned with Red Crosses.

OFFICIAL BULLETINS

SUPREME HDQ., ALLIED EXPEDITIONARY FORCE, July 5 (AP).—Allied war bulletin No. 60, issued tonight, said:

"Further advances have been made by allied forces in the base of the Cherbourg peninsula, altho resistance is strong and the enemy is well positioned on high ground.

"Most progress was made on the coastal sector. St. Nicolas de Pierre-Pont and Neuf Mensil have been liberated, and some units are now approaching La Haye du Puits.

"In the Caen area, the enemy is counter-attacking strongly. Our position at Carpiquet remains firm.

"During the night, coastal aircraft heavily attacked concentrations of E-boats and other vessels between Dieppe and Gravelines.

"One armed auxiliary vessel blew up, and several other craft were damaged. Bad weather again interfered with air operations this morning. Heavy bombers attacked air fields in Belgium and Holland. They were escorted by fighters which subsequently strafed a variety of ground targets, including railway yards, power stations, and air fields.

"Medium bombers escorted by fighters bombed two bridges over the River Orne, a fuel dump at Senonches, a rail junction at Laigle, and a supply depot in a wood 25 miles southwest of Dreux. Two of the medium bombers are missing.

GERMAN WAR BULLETIN.

The German Wednesday war bulletin from a Berlin broadcast as recorded by the Associated Press in New York:

"In Normandy the enemy after strong artillery preparation launched an attack with strong infantry and tank forces on both sides of the Bayeux-Caen road yesterday morning. Violent fighting developed in the course of which the enemy was repulsed everywhere suffering heavy losses. Southwest of Tilly several enemy thrusts likewise collapsed in German defense fire.

"On the western wing of the landing head heavy defense fighting was continued yesterday all day long. All attacks were frustrated with heavy casualties to the enemy. Wherever the enemy penetrated into the German lines he was thrown back at once by counter-attacks.

"Heavy bombers last night raided enemy ship concentrations off the coast of Normandy sinking one destroyer and one freighter of 5,000 tons. One cruiser was heavily damaged.

"Over the landing head and occupied western districts 62 enemy machines including 45 four-engined bombers were shot down yesterday.

"In central France a British sabotage group in the strength of 43 men who had made a parachute landing was liquidated. Another 108 armed terrorists were shot."

DOUGHBOY LEAPS INTO HEDGE FULL OF NAZIS; BAGS 17

BOLLEVILLE, France, July 5 (AP).—Nobody ever heard of Bolleville except a few Frenchmen until the doughboys moved in today on their way to La Haye du Puits. Here they swapped experiences. A lieutenant colonel turned to Pvt. George Decrocker, Kalamazoo, Mich., and said: "Decrocker, tell them about those Germans you captured."

The tall, strong jawed youth with a three days' growth of beard on his chin hitched his carbine on his shoulder and smiled.

"We were working thru the hedges yesterday and I saw two Germans walking along a hedgerow. I went over and jumped across the hedge and landed right in the middle of a bunch of Germans. They threw up their hands and I counted 17. There were a few too many for me, so I called for the boys to come over and help march 'em back."

DELUGE OF LETTERS REVEALS COL. SEITZ IN D-DAY SPEARHEAD

After more than six weeks of silence, Mrs. Helen Seitz, of 210 E. Westminster av., Lake Forest, knew yesterday that her husband, Col. J. F. R. Seitz, 36, had led a combat team that was one of the first to hit the shores of Normandy on invasion day.

Col. J. F. R. Seitz.

Nine letters, written by her husband between June 14 and 20, reached Mrs. Seitz in a batch. Col. Seitz is with the 1st division, the outfit that Mrs. Seitz' father, Col. R. W. Hardenberg, fought with in World War I. Col. Hardenberg, now 66, recently retired. In his letters, Col. Seitz, a 1929 graduate of the United States Military academy at West Point, N. Y., wrote:

"I don't know if we have met the best Jerry has or not, but we certainly have taken everything put to us so far and we have plenty more to give back. We are so intent on what we are doing that the horror of it doesn't get us. You find that you take with impassionate coldness the news that a man to whom you were talking a moment before has been blown to hell."

REPORT EX-AID OF U. S. IS FOUND SLAIN IN NORWAY

STOCKHOLM, Sweden, July 5 (AP). The Norwegian legation press section said tonight that Sigurd Roll, who served as American vice consul in Norway at the outbreak of the war, had been found dead in a wood outside Oslo.

Three men who said they were police took him from his office and shot him thru the head, the legation said. Roll had been held in a concentration camp by the Germans for a time and since his release had been active in helping obtain the release from prison of various Norwegians, it was said.

[The state department in Washington, D. C., said it had no confirmation of Roll's death. Roll was born in Chicago.]

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

VATICAN CITY, July 5.—Secretary of War Stimson today had a 30 minute audience with the pope in the latter's private library, and later visited Cardinal Luigi Maglione, papal secretary of state. Stimson's retinue also was introduced to the pope.

When Stimson arrived at St. Damasus court in the Vatican he was greeted by Commendatore Spada, the pope's sacred chamberlain of the cape and sword, and taken to the papal apartments, where he was met by Ambassador Myron Taylor, Harold Tittman, American charge d'affaires, and Msgr. William Carroll, American attache to the papal secretary of state. The party was then escorted by chair bearers to the inner apartments.

DEFEATS MAKE NO DIFFERENCE, HITLER INSISTS

Tells Industry Chiefs Nazis Will Win.

LONDON, July 5 (AP).—Adolf Hitler, addressing a meeting of German production chiefs, said, "Enormous courage and strength of nerves are necessary to stand up in these times, but we shall not capitulate," the German radio reported today.

The time and place of Hitler's remarks were not disclosed, and the broadcast report gave only excerpts. Not since Jan. 30 has Hitler addressed the German people directly, but Saturday it was announced he had spoken at the funeral of Gen. Eduard Dietl and had raised the same theme of the difficulties confronting Germany.

"Defeats Don't Count."

Today he said, "This war cannot be judged on daily events. In a battle of such historic extent a timely success or defeat does not make any difference. In this war of destiny for the German people, every one must fight and work for final victory.

"Should the German leadership, which has been lucky enough to say for four years that we have had only successes, now say that we will fail? No. We will triumph this time, and in the end will win this war."

Admits Allied Superiority.

In his meeting with Prof. Albert Speer, Nazi minister of munitions, and other production leaders, Hitler wrung consolation from the assertion that the war was being decided by technicians, engineers, and production as well as by soldiers.

He acknowledged that in this department the allies sometimes were as efficient as the Germans, and on some occasions better, but insisted, "The German inventive spirit is on its way to regain the balance again."

Speer announced armament production was increasing despite allied air attacks, but the extent of increase was not given.

Inspects Whole Front; Hails Yanks.

BY MERRILL MUELLER.

[NBC correspondent representing the combined American press.]

GEN. EISENHOWER'S ADVANCE COMMAND POST, July 5 (AP).—Gen. Eisenhower returned to his headquarters in England today, completing a five day visit to his troops on the Normandy battlefields.

Maj. Gen. Quesada.

Besides numerous important conferences with Gen. Montgomery, Lt. Gen. Bradley and other field officers, Eisenhower's tour was highlighted by two trips behind enemy lines.

The first, by road, took him past an enemy pocket of resistance during the new American drive on the western side of the Cherbourg peninsula.

The second, by air, was made in an adapted Mustang fighter plane flown by Maj. Gen. Elwood Quesada, head of the 9th air force fighter command, who led a fighter sweep behind German lines with Gen. Ike as passenger.

Studies Whole Front.

The whole purpose of the trip was to enable Eisenhower to study the front himself, starting with the British-Canadian eastern flank, and working over to the extreme western end of the American line.

He expressed admiration for the accomplishments of the American, British and Canadian divisions and air force units in the field.

Altho he bent over backward to avoid it—because he is an allied commander—he couldn't hide justifiable pride in the American divisions that won the upper Cherbourg peninsula.

Most of the time he was in exposed positions within easy reach of enemy fire. Twice German artillery barrages were laid down at points he had just left. Six times he crossed a bridge plainly marked "bridge under fire." He ignored a helmet and wore only a felt cap.

Decorates 26 Yanks.

After flying over in an unescorted transport Saturday, the general spent the rest of the day conferring with Bradley. Eisenhower refused a chateau as trespassing on private French property, and slept in an improvised tent near Bradley's headquarters. A steel folding cot was his only extravagance. On it were a G. I. bed roll and four G. I. blankets.

On Sunday Gen. Montgomery was amazed when he left church services in the field to find Eisenhower beside him. A study of the British sector followed, during which the supreme commander highly commended the British advance.

Have Cherbourg Champagne.

Because of the speed maintained by his driver, Sgt. Alex Stout of Opelousa, La., few of the troops got a good look at the supreme commander along the roads, but wherever he went their eyes and yells followed him. The general would lean out of the jeep, wave at astounded and gaping troops and they would fumble between a salute and a wave.

Eisenhower also held a short meeting with Lt. Gen. F. A. M. Browning, commander of British parachute troops. Then with Bradley bouncing around in the back seat, the jeep sped back to the American sector. For dinner Bradley opened a case of champagne captured at Fort du Roule, Cherbourg.

On Monday Eisenhower mounted a high flak tower recently captured and from it watched American fire directed on the retreating Germans.

Drenched by Rain.

The supreme commander was drenched to the skin by rain, and he and Bradley and their jeep were the muddiest objects on the road when they pulled into an unfinished rocket bomb site in the northern part of the peninsula. Eisenhower was struck by the simplicity of this particular construction, and the shortage of iron in the German war supply. They used wooden nails in building and in laying a narrow railway from which the bombs were to take off between two concrete walls.

The supreme commander went thru Fort du Roule and then toured Cherbourg, where a few French recognized him. They waved and called to him. Eisenhower said he believed the battle of Cherbourg would go down in history as one of the greatest victories in the annals of the American army.

Lets Bradley Fire Gun.

On July 4 he got a kick out of approving the shell salute fired on the enemy. He was to have fired one gun himself and, as much as he would have enjoyed it, he turned the lanyard and the pleasure over to Bradley.

Pvt. Ben Tipper, Farmington, W. Va., was relieved of his position at the gun and Bradley and Eisenhower argued over the rope. Finally, Eisenhower stepped back and held his ears. The general bounded on his heels with the explosion of the gun and he and Bradley roared with laughter like a couple of boys celebrating the Fourth with a giant firecracker.

LEGS BURNED PUSHING AUTO.

Zeno Verno, 18, of 1631 Madison st., was burned on his legs yesterday at Madison st. and Homan av. when exhaust sparks ignited his clothing as he was pushing his stalled automobile.

3 U. S. Heavy Bomber Fleets Hit Nazis in Farflung Raids

LONDON, July 5 (AP). — Three American heavy bomber fleets struck the Germans today while high pressure air support of the 100 mile invasion front in France continued.

Tonight the R. A. F. bombed targets in enemy occupied territory, the British announced.

[The German radio announced at 7:40 a. m. [12:40 a. m. Chicago time] today that allied warplanes were approaching northwestern Germany.]

One heavy bomber raid was the completion by a shuttle bomber fleet of a 7,000 mile circuit of the Britain-Russia-Italy based raider ring around the Nazis.

The shuttle planes, which on June 21 flew from Britain to Russia and then five days later went from Russia to Italy, returned today via southern France. There they bombed the big rail yards at Beziers, near Montpelier.

Toulon Hit Fifth Time.

Simultaneously heavies from Italy—Liberators of the 15th air force—pounded the big naval base at Toulon, also in southern France. That force returned to its bases in Italy.

Britain based Fortresses and Liberators followed up a big R. A. F. night raid on Pas-de-Calais and the Ruhr with a daylight blow at the Nazis' flying bomb bases and German air fields in France, Holland, and Belgium.

The heavy bombers that completed the Russian circuit today had bombed oil refineries near Berlin on the first two legs of their journey. The Germans said they had been based in Poltava and Mirgorod, in the Ukraine.

None of 314 Planes Lost.

One hundred and forty-four bombers and 70 Mustang fighters made the trip. No planes were lost.

In addition to the three shuttle legs, the bombers operated with the 15th air force out of Italy on raids July 2 against an oil refinery at Budapest and July 3 against freight yards in Romania.

Closer to the Normandy battle fronts allied war planes made repeated sweeps, and Gen. Eisenhower flew in a fighter in one mission.

FLOW OF FOOD TO BRITAIN AND RUSSIA GOES ON

Washington, D. C., July 5 (AP).—Lend-lease food flowed in a steady stream to our allies during the first five months of this year, Leo T. Crowley, foreign economic administrator, disclosed today. He said the totals of some foods sent abroad were smaller than during the corresponding months of 1943 and others were larger, but the net effect on domestic supplies changed only slightly.

Most of the lend-lease food went to the United Kingdom and Russia, the United States continuing to supply about 10 per cent of British food needs.

Crowley said that in the five months ended May 31 the United States shipped as lend-lease 9.3 per cent of our supply of meats, a slight reduction from the 1943 average. The major share of the shipments consisted of pork, about 15.6 per cent of American domestic supply being sent abroad.

The war food administration today reported that May deliveries for shipment were 857,870,924 pounds, compared with 654,301,209 pounds put down at shipside during April.

BLAST 122 JAP CIVILIANS FROM CAVE ON SAIPAN

WITH U. S. ARMY FORCES ON SAIPAN ISLAND, July 3 [Delayed] —(AP).—Two weeks of cave dwelling came to an end today for probably the last concentration of Japanese civilians in an animal-like refuge under the rocky hills of Nafutan peninsula.

They emerged slowly, their faces showing heavy strain but no emotion. There were stooped old men and bewildered children, bare breasted women, and naked infants. The final count was 122 persons.

The cave extended 150 yards under heaped lava rock in a gully between two ridges. It had two entrances, well concealed by nature. The drop into the cave was so sharp that the Japanese had to use a rope to get in or out.

BRITON WRITES OF STRANGE U. S. CITY OF CHICAGO

Says It Wants Pre-War Status Quo.

BY E. R. NODERER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, July 5.—How correspondents for British papers cover the United States thru the eyes of New York alone was emphasized once more today when C. V. R. Thompson, correspondent for the Daily Express, wrote that for the first time in two years he had visited Chicago.

It took the national Republican convention to take Thompson from his eastern seaboard contacts to "that seemingly strange, foreign, and mysterious hinterland of America known as the middle west." But in a long article on the Express editorial page he drew two conclusions:

1. At first glance you would think Chicago doesn't know there is a war on.

2. Despite outward signs to the contrary, Chicago is very deep in the war.

Sees Many Autos.

What made Thompson think—at first glance—that Chicago didn't know there was a war on was the large number of automobiles he reported finding on the streets. For 45 cents a gallon you can get all the gasoline you want, he said, and nobody in Chicago takes rationing seriously.

The attitude toward rationing, he wrote, "is in part due to the tradition born of prohibition that it is smart to put one over on the law. But it is also due to THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE. For months now it has been telling its readers that rationing, price control, and other necessary evils of war time are merely products of the New Deal burocracy, designed either to increase the permanent regimentation of the people or to cover up the excessive gifts of food to the British and the Russians."

People Not Unsympathetic.

Thompson said that thru THE TRIBUNE the people are being told constantly that American soldiers are not fighting to prevent the rule of America by a gauleiter or a Japanese war lord, but to save the British empire from extinction. As a result, he asserted, the people naturally are not unsympathetic to the cries that the boys be brought home at the earliest possible moment.

"They would not stomach a negotiated peace to hasten their return, but I am not at all sure they will stomach any post-armistice duties abroad for their men," Thompson wrote.

The British writer said it does Chicagoans good to hear that America has become so strong she "does not have to bother about allies or post-war collaboration or all those awkward and troublesome problems. That makes it look to Chicago as if it will be safe to return to the good old status quo. And that's what Chicago today wants more than anything else.

"Reflects . . . Leads."

"So I think it may be said that to some extent Col. [Robert R.] McCormick [editor and publisher of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE] reflects as well as leads," Thompson continued. "And, if for no other reason than that, he should not be taken too lightly. To believe that there is not some fairly strong support for his new packaging of an old commodity, which we might call 'iso-nationalism,' is just wishful thinking."

Thompson identified multi-millionaire Marshall Field as "just one who is fighting hard to prove to Chicago that it is getting ready for reëntry into a fool's paradise." Ranged on the side of Field's Sun, he said, are the Chicago Times, the Daily News, and most local radio commentators, who "are all fighting hard, but realize they have an uphill fight ahead."

The London journalist said Chicago's pro-Europeans are not much encouraged by polls which seem to show Chicago is "about 70 per cent in favor of post-war collaboration." "Confront Chicagoans with a decision which must be made, say, tomorrow, and you'd see how different the answer would be," he was told.

Finds Many Bars.

Every other building in Chicago must be a bar or a night club, Thompson found, and they are all "so dark that you cannot see what a small portion of whisky they give you for 70 cents; so hot that you have to drink plenty.

"In most of them, the strip teasers join you at your table in between acts—you would have to be downright violent to keep them away—and the management, entirely with itself in mind, restricts them to drink California vermouth and coca cola at 80 cents."

Reds Smash Toward East Prussia

CHICAGO'S POLES WARY OF STALIN IN 'FRIEND' ROLE

A new statement quoting Russia's Stalin as favoring a strong, independent democratic Poland, friendly to Russia, was greeted by Chicago Polish leaders yesterday as too meaningless and too generalized to be of any real value. They said a Stalin statement would carry more weight and inspire more confidence if made directly, instead of thru persons without official status.

The statement, which represented Stalin as saying that a strong and friendly Poland would be useful to Russia as a buffer against future German advances, was released Tuesday by the Rev. Stanislaus Orlemanski of Springfield, Mass., whose recent unauthorized trip to Russia evoked criticism and caused his brief ecclesiastical suspension.

Leadership Challenged.

He presented the written statement as having been given to him by Andrzej Witos, whom he identified as leader of the Polish Peasant parties, after a meeting of Witos with the Russian dictator.

Chicago Poles said that Witos was not the leader of the Polish peasants nor has he been recognized by the Polish government in exile in London. They said that in many Polish minds he has been confused with his cousin, Wincenty Witos, the great Peasant leader and twice Polish premier, who successively has been reported dead and a prisoner in occupied Poland.

Mrs. Barbara Fisher, attorney for the Polish Women's alliance, said any statement emanating from the unrecognized Witos was as open to question as any Stalin statement.

"Stalin," she said, "has made pledges and violated them. If he is so interested in a strong, democratic Poland friendly to Russia, why doesn't he declare himself to the official representatives of the Polish government in London?"

Roundabout Way Criticised.

John A. Stanek, president of the Polish alma mater, said that lofty sentiments like those now attributed to Stalin would appear more sincere if they were not transmitted in such a cumbersome, roundabout manner. John Olejniczak, president of the Polish Roman Catholic union, echoed Stanek's opinion.

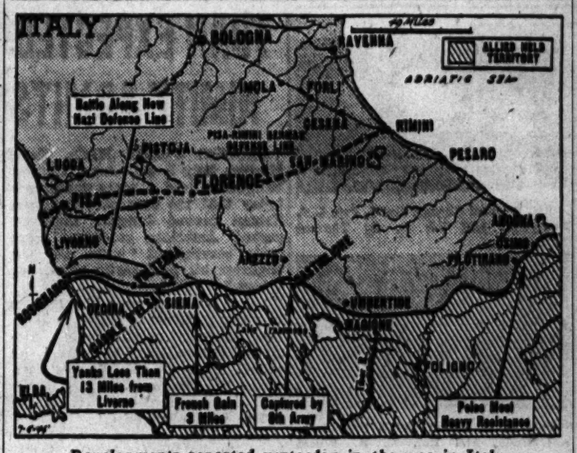
Anton Cochenek, president of the 2d district of the Polish Falcons of America, lamented that the boundary question was just as undefined now as it had ever been, that the new statement settled nothing.

A demand that "Washington and Downing st." insist that Poland's independence be respected by Russia was voiced last night by Stanley R. Pulaski, Republican nominee for Municipal judge, who addressed delegates of the united councils of the Polish Roman Catholic union at Noble and Cortez sts.

Warns on Use of Aid.

"Poland and its post-war destinies have become of importance to Americans," Pulaski said. "We are today sending war supplies to the soviet union for a specific purpose—to be used exclusively for the defeat of our common enemy. We are not supplying the soviet with American airplanes, tanks, and ammunition to enable her to dismember Poland, a charter member of the united nations, nor are we sending Russia lend-lease equipment to enable her to obliterate the peaceful neighboring republics."

Americans Advance on Livorno



Developments reported yesterday in the war in Italy.

GERMANS DIG IN, GIRD FOR BATTLE TO HOLD LIVORNO

Toughest Fight Since Anzio Expected.

ROME, July 5 (AP).—American troops have fought to within less than 13 miles of the big Italian west coast port of Livorno [Leghorn] and are engaged in the preliminaries of what may prove their hardest battle since the Anzio beachhead, allied headquarters announced today.

Front line reports said the Germans were dug in on high ground running about 35 miles inland from Castiglioncello on the coast thru Rosignano and Volterra to Casole d'Elsa, which is about 15 miles west of newly captured Siena.

Drive to Fortress Town.

Fighting was in progress along almost all of this new enemy defense line, particularly around Rosignano, which sits astride the coastal highway to Livorno. Heavy Nazi guns emplaced on heights dominating Rosignano threw a deadly fire into advancing Yank armor and infantry, which was reported to have reached the outskirts of the fortress town.

Casole d'Elsa, upon which American troops made six attacks Monday, was the scene of house to house fighting as it changed hands several times. However, the doughboys at last report had penetrated the town "in some strength."

8th Army Scores Gains.

British 8th army troops in the center yesterday occupied Castiglione and Fiorentino and drove to within less than five miles of the important Tuscan city of Arezzo, on the main road to Florence. Five towns on the lateral Arezzo-Siena highway also fell to 8th army units, which were reported "forcing the enemy relentlessly back to the Pisa-Rimini line."

French infantry moved more than three miles north of Siena despite fierce Nazi resistance and many mine fields. The Polish corps, fighting up the Adriatic coast toward the port of Ancona, met much resistance in the Osimo and Filotirano areas.

NEWEST U. S. AWARD WON ON NEW GEORGIA BY SGT. SAM RIFFICE

Sgt. Sam Riffice.

Sgt. Sam Riffice, 30, of 7647 Dobson av., who took command of his company during a fight on New Georgia island after all officers had become casualties, was awarded the combat infantry man's badge yesterday at Camp Livingston, La., where he is now assigned to the 948th quartermaster railhead company.

The badge is a new decoration awarded to infantrymen for outstanding valor in action. Sgt. Riffice, whose wife lives at 9445 Cottage Grove av., also wears the Purple Heart, three gold stars, the good conduct medal, and Southwest Pacific and American defense ribbons.

On July 17, 1943, Sgt. Riffice was wounded when a Japanese hand grenade landed in his foxhole during the battle for Munda air field. While he was being evacuated his party was ambushed, the Japanese hacking and shooting the wounded. The living were rescued the next day. Sgt.

Polish Premier Urges Friendly Ties with Russia

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, July 5.—Unchanging readiness to resume "neighborly relations" with Russia was expressed today by Polish Premier Stanislaw Mikolajazyk at a meeting in commemoration of the death of his predecessor, Gen. Wladyslaw Sikorski. He praised Sikorski as a "sincere advocate of Polish-Russian collaboration and the propagator of the idea of a federal union of European nations," and said Polish Partisans would continue to cooperate with Russian troops entering Polish territories.

YANK BAGS 28TH PLANE FOR NEW U. S. ACE RECORD

Colonel, 25, Coming Home to Marry.

A U. S. 8TH AIR FORCE BASE, England, July 5 (AP).—Lt. Col. Francis Gabreski, 25 year old Thunderbolt pilot who wanted to shoot down his 28th German plane before going home to get married, got his wish today. He knocked down a Messerschmitt 109 near Evreux, France, and became the top-scoring ace of the United States air force.

Gabreski got his 27th Nazi last week, tying Maj. Richard I. Bong of Poplar, Wis., and Maj. Robert S. Johnson of Lawton, Okla. He had been pressing ever since for the 28th, but returned disconsolately yesterday, exclaiming:

To Wed Michigan Girl.

Gabreski, an Oil City, Pa., boy, went out again today and promptly got his German. Soon he will take a 30 day leave, during which he intends to marry Kay Cochran of Grand Rapids, Mich., a girl he met in Hawaii three years ago.

In addition to the 28 German planes shot down in aerial combat, Gabreski has destroyed two on the ground for a total of 30, Capt. Don S. Gentile, 23, of Piqua, O., also is credited with 30 German planes—23 shot down and seven destroyed on the ground.

Gabreski quit a pre-medical course at the University of Notre Dame to join the air force in 1940. He got his first German plane Aug. 24, 1943, and his enthusiastic ground crew had been predicting ever since that he would break the record.

One of them explained today that Gabreski figures all the angles. He refuses to use tracer bullets because "sometimes you slip up behind a guy and miss with the first few bursts. Then those tracers give you away."

Carries Less Ammunition.

Also, he goes into combat with half the amount of ammunition normally carried, contending that a full load makes the wings too heavy to turn conveniently inside a Messerschmitt.

"There wasn't a bit of doubt in our minds," said Corp. Felix Shacki of 3731 Adams st., Gary, Ind., "after he got up to 19 or 20 that he'd break the record. He'll get 30."

Shacki got so tired painting German swastikas on the nose of Gabreski's plane that he carved a couple of wood blocks, took them to a painter, and had a batch of red and black swastikas run off on gummed paper.

"Now I just paste them on and shellac over them," he said. "It got to be a job, that painting."

How He Got No. 28.

Telling how he got his 28th plane, Gabreski said:

"We left the bombers near Evreux and somebody had seen a couple of Jerries down on the decks. We had some cloud so we went up and just waited.

"I finally got on the tail of three. One started climbing up to the left. I followed him round and round up into the clouds but he didn't lose me, and I got in behind and poured shots into him. He started burning and plowed into the ground."

Gabreski came to the European theater in October, 1942, and for a time flew with a Polish R. A. F. squadron. He holds the Polish cross of valor, the American distinguished service cross, the distinguished flying cross with seven clusters, the silver star, and the air medal.

Wedding Plans Not Set Yet.

Grand Rapids, Mich., July 5 (AP).—Kay Cochran was excited today when she learned by a telephone call from here that her fiances, Lt. Col. Francis Gabreski, had bagged his 28th enemy plane.

"There are no wedding plans yet," she said, but she indicated such plans would be discussed early on his return. The marriage probably will take place in Oil City, Pa., her future husband's home, or in Prairie du Chien, Wis., where she now lives with her aunt, Mrs. Newton D. Bush. Until May Miss Cochran and her aunt's family resided here.

British Flyer Bags 35th Plane.

LONDON, July 5 (AP).—Wing Commander J. E. [Johnny] Johnson, an Englishman who heads a Canadian Spitfire squadron, and leading allied ace in the European war zone, shot down two more German planes today to run his score to 35—all destroyed in aerial combat. His squadron downed seven Nazi planes during the day.

Russian Downs 53 Planes.

MOSCOW, July 5 (AP).—Maj. Alexander Pokryshkin, with several more than 53 German planes destroyed in air combat, is the leading ace of the Red air force, it was announced tonight.

HEINZ AWARDED LEGAL CUSTODY OF HIS SON, 4

Los Angeles, Cal., July 5 (AP).—Clifford S. Heinz Jr., packing family scion, today won legal custody of his 4 year old son, Clifford III., for which he has been contesting with his estranged wife, Elizabeth Bald Heinz.

Superior Judge Charles E. Haas held that the conduct of neither parent merited custody of the child. He ordered little Clifford placed in a nursery school for at least a year at the expense of the 24 year old father.

The parents may have the child with them on alternate week-ends. Judge Haas enjoined both from "poisoning the child's mind against the other," and admonished them to "speak lovingly of the other in the presence of the child."

During the trial Heinz charged his wife agreed to grant him the boy's custody in trade for a cocker spaniel. This she denied, and charged Heinz arranged for a man to be discovered nude in her hotel room.

Lt. Ulrich of Western Springs Nazi Prisoner

Mr. and Mrs. Alois J. Ulrich, 3838 Forest av., Western Springs, have been informed that their son, 2d Lt. Norman A. Ulrich, 25, is a prisoner of the German government. Lt. Ulrich had been reported missing while piloting a Liberator bomber over Germany May 29. The Ulrichs have three other sons in service.

SAIPAN TOUGHER THAN EXPECTED, NIMITZ ADMITS

PACIFIC FLEET HDQ., Pearl Harbor, July 5 (AP).—Adm. Chester W. Nimitz told a press conference today that the task of conquering Saipan proved tougher than expected. American casualties were quite severe, but "we're not the slightest bit pessimistic about the future," he said.

"Rest assured we will continue to apply pressure against the Japanese at every point possible—constant, unremitting pressure," he added. "We are moving westward across the Pacific as rapidly as we can. And we continue to view the future with confidence."

He said the Americans are learning valuable lessons in the battle for Saipan.

"What we learn on Saipan we will use in assaults on other Japanese position," he said.

See Hard Finish Fight.

The admiral pointed out the comparison of Saipan casualties with those in Normandy "indicates the toughness of the opposition we are meeting." He observed that Yank troops were learning for the first time "the ingenuity of defenders using caves and natural obstacles."

Nimitz said the Saipan battle was nearing a successful conclusion, but the Japs can be expected to make a last ditch stand on the island's northern end.

"I think it will be a hard fight until most of them are killed," he added. "Our troops have the situation well in hand and I think our forces will push on rapidly to the end of the island."

Casualties Will Decrease.

He expressed confidence the rate of American casualties in the remaining fighting would be much lower. Casualties announced for the first two weeks of the fighting, beginning June 14, were 1,474 killed, 7,400 wounded and 878 missing.

[American casualties for the first 11 days on the Normandy invasion, announced by Lt. Gen. Omar N. Bradley June 17, were 3,283 killed and 12,800 wounded.]

Pointing out that fleet and air forces have inflicted great damage on the Japanese with remarkably light loss, Nimitz said:

"I believe we are aproaching the peak of our efficiency in handling ships and planes. The Japs have passed their peak—certainly in air operations."

Navy Is Dominant.

The Japanese fleet and air arm remain strong enough to impose obstacles against American movements, Nimitz cautioned.

"For a long while after we get to the China coast it still will be naval warfare, and the navy will still play a dominant part," he explained.

Last Battle Begun.

ABOARD A JOINT EXPEDITIONARY FLAGSHIP, Saipan Island, July 6 [Thursday]—(AP)—[Via navy radio].—The Japanese final defense of Saipan became a frenzied block of bodies today with the enemy massing thousands in the north tip of mountain passes to stave off defeat as long as possible.

The Japanese, resigned to death, lay body to body in caves and pillboxes for a final, frantic gesture against Americans.

Advancing Americans, who had one day of swift advance in moving into position for the last battle of the north end, were slowed by thicker and thicker Jap defenses.

The army and marines, moving abreast into battle, met ever increasing numbers of the enemy and were forced to slow down as every pillbox had to be worked over with tanks and flame throwers. The same kind of work was under way all along the line thru densely wooded hills where the Japanese were using caves as pillboxes.

Civilian masses also are cramped into the mountains with the soldiers. Only a small part of 25,000 civilians on the island have been accounted for.

TELL HOW 3 U. S. PLANES SET JAP CARRIER AFIRE

Leader Attacks from Crippled Bomber.

PACIFIC FLEET HDQ., Pearl Harbor, July 5 (AP).—Destruction of a 28,000 ton Japanese aircraft carrier in the Philippines sea June 19 was achieved in a courageous attack by only three torpedo bombers, led by Lt. [j. g.] George P. Brown, 25, of Rochester, N. Y., who took his damaged plane in alone.

"Brownie" didn't come back, but his two crewmen, who parachuted from the charred plane before the run was completed, saw the carrier blazing from bow to stern.

[This action was a part of the blow dealt the Japanese fleet by United States carrier planes between Saipan and the Philippines. One Japanese carrier definitely was sunk and three others damaged. In addition, an American submarine probably sank another carrier of 28,000 tons.]

The two crewmen—Radioman Ellis C. Babcock, 21, of Buffalo, N. Y., and Gunner George H. Platz, New York City, told about the attack. With them were two pilots who went in with Brownie to make a perfect score of three hits on a Hayataka class carrier. These pilots were Lt. [j. g.] Benjamin C. Tate, 24, Pulaski, Va., and Lt. [j. g.] Warren R. Omark, 24, of Valley Stream, Long Island.

Leads 3 Planes in Dive.

Brown led three Grumman torpedo bombers from a light carrier of the Independence class. He joined with planes from a larger carrier. The Jap force, in three groups, was sighted near dark.

Brown broke away to lead his planes in an independent attack on a big carrier. He led Tate and Omark in a steep dive, making the torpedo runs without fighter cover or dive bomber support.

As the three planes neared the water, Brown dropped the first torpedo. Tate and Omark followed. The planes put three converging torpedoes into the sharply turning carrier.

"Brown went in so close his fish couldn't miss," Tate said. "He flew right over the carrier's gun galley."

Three Big Explosions.

Tate's plane was under close fire from the carrier and a battleship. He flew out between them.

Babcock and Platz had parachuted from Brown's plane at about 1,000 feet before he started the torpedo run alone. Platz saw a piece of wing, a foot and a half long and a foot wide, tearing off. In the rear gun turret, Babcock had seen flames and smoke. Before Platz jumped, he called Brown on the radio, but the radio was out.

A Japanese battleship turned directly on Platz in the water. He took off his Mae West jacket and ducked under the water to hide. He was caught by a wake and swept alongside the battlewagon.

In the darkness after the American planes left, Platz heard and saw three big explosions shake the burning carrier and three bursts of flame spread over the carrier's island section. Babcock also saw the carrier burning from more than a mile away. He felt the concussion from the explosions. Both the fire and ship disappeared about two hours after the flyers hit the water.

Planes Drop Rafts.

Platz and Babcock were sighted the next morning by planes which dropped life rafts. They were picked up by a cruiser's seaplane late in the afternoon.

Tate said Brown's plane was as badly shot up as any he ever had seen. Brown held up a bloody arm and pointed to his side to show he was badly wounded.

Seize Air Field

(Story in adjoining column.)

Advance on Noemfoor Island.

SECOND AIR FIELD ON NOEMFOOR TAKEN BY YANKS

ADVANCED ALLIED HDQ., New Guinea, July 6 [Thursday] (AP).—American infantrymen captured Kornasoren airdrome on Noemfoor island yesterday to complete two-thirds of the job assigned when Gen. MacArthur sent them ashore Sunday.

Sweeping three miles up Noemfoor's northwestern coast from Kamiri drome, which was captured two hours after the invasion, the Americans took Kornasoren Independence day.

Only one airdrome—Namber, on the southwestern end of the island—remains to be taken. It appeared that the heaviest Japanese opposition would be encountered there. Limited sniper fire was the only resistance at Kornasoren.

Work on Air Field.

Noemfoor, 50 miles off the Japanese base of Manokwari on Dutch New Guinea and about 800 miles from the Philippines, guards the entrance to Geelvink bay. Its dromes will supplement two already in use at Biak and Owi islands in the Schouten group.

Work troops of the Australian air force went ashore on Noemfoor on the heels of the assault troops and started face-lifting the bomb-battered Kamiri strip.

At Mafin bay on the Dutch New Guinea coast, 250 miles east of Noemfoor, allied troops which captured the Mafin bay airstrip June 30 advanced to within a mile of Sawar, the remaining Japanese field in that area.

Southwest Pacific bombers made a series of Independence day raids upon the Caroline Islands, north of New Guinea. Liberators dropped 22 tons of bombs at Yap and shot down one of 20 interceptors. Other B-24s bombed Woleai air field. Ngulu and Sorol Islands, near Yap, and Palau, to the southwest, also were attacked.

Chicago Heights Man Jumps.

NOEMFOOR ISLAND, Dutch New Guinea, July 3 [Delayed]—(AP).—Pvt. Richard Hart of 225 East 16th st., Chicago Heights, Ill., was one of the first paratroopers to land on this island today as reënforcements for the American troops who invaded the island yesterday.

"Damned hard, this coral," he panted.

Similar complaints were registered by other paratroopers. Lt. George Kish, Wallingford, Conn., had a different complaint. He said he was sorry he couldn't have fallen directly into combat.

Kish probably has his wish by now. The paratroopers expected to be assigned positions along the Kamiri river, and a brisk skirmish broke out there this afternoon.

Men Land in Pairs.

Transported by troop carrier planes and escorted by swarms of Lightnings and Mitchells, the Yanks came in under the leadership of one of the army's greatest paratroopers.

In pairs, like participants in a wedding procession, the transports passed the length of the runway disgorging their cargoes two by two.

The first jumpers dropped from minimum altitude, with later waves leaping in an ascending scale to form a three dimensional backdrop of floating chutes. At times there were 70 parachutes in the air simultaneously. The entire paratroop unit was aground within less than 15 minutes.

Flying Fortresses supply ships followed the transport planes to drop ammunition and equipment. By the end of half an hour the major in charge had his command post functioning under the direction of his staff members.

BRITISH AIR CHIEF'S SON KILLED.

LONDON, July 5 [AP].—Flight Lt. P. M. C. Hill, only son of Roderic Hill, chief of air defense for Great Britain, has been killed in action, it was announced today.

Capt. W. A. Agar, 25, Son of Louisville Editor, Killed

Princeton, N. J., July 5 (AP).—Mrs. Malcolm Buchanan, widow of the late vice chancellor of the New Jersey Chancery court, said today she had been notified of the death in action of Capt. William A. Agar, 25, her son-in-law and the son of Herbert S. Agar, former editor of the Louisville [Ky.] Courier-Journal, who now is in the navy. Capt. Agar was reported to have been killed June 5 in Italy, where he was with a mechanized unit. His father, now a lieutenant commander, left the Louisville newspaper two years ago to enter the navy.

REPORT FORMER CHICAGOAN SLAIN BY NORSE POLICE

Washington, D. C., July 5 [Special].—The state department had no confirmation today of a report that Sigurd Roll, former vice consul in the American legation in Oslo, has been killed by the Nazis for aiding Norwegians to escape the country.

Roll was a clerk and vice consul from 1918 to 1926, when he resigned from the service. Born in Chicago in 1893, he attended school in Chicago and in Norway and had been abroad since 1909 except for the years 1913 to 1916, when he was in Chicago.

Shot in Automobile.

STOCKHOLM, Sweden, July 5 (AP).—Reports from Norway said today that Sigurd Roll, formerly an American vice consul in Oslo, was slain by three members of the Quisling police, who called at Roll's office, took him outside town in a car, and shot him thru the head.

Quintuplet Boys Born in Turkish Village

ANKARA, Turkey, July 4 [Delayed]—(AP).—Quintuplet boys, all in good health, were born at Mardin, near the border of Turkey, Iraq, and Syria. Premier Saracoglu will order them brought to Ankara to be reared under government supervision, thus helping a "bear more children for Turkey" campaign.

ALLIED SUBS ADD CRUISER, 25 JAP SHIPS TO TOLL

U. S. Craft Sink 17 and British 9.

Washington, D. C., July 5 (AP).—Destruction of 26 Japanese vessels by allied submarines was reported today and Navy Secretary Forrestal said undersea warfare against Japan "progresses with mounting success."

The general Pacific campaign against Japanese outer defenses, Forrestal said, has gone "at a somewhat faster pace than had been hoped for."

American submersibles torpedoed 17 of the Jap craft, including a light cruiser, a destroyer, and 15 cargo and transport vessels. From the British admiralty came news of the sinking of nine more Japanese supply ships by British submarines.

Must Fight Soon.

Acceleration of the attacks on the Japanese shipping lanes may be anticipated, said Forrestal, adding that submarine crews deserve the "lion's share of the credit for knocking the props from under Japan's conquest."

Air forces, he said, also are battering the Japanese merchant fleet with increasing success, and the campaign "will be accelerated by our advance into the Marianas."

Forrestal said "logistically speaking, we are getting close to the place where we can force the enemy to stand up and fight." He added promptly, however, "I have no illusions but that the fighting which the enemy will do when he is cornered will be bitter and costly."

Tankers Are Vital.

Calling shipping "Japan's jugular vein," the secretary said Japan must move into the home islands between 70 and 80 million tons of water borne cargo a year—"at least one-third of Japan's wartime consumption must be supplied by overseas imports."

Tankers, Forrestal reported, are of greatest importance in the overall picture, for movement of petroleum has "posed the most difficult shipping problem for the Japs." He said 75 per cent of Japan's fuel oil and gasoline needs must be filled from the East Indies.

"So heavy and successful have been our attacks on their tankers," he said, "that the Japs apparently are moving bulk petroleum shipments in dry cargo ships."

Cites Favorable Factors.

Three factors were cited by Forrestal as means by which the Japanese have mitigated the effects of sinkings thus far:

FIRST—A pre-war accumulation of vast stockpiles, including an estimated three year reserve of gasoline.

SECOND—The steady retreat of the Japanese since mid-1942 has shortened their communications.

THIRD—Japan started the war with a merchant marine estimated at 7,000,000 tons.

"Japan probably had a surplus of shipping and, thanks to her retreat, probably maintained a slight surplus—until recently," Forrestal said. "Now we believe that the accelerated rate of sinkings has caught up with Japan's retreat."

1,020 DOZEN EGGS FOUND IN GULLY; CASE DATED 1942

A cache of 1,020 dozen eggs, abandoned in a gully off Christiana av. between 81st and 82d sts., was found last night by Chicago Lawn police who said they would investigate possibilities that the eggs were discarded by hi-jackers after they had spoiled.

Police said the cases in which the eggs were packed had been torn open and all the eggs broken. Many, they added, contained embryo chicks altho some cases were marked "firsts." Shipping markings were blotted out with black crayon except in one instance, in which the case was marked "Harlan Produce Co., Harlan, Ia. U. S. Export. Inspected Sept. 3, 1942, U. S. Army, Camp Bowie."

Harry Clemanson, superintendent of shipping for the Iowa concern, said last night that he had never been notified of any shortage in shipments to the Texas army camp, and maintained that no fertile eggs ever were shipped from Harlan. In Chicago, the public relations department for the quartermaster corps said the investigation, if any, would have to be made by the 8th service command. Meanwhile, the Chicago cartage detail joined the Chicago Lawn police in investigating the spoilage.

JAPS LOSE 6,000 MEN IN BATTLE FOR HENGYANG

U. S. Planes Fly Aid to Defenders.

CHUNGKING, China, July 5 (AP).—The Japanese attacking the Hunan province railway town of Hengyang have lost more than 6,000 men killed in 10 days of fighting, the Chinese high command said tonight, and the Chinese defenders are striking hard with air and artillery support.

P. H. Chang, a government spokesman, told a press conference that the bitterness of the fighting should dissolve "suspicions and rumors" that the Chinese were not holding up their end of the war.

An American 14th air force bulletin said the Chinese in Hengyang had received tons of ammunition dropped to them by low flying Mitchell bombers. Indicating close support of the Hengyang defenders, the bulletin reported widespread fighter and bomber sweeps over the battle areas and said heavy damage was done July 2 in a raid on Hengshan, north of Hengyang.

Take Strong Points.

The Chinese command said Chinese troops had routed the Japanese from a town 34 miles southsoutheast of Hengyang, where the invaders had cut the Hankow-Canton railway by an outflanking maneuver, and that the Chinese had taken "a large number" of enemy strong points.

There also was severe fighting in Kwangtung province to the south, where the Japanese are staging a general northward drive in their campaign to wrest all of the Canton-Hankow line from the Chinese.

In that sector, the Chinese announced recapture of Lungmoon, 70 miles northeast of Canton.

Near Union with Yanks.

The Chinese fighting along the Burma border toward a junction with Lt. Gen. Joseph W. Stilwell's American and Chinese forces in north Burma have reduced the gap between them to 26 miles, the Chinese high command announced. The mountainous terrain threatens to delay an eventual meeting.

The Chinese announced they had captured Chanhsi, 22 miles west of the Japanese base at Tengchung and 26 miles east of Stilwell's advance units at Sadon in Burma. Sadon is 31 miles east of Myitkyina, Japanese north Burma base.

Allied southeast Asia headquarters announced in Kandy, Ceylon, that a Japanese force which attempted to recapture the main Myitkyina air field had been wiped out and that British-led Gurkhas who regained Ukhrul, north of Imphal on the Indian frontier, were mopping up the remaining surrounded Japanese in the area.

Mountbatten at Front.

SOUTHEAST ASIA HDQ., Kandy, Ceylon, July 5 (AP).—Adm. Louis Mountbatten, allied commander in southeast Asia, visited the Manipur front in northeastern India recently and traveled over the newly reopened Imphal-Dimapur highway in a jeep, it was disclosed today.

HOSPITAL RITES TO HONOR HEROIC FLIGHT NURSE

Gardiner General hospital will be dedicated to the use of the United States army at 2:30 p. m. Sunday. In the ceremonies incident to the dedication, there will be unveiled a portrait of Lt. Ruth M. Gardiner, army flight nurse in whose honor the hospital was named. She was killed July 27, 1943, near Naknek, Alaska, when on a mission for the evacuation of wounded by air transport.

Lt. Ruth M. Gardiner.

Edmund Giesbert, Chicago artist, painted the portrait of the Indianapolis nurse, who was the first American flight nurse to be killed in service.

Speakers at the dedication will be Brig. Gen. Fred W. Rankin for the surgeon general and Col. Florence A. Blanchfield, superintendent of the army nurse corps. The 344th army service forces band from Fort Sheridan will play.

SEEKS CURB ON BEAVERBROOK'S RULE OF PAPERS

M. P. Assails Power of Cabinet Aid.

BY LARRY RUE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, July 5.—Lord Privy Seal Beaverbrook should not be permitted to continue to exercise control over the newspapers of which he is proprietor as long as he holds office, Richard Acland, Commonwealth party leader, told the house of commons tonight.

Acland recalled that during the Conservative administration of 1924-'29 a somewhat similar question arose in relation to the late Lord Birkenhead, who contributed articles to the press while he was a cabinet minister. An "unwritten rule" was made then, Acland said, that cabinet ministers should not contribute articles to the press. This, he pointed out, was virtually the position of a minister who is proprietor of large and influential journals, for which he can write unsigned articles and control general policy.

Some Restriction Seen.

Altho conceding that Beaverbrook, as a member of the government, probably had curtailed his work for his newspapers—the Daily Express, Sunday Express, and Evening Standard—Acland said he did exercise a "pretty active" general control of policy.

This meant, Acland said, "that a cabinet minister, who is in the fortunate position of being the proprietor of several newspapers, holds powers not available to his colleagues."

When Acland mentioned Brendan Bracken as a minister who had dissociated himself from former newspaper connections with which he previously was associated, Bracken quickly observed: "So has Beaverbrook." Acland snapped back: "I think the only answer to that is: 'Tell it to the marines.'"

Tells of Party, Probe.

Archibald Southby, Conservative, defending Beaverbrook, said Acland made his speech because the Daily Express had attacked the Commonwealth party and gone into its "inner workings."

Donald Somervell, Conservative, assured the house that Beaverbrook takes no part in the management or conduct of his newspapers.

Speaking for the government, Somervell said Acland had failed to make a case in saying that the prime minister should be precluded from asking a newspaper proprietor to assist him in the government, and consequently the government was forced to lend a deaf ear to his demand.

MISSING AIRMAN KILLED IN RAID, SAYS RED CROSS

Lt. John C. Flanyak, 21, bombardier on a Flying Fortress who was reported missing in action over France on May 27, has been killed in action, the International Red Cross learned from the German government, according to word received by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Flanyak, 1545 Barry av.

Lt. John C. Flanyak.

Lt. Flanyak's parents were told recently of his part in helping to bring a crippled Fortress, the Reluctant Dragon, back from a raid over Germany. While Lt. Flanyak acted as navigator, the pilot and turret gunner flew the plane to its base. Six of the crew had balled out and the left waist gunner had been killed.

Lt. Flanyak was graduated from Lane Technical High school in 1940 and received his commission at Deming, N. M.

Lt. Robert Kaczmarek, 23, Is Captive in Germany

Lt. Robert Kaczmarek, 8620 Kingston av., an army air force bombardier, is a prisoner of war in Germany, his mother, Mrs. William Kaczmarek, has been notified. He previously was reported missing on April 13 in a raid over Hungary. Lt. Kaczmarek, 23, has been in the army a year and a half. His brother, Lt. Russell Kaczmarek, 21, a pilot based in England, recently was promoted to first lieutenant and was awarded the air medal with oak leaf cluster.

First Table!

I have just enjoyed a rare privilege. One of my associates has a son, an officer in the Navy, and his ship was in for a few days. We went down for a visit. We were honored too, because we were asked to stay for mess. Good food these kids are getting and plenty of it. That made me very happy and you'd be happy too, to see the practical workings of a plan that says to our civilian population, "We've got to practice a mild self-denial; we've got to deny ourselves, quantitatively, some of the things that we are accustomed to, so that our fighting men, who are giving up so much more than we, to preserve our Nation, can sit at the 'first table' until our objective is won."

And then we sat down with a group of these kids and talked about what they planned to do after the victory parades are over. These are days, you know, when post-war planning tops the list of "musts." Well, we learned a lot and we gained a new respect for the soundness of these kids' thinking. They're way beyond their years—and America need feel no concern about the future.

And, then, just when it was time for us to leave, a clear-eyed, clear-skinned sailor, who hadn't said a word during our general conversation, sort of shuffled forward. Shyly, naively, he handed me a snapshot of his little daughter—a darling baby girl; and there was a huskiness in his voice when he said, "Mister, here is a picture of my post-war plan!"

I had a grand afternoon on that ship. It was so clean—and the air was fresh. Tonic!

EXPECT ARRIVAL OF DE GAULLE IN CAPITAL TODAY

Dinner for Frenchman Is Set for Tonight.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 5.—The capital had one eye out today for Marlene Dietrich and Red Skelton, and the other for Gen. Charles De Gaulle.

Gen. De Gaulle.

The movie stars were still here after taking part in the Independence day celebration, and De Gaulle, head of the French committee of liberation, was expected at any time for his conferences with President Roosevelt.

All that Washington knew about De Gaulle's impending arrival was that his airplane left Algiers today and that Henri Hoppenat, head of the French diplomatic mission here, is planning to entertain him at dinner tomorrow night.

State Department Mum.

The state department said it probably wouldn't have an announcement about Gen. De Gaulle until tomorrow. But everybody in Washington knew that Blair house, one of the official residences for distinguished foreign guests, was getting a thoro dusting.

Gen. De Gaulle, it is understood, is planning to talk with Mr. Roosevelt regarding an understanding between the French committee and the United States. The general's visit will follow completion of a tentative agreement between the committee and the British government.

It is considered unlikely that any steps will be taken toward American recognition of the French committee as the French government. Persons familiar with the situation say the chances of recognition of any French government are remote until half of France is liberated and the residents have had opportunity to choose a government.

Guest, Not a Diplomat.

Despite the drama of his expected arrival, De Gaulle will be received as a distinguished guest rather than as a diplomat. It is likely that he will be given a White House luncheon and entertained at dinner by Secretary of State Hull.

The draft agreement between Britain and the French national committee for administration of liberated areas of France is understood here to give the committee almost all the powers of a government while stopping short of legal recognition.

It was learned that the draft, needing United States adherence to become effective because operations in France are a joint project, has been received here. Because of that need, the British have not actually signed yet.

The agreement deals with the administration of areas behind military zones. Thus it would not directly affect the present situation in Normandy where French civil officers are working under the allied command.

Points in Agreement.

Main questions covered in the agreement are:

1. Civil administration, including exemptions to be given allied military forces in French courts. It is understood that there is no prohibition against Gen. Eisenhower's dealing with Frenchmen outside of De Gaulle's committee, but the confident expectation is that dealings will be with the committee.

2. Currency—the French committee is to back the currency printed and distributed in France by allied forces, which bears only "emis en France" [issued in France] without any guarantee of its face.

3. Military aid—arrangements for lend-lease to French forces in metropolitan France, now under Gen. Joseph Pierre Koenig, commander of the French forces of the interior. This presumably would be for the equipment and supply of French underground fighters.

4. Property—disposal of disputed property including that needed for military purposes and untangling of the snarls created by transfers of ownership under the Nazis.

SEDITION CASE LAWYER BARRED BY TRIAL JUDGE

Washington, D. C., July 5 (AP).—Defense Atty. James J. Laughlin today was barred from further participation in the mass sedition trial because he had sought impeachment of the trial judge, Chief Justice Eicher of the District of Columbia federal court.

James J. Laughlin.

Laughlin, who has clashed with the jurist on several occasions, promptly gave notice he will seek a review of Eicher's order in the District Court of Appeals. He filed the petition for Eicher's impeachment with the speaker of the house last Saturday.

Laughlin charged in his petition the judge was unfair and prejudiced in the trial. In an effort to prove his point, the attorney cited the judge's ruling on several thousand objections in which Eicher almost always had sided with the prosecution. Laughlin also charged Eicher had broken his own rules of the trial to conduct a hearing on the advisability of subpenaing Sen. Nye [R., N. D.], target of the New Deal purge campaign. Laughlin, in his petition, said Eicher publicly announced the hearing "due to his intense dislike" for Nye.

Denies Eicher's Power.

In response to Eicher's invitation today to show cause why he should not be dismissed from the trial, at which he twice has been fined for contempt, Laughlin replied:

"Any citizen has the right to petition for impeachment. Your honor is without power at this time to interfere."

He added, in response to a question from the court, that he had nothing further to say.

'Dismissed from Court.'

"Then you are dismissed from this court as attorney of record in this case," Eicher said, "and the order of the court is that you be denied further participation in this trial."

Laughlin, who represented two of the 29 defendants, asserted earlier in today's session Eicher had "stripped" defense attorneys of the right to represent their clients "in accordance with constitutional procedure."

Dilling Explains.

He made the statement after Eicher had questioned several defense attorneys about the formation of the so-called "Eicher contempt club." Some who have been fined for contempt have been wearing under their lapels a ribbon "E. C. C." which was described as standing for Eicher contempt club.

Albert Dilling, an attorney for his former wife, Mrs. Elizabeth Dilling, assumed responsibility for the ribbons and told the court he had not intended any contempt. Eicher said he was not disposed to make any issue of the matter and let it drop as "inconsequential."

NEW DEMANDS ON FRENCH FOR U. S. BASES RISE

Washington, D. C., July 5 [Special].—New congressional demands for United States post-war military bases in parts of the French colonial empire arose tonight on the eve of arrival here of Gen. Charles de Gaulle for conferences with President Roosevelt.

Chairman Reynolds [D., N. C.], of the senate military affairs committee, said that "in view of the fact De Gaulle wants to retain the French empire we ought to think about securing for keeps and for our own security some bases in the Caribbean, such as Martinique. In the North Atlantic the French islands of Miquelon and St. Pierre would serve as splendid bases." He suggested that "as France owes us a lot of money from the last war we might get bases in return."

Robert L. Sikes [D., Fla.], house military affairs committee member urged that De Gaulle agree to let us have Dakar, vital French base in West Africa "so we can at least do something to maintain peace." In the South Pacific, Sikes said we should also "insist" on bases.

REPORT CHILEAN ENVOY MICHELS QUITS U. S. POST

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 5.—Chile will soon have a new ambassador to the United States as a result of the departure from Washington of Ambassador Rodolfo Michels. It was predicted in the capital that Michels' successor will be Foreign Minister Joaquim Fernandez.

The Chilean embassay declined to comment on stories current in Washington that Fernandez will be the new ambassador, but news from Chile strengthened the reports.

It has been known here for months that Michels was planning to retire, and his resignation has been reported occasionally, but the embassy still denied today that he has actually resigned.

SOME OF WILLKIE PRESS LOATH TO SUPPORT DEWEY

Play a Waiting Game; Others 'Yes' and 'No.'

Among the newspapers which whooped it up for Wendell Willkie until his overwhelming primary defeats showed that Republicans would not have him as their Presidential candidate are a number who are still withholding commitments of whether they will accept Thomas E. Dewey, and some who indicate they have no intention of supporting the choice of the G.O.P. convention.

Charges previously were made that some of these publications were playing the New Deal game of supporting Willkie for the sole purpose of foisting him on Republican voters in the belief he would most easily be defeated by President Roosevelt.

Several of the former pro-Willkie papers, however, have switched their advocacy to Dewey while others have indicated they either will fall in line for him or at least will give him tacit approval while maintaining an outward non-partisan attitude.

Following are reports of these papers' present views on the matter:

Milwaukee Journal.

Milwaukee, Wis., July 5 [Special] J. D. Ferguson, president and editor of the Milwaukee Journal, which ardently supported Willkie until his Wisconsin primary defeat removed him as a Presidential possibility, said:

"We won't make up our minds until we hear what Mr. Dewey has to say. The Democratic convention has not been held yet."

The Milwaukee Journal was accused of being one of the ringleaders in this area in the New Deal game to prompt Willkie's political fortune and have him nominated to run against Roosevelt.

Baltimore Sun.

Baltimore, Md., July 5 [Special]—Hamilton Owens, editor in chief of the Baltimore Sun, said his paper would make no announcement of its position until after the Democratic convention. He added, however, that "the editors of the Sun were impressed by Gov. Dewey's acceptance address and by his candor at his press conference."

Papers in New York.

New York, July 5 [Special]—Arthur Hays Sulzberger, publisher of the New York Times, reached in Washington, D. C., would not commit himself on the Times' intentions. He said any announcement of the Times' position in the forthcoming campaign would be made in the editorial columns of his paper.

When Geoffrey Parsons, chief editorial writer of the New Herald-Tribune, was asked in the absence of Publisher Ogden Reid whether his paper would support Dewey, he replied:

"I am not entitled to speak for the Herald-Tribune but if you read the editorial pages of the Herald-Tribune you would know the answer."

The Herald-Tribune, tho calling itself a Republican newspaper, supports the Roosevelt international policies wholeheartedly. It was Willkie's principal mouthpiece and repeatedly has been called the foremost pro-British and internationalist organ in the United States. Once an influential Republican paper, it now has next to the smallest circulation in New York.

Capital Times [Madison].

Madison, Wis., July 5 [Special].—The Capital Times, one of the newspapers accused of participating in the New Deal plot to aid Willkie, has roundly criticized Dewey and termed the Republican convention a "flop."

"All during the delegate contests. . . . [Dewey] played the cagey game of not being a candidate," the Capital Times said editorially. "He provided not the slightest degree of leadership to those working in his behalf and he stayed mum on the important issues that people wanted to hear discussed. . . . The Dewey managers had done a slick pre-convention job. They had the skids all prepared for any candidate—Bricker, Stassen, MacArthur, or any other—who might try to crack the Dewey line at the convention.

Cowles in Des Moines.

Des Moines, Ia., July 5 [Special].—The Cowles family, publisher of the Des Moines Register and the Tribune and leading champions of Willkie in the middle west, have followed the pattern of Willkie in withholding announcement of whether they will support Dewey.

"Much more certainly needs to be said on this most important of all issues [international policy] by the Democratic party and nominee as well as the Republican," the Register said editorially. "For all the declarations are in generalities so far, and they are still in pretty ambigious generalities."

The Register admitted that Dewey is "on the right side" in respect to foreign policy. Executives on the paper predict the Cowleses will lean toward Dewey and friends close to the publishing family believe their papers finally will support him altho not in an out-and-out manner.

Cowles in Minneapilis.

Minneapolis, Minn., July 5 [Special].—Gideon Seymour, executive editor and editorial page director of the Minneapolis Star Journal and Tribune, both published by John Cowles, member of the Des Moines publishing family, said:

"The Minneapolis Star Journal and Tribune will support Dewey for President because the Roosevelt administration has indicated neither ability nor intent to maintain America's basic social and political philosophy in the critical years which will follow the war; because Dewey's position on foreign policy, as outlined in his New York speech in April is sound, and because of Dewey's clearcut superior administrative ability."

San Francisco Chronicle.

San Francisco, Cal., July 5 [Special].—The San Francisco Chronicle which has been rabidly internationalist in its viewpoint, said it now gives its support to Dewey, "to the ticket, and to those general principles of Republicanism expressed in the platform of the party."

Portland Oregonian.

Portland, Ore., July 5 [Special].—Palmer Hoyt, editor and publisher of the Portland Oregonian, said his paper will support the Dewey-Bricker ticket in the belief "there is urgent need for a transfusion of new and younger blood into the national administration."

Boston Herald.

Boston, Mass., July 5 [Special].—Robert Choate, publisher of the Boston Herald, said his newspaper will back Dewey and termed the Republican campaign "off to a flying start." He added that "the prospects of a Republican victory appear brighter than at any time since 1932."

"Look, Agnes, we won't be working here together always! And you know how well I like your cooking and all. Well—"

STARS AND STRIPES PUBLISHES PLATFORM APPROVED BY G. O. P.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ROME, Italy, July 5.—The text of the Republican party platform was carried today in the Mediterranean edition of Stars and Stripes, United States army newspaper. It occupied all of page 6 and most of page 7 in the special midweek eight page paper. Pictures of Gov. Dewey of New York and Gov. Bricker of Ohio were carried on page 6.

Inserted in the text was an item date lined from Washington, D. C., carrying the head, "G. O. P.'s Chant Yankee Dewey." It gave some lyrics on the Republican parody of "Yankee Doodle Dandy" and also mentioned that the major radio networks had banned "Don't Change Horses," because of its possible political implications.

In an adjoining column was a story headlined, "Kerr Raps G. O. P. Planks," and told of the Oklahoma governor in Washington remarking that the "great unsolved mystery of 1944" is what the G. O. P. platform means.

JONES ASSAILS CURB ON TEXAS ELECTOR GROUP

Says Voters May Be Deprived of Rights.

Houston, Tex., July 5 (AP).—Secretary of Commerce Jones today asserted the conditional binding of Texas Presidential electors may prevent Texas Democrats from voting for the party nominee.

Jones, in an editorial in his Houston Chronicle, criticized action of the Texas state Democratic Presidential convention in instructing its electors they were not to vote for the nominee unless the national convention restores the two-thirds rule for nomination, refuses to seat delegates from a bolting convention, and adopts a platform plank condemning the United States Supreme court's decision that Negroes may vote in Texas Democratic primaries.

His First Comment.

The editorial was Jones' first comment on the dissension in Texas Democratic ranks which saw a pro-Roosevelt group on May 23 split from the regularly constituted convention to name delegates of their own pledged to Roosevelt and electors bound for the nominee. Both delegations will seek to be seated at Chicago.

By a recent decision of the Texas Supreme court, the electors named at the regular convention will be the official party electors on the November election ballot.

Jones asserted the majority of Texas voters will in all probability want to vote for President Roosevelt or whoever the national Democratic nominee may be. He declared, "No political convention has the authority to deny a qualified voter the right to vote for any candidate he wishes to support."

Will Carry Out Orders.

In Dallas, E. B. Germany, a leader of the uninstructed anti-administration group, in an interview said "all informed people know that Texas Democratic electors are morally bound to carry out the instructions of the state Democratic party organization. My personal wish is that those people who want Roosevelt and Sidney Hillman or Roosevelt and Wallace will exercise their constitutional right and get out a group of electors favorable to their views."

Predicts "Rump" Success.

San Antonio, Tex., July 5 (AP). — Woodville Rogers, San Antonio attorney, said leaders of the Texas Democratic "rump" convention, supporters of a fourth term for Roosevelt, had been assured their delegates would be seated at the national convention in Chicago July 19. Rogers is secretary of the fourth term organization.

DEMOCRATS PICK REP. POWELL AS NEW DELEGATE

State Rep. Paul Powell of Vienna, Johnson county, will be a delegate at large to the Democratic national convention, taking the place previously assigned to Harry B. Hershey of Taylorville, it was announced yesterday by George D. Kells, state chairman. Hershey was elected a district delegate before the state convention put him on the Illinois delegation a second time thru an error. Edward M. Sneed, county commissioner and 3d ward committeeman, was made an alternate delegate at large, replacing Corporation Counsel Barnet Hodes, who also had been given two places.

NAMES OF B AND C CARD HOLDERS TO BE RELEASED

The office of price administration at Washington, D. C., last night authorized local ration boards to make public the names of persons receiving B and C cards, with the purpose for which the extra gasoline ration was granted. The ruling is effective on all B and C rations issued on or after July 1. The OPA spokesman said boards might comply with the new directive by submitting lists to newspapers or radio stations, by posting on the board premises or simply by making board records available for inspection to the extent that this does not interfere with the board's work.

"I think the American public would understand," said Dewey, "and I'll reserve my comments for if and when it happens."

Dewey said there was no special significance to Meyer's visit. The publisher stopped here en route from Saratoga to his home in Westchester county, N. Y. Meyer told reporters Dewey had not asked for any advice and had not been given any suggestions for the campaign.

Willkieite on Dewey Board.

New York, July 5 (AP).—Herbert Brownell Jr., national chairman of the Republican party, announcing an executive committee of 15 which will direct the Presidential campaign of Thomas E. Dewey, said today it would include Ralph H. Cake, national committeeman from Oregon, former campaign manager for Wendell Willkie.

J. Russel Sprague, national committeeman from New York; Mrs. Worthington Scranton of Pennsylvania; Sen. Weeks of Massachusetts; Mrs. Reeve Schley of New Jersey; Mrs. Robert F. Archibald Jr. of Colorado; Rep. Brown of Ohio; Mrs. Chris Carlson of Minnesota; Col. R. B. Creager of Texas; Harry Darby of Kansas; Mrs. W. P. Few of North Carolina; Harvey Jewett Jr. of South Dakota; Barak T. Mattingly of Missouri; Rep. Reece of Tennessee; Mrs. Jessie Williamson of California, and Cake.

Called Sign of Harmony.

"The membership of this committee," Brownell said, "reflects the unity and harmony with which the Republican party launches its campaign to elect Thomas E. Dewey as President and John W. Bricker as Vice President."

The chairman said he did not know when the executive committee's first meeting would be held, but that it would be called this summer. He described all its members as "enthusiastic for the election of our ticket."

Officers of the national Republican committee, headed by Brownell, are ex-officio members of the executive committee. They are, in addition to the chairman, Mrs. Katharine Kennedy Brown of Ohio, Mrs. Horace H. Sayre of Oklahoma, Werner Schroeder of Illinois, and Ezra R. Whitla of Idaho, vice chairmen; Harold W. Mason of Vermont, secretary; Jouett Ross Todd of Kentucky, treasurer, and Harrison Spangler of Iowa, former national chairman and now general counsel.

Willkie Declines Comment.

Brownell said a large turnover in national committee membership was reflected on the executive committee, new names being those of Mrs. Williamson, Mrs. Schley, Mrs. Few, Mrs. Archibald Darby, and Brown.

Willkie declined to comment on the inclusion of Cake on the executive committee or discuss other selections.

Brownell said his selections had been "enthusiastically approved" by Dewey and Bricker. He said he had no plans for a meeting with Willkie, the party's 1940 candidate, but "I expect to meet with all the leaders in the course of the campaign."

U. S. FINDS OWN EMPLOYES LACK STAMPS ON CARS

Agents of the internal revenue collector's office seeking autos which failed to bear federal use stamps yesterday caught in the net several federal employes whose cars were parked near the Dearborn st. entrance to the United States courthouse.

The first victim was J. H. Kramer of 1648 W. 105th pl., head of the field auditing staff of the federal milk marketing administration.

Most of the federal employes' cars parked on Dearborn st. bore signs with the words "official," or "government business." One car tagged was that of W. C. Marquardt of 8140 S. Justine st., a supervising auditor of the federal milk marketing administration. Another belonged to Deputy United States Marshal L. R. Alexander of 4101 S. State st.

Another car bore a printed sign attached to the visor on the driver's side inscribed, "official" at the top and below the words, "Government Business, United States Internal Revenue." Owner of the car, investigation disclosed, is Charles W. Lessner, rural route No. 1, Bensenville.

ANTI-NEW DEAL DEMOCRATS EYE THIRD TICKET

Plan to Name True Member of Party.

A proposal for a nominating convention to select a Democrat to run against President Roosevelt is under consideration by the anti-New Deal American Democratic National committee, it was disclosed yesterday by its executive secretary, Dr. Robert L. O'Brian.

The convention call, he said, is expected to be issued by the newly formed executive committee of five, which will meet in Chicago July 20, the second day of the Democratic national convention. New Orleans, La., is the likely meeting place because the anti-Roosevelt forces hope to find their greatest strength in the south, O'Brian said.

"We are under strong pressure to put a Presidential and a Vice Presidential candidate in the field," said Dr. O'Brian, "and I believe this will be the decision of the executive committee. Our candidates will be offered as the true Democratic party ticket, whom members of the party may support without a feeling of desertion. Our committee has held all along that it is the New Dealers who have abandoned the party of Jefferson."

The candidates picked at New Orleans, O'Brien said, are expected to be designated as Democratic in southern states whose state central committees already have taken a stand against a fourth term for President Roosevelt. These "hopeful" states, he said, include Texas, Mississippi, Alabama, South Carolina, Louisiana, whose state committee was reported to have decided Tuesday to give its delegates freedom of action at the Chicago convention, and possibly Arkansas and Tennessee, whose delegations are uninstructed.

ILLINOIS DEMOCRACY IN 1864 AND 1944.

Democrats discovered in 1861 that in the process of splitting the Union they had split their party as well. Douglas, in the final months of his life, exerted himself to reconcile his followers thruout the nation to his great rival, Lincoln. He failed in the south, but in Illinois his lieutenants, including Logan and McClernand, held the southern Democratic counties in line for the Union and raised the regiments that they led to its defense.

The result of the split in the Democratic party was that the Unionist faction drifted to the side of Lincoln, who ran as a Union, not a Republican candidate, in 1864. That left the Democratic party machinery in the hands of the radical Democrats, who made disunion their cause. It led to the armed resistance to the draft, to the conspiracy to free the Confederate prisoners held in Chicago, to Vallandigham's plottings in Canada, the Knights of the Golden Circle, and the plan for a new secession by a Northwest confederation.

The disunionists who controled the party ran McClellan against Lincoln in 1864 in an effort to sabotage the war and make peace with the Confederacy. Many of the Democrats who had been driven out of the party by its disunionist tactics remained in the Republican fold after the war, including such leaders as Logan. The result of its war time tactics was that the Democratic party was held in disrepute in the north for more than a generation, not because of the character of its members, but because the people could not forget that it was the party that had attempted to destroy the Union.

Illinois Democrats have had a chance in 1944, as they had in 1864, to declare their allegiance to the Union. The delegates to the state convention of the party were aware of the overwhelming sentiment in the nation against alienating the sovereignty of the United States thru some scheme of world government, a sentiment that is strongest in the middle west. Their resolutions committee wavered back and forth. It brought itself once to the point of declaring for the protection of American sovereignty, then dropped it for a foreign relations plank that boils down to a plea to trust Roosevelt.

The nationalists among the Democrats find themselves in the position that the Douglas Democrats occupied during the Civil war. They have no place to go within their own party. They see its machinery in the control of alien and radical forces who are bent upon destroying constitutional government and national sovereignty. It seemed for a few hours here in Chicago that they might force their state organization to stand in defense of the Union. They failed. It remains to be seen whether they will embrace Browder and Hillman, or turn, as their predecessors did 80 years ago, to fight for the preservation of the American nation and American government under the Republican banner.

SAUCE FOR THE GOOSE.

Henry Cassidy of the Associated Press, who is with the Red army in Romania, reports that the Russian occupation has resulted in a minimum of interference with the civilian population. Local officials are allowed to remain in office. Romania's anti-Semitic laws continue in force. That goes, too, for the Romanian law proscribing the Communist party.

These circumstances should not escape the attention of the left wingers in this country, who have thrown a couple of thousand fits over the failure, generally temporary, of our armies of invasion to kick Fascist job holders out of office and revoke all Fascist laws the moment the shooting stops. It would seem that some of the lightning that was hurled at Gen. Eisenhower for his handling of the North African and Italian occupations might now be directed against Marshal Stalin. If Gen. Eisenhower didn't instantly bounce every collaborationist mayor and podesta and didn't with equal promptitude declare void every collaborationist law, he erred rather less in these particulars than has his eminent Russian colleague.

The obvious defense of Marshal Stalin's course of action in Romania is that his primary job is to get on with the war and that other matters must wait at least for a time. All we are saying is that the same defense can be made for Gen. Eisenhower with only this difference: That no one can doubt Gen. Eisenhower's devotion to the institutions of freedom or his countrymen's complete disinterestedness in the domestic politics of the lands we have occupied. As much cannot be said for Marshal Stalin.

WLB FINES SOME WORKERS.

The regional war labor board has deprived 2,900 employes of the John Deere Harvester company in East Moline, Ill., of extra vacation pay because they went on strike in a dispute over the vacation pay plan. The WLB said that "this is no time to create the impression that unions violating the no-strike pledge will be rewarded for such conduct."

The war plant striker has earned all the contempt that is showered upon him and certainly any punishment that befalls him is richly deserved. But that does not give the WLB or any other New Deal agency license to set out on a course of lawless action. The board's decision says in effect that it was ready to grant the extra vacation pay to the John Deere workers, but withheld it because some of the workers went on strike. This amounts to a fine levied against 2,900 workers, not all of whom may have struck, and none of whom violated any statutes even if they did strike.

Decisions like this one ought to demonstrate to organized labor what happens when complete power over the social and economic functions of life is turned over to a centralized government. The government may claim a high degree of liberalism, but that liberalism soon changes to totalitarianism once a measure of power is gained. In a republic, citizens can be fined only in courts of law.

KEYNES VS. ALEXANDER.

The wages that our army had been paying to Italian civilian employes in southern Italy were found to be below the prevailing scale in Rome when we got there. Accordingly, Maj. Gen. Harry H. Johnson of our army, who is military governor of Rome, ordered a 15 per cent increase. The higher rate was said to approximate that paid to civilian labor by the Germans when they were in Rome. Gen. Johnson's order has now been rescinded by Gen. Harold Alexander, of the British army, the allied commander in Italy. He is said to have reduced the scale of pay to discourage inflation which is already troublesome.

At this distance we cannot venture an opinion as to which of the generals is the better economist, but here is a problem made to order for the British monetary expert, J. M. Keynes, now attending the international financial conference at Bretton Woods, N. H., and its leading spirit. He argues that a country should be free to have an unbalanced budget and an unbalanced international account. In such circumstances, the stabilization fund, to which the United States will contribute by far the largest part of the hard cash, should continue, he thinks, to give good dollars for the busted country's currency.

Evidently Gen. Alexander has not studied the Keynes doctrine or else, having studied it, has discarded it as poppycock. Gen. Alexander is willing to risk some discontent among his labor staff to prevent the greater disaster of an astronomical inflation that would disrupt what remains of Italy's economy.

It's a pity Gen. Alexander didn't call for Keynes, who could have proved to him that there was no dilemma at all; that, indeed, the first duty of Gen. Alexander as trustee of the Italian economy was to keep wages high and thus promote the blessing of full employment in Italy. Keynes could show, at any rate, that the higher wages could be paid safely as long as America was willing—and able—to take the Italian lira at no discount.

STALIN'S POLISH POLICY.

Father Orlemanski, the American priest whose visit to Marshal Stalin attracted wide attention a few weeks ago, again has come to public notice, this time by drawing attention to a document that was intrusted to him. The paper is a memorandum by M. Witos, a leader of the Polish peasant party, of a conversation in the Kremlin between Stalin and a group of Polish officers. Stalin is quoted as saying:

"We will help you to organize the Polish army and we will not hesitate to supply you with the best equipment. Our army will liberate the Polish people from Hitlerism. We will not do this for the sake of appearances or because we are brother Slavs but because sound political judgment shows that as neighbors we are necessary one to another. You cannot destroy the Germans so that they will not rise again. A few years after this war there again will be danger of invasion by them. For this reason, it is to our mutual interest to have a strong Poland, a Poland that can check Germany. . . ."

There is, of course, very little that is new in this. The same story has been told a dozen times by Russian spokesmen and by the small fraction of Poles who are friendly to bolshevism. The point to be stressed is that if this is a fair account of Stalin's post-war policy it is perfectly clear that Stalin has no faith in world police forces, world governments, and collective security in the sense in which the phrase is used by the one-worlders.

Stalin's policy is the policy of alliances and balances of power. Just as France after the last war sought to protect herself against Germany by alliances with Poland and other states bordering Germany, so Stalin today is looking forward to a Polish alliance. His profession of indifference to the form of government and the policies of the new Poland must be heavily discounted, but that can be overlooked for the moment. The more important fact for Americans is the clear indication that he will play the game of international politics after the war according to the accustomed rules.

Stalin will seek alliances against the power that he regards as the greatest threat to his country. He has made no commitments which would involve Russia in any scheme for keeping the peace of the world wherever and whenever it may be menaced. His interest is Russia's security. If anybody is to play the rôle of international Don Quixote it isn't going to be Stalin's Russia.

Editorial of the Day

A DISCRIMINATION IS REMOVED.

[St. Louis Post-Dispatch.]

North Carolina has distinguished itself by becoming the first state in the south to eliminate the differential between the salaries of Negro and white teachers in the public schools.

Several other southern states are following suit, some of them voluntarily, and some under court order. Differentials based on race were ruled unconstitutional by the United States Fourth Circuit Court of Appeals four years ago.

The action follows the excellent principle of equal pay for equal work. Of perhaps more fundamental significance will be its eventual effect upon Negro public schooling. Better salaries will attract better teachers, and enable teachers to do more toward keeping themselves well prepared for their high calling by means of continuous education. The benefit will accrue to all Negro public schooling.

FLOWERS FOR WAR LORDS.

The peregrinations, divagations, and rainbow-chasings of Vice President Wallace have come to a climax at the shrine of Genghis Khan, where with Early Mongolian piety he placed a wreath of imitation flowers upon the reliquary containing the alleged bones. The reasons for this gesture may be clear to orientalists, but our simple occidental mind is completely baffled.

• • •

This same Genghis of the 12th century was one of the greatest slaughterers in history, and his hordes from the Mongolian deserts did to the civilization of China what the Japanese have done, only more so. If commemorative observances before his theoretical coffin please the Chinese [doubtless the Vice Presidential intention], then they are, indeed, a remarkable people and their ways are past finding out.

• • •

It is entirely possible, however, that the Chinese custom of flowers for Genghis Khan is based upon the idea that evil spirits should be placated, so that they may not be tempted to rise again and devastate the good earth. If so, Henry the Dreamer participated in a mystical act of appeasement, which is not regarded as the right attitude in these liberating times.

• • •

If the tombs of oriental globe-shakers fascinate the Vice President, his next stop should be at the reputed grave of Tamerlane, which ought to be in Samarkand. This successor to Genghis built piles of skulls from central Asia to the Volga river in Europe, but didn't bother China. Then there is the last resting place of Attila the Hun, a much earlier example of the Mongolian peril. It is unfindable, but somewhere around Budapest would be the right place for casting the spells.

• • •

The secret of the amazing conquests of these Asiatic blighters was swarms of cavalry on hardy, desert ponies, armed with hard-hitting, short-horned bows. They swept over most of Asia and much of Europe, on many invasions, like epidemics of the plague.

LINCOLN AND DEWEY.

Within our streets another building stood
Who gave no pledge save for his country's good
And sought of Providence a guiding hand.
He faced a nation sundered, yet he knew
That faith is stronger than a conflict's hate,
And in sure knowledge held allegiance true
Till the peace again calmed a war-torn state.
In this gravest hour, may his mantle fall
Upon new shoulders of his party's choice;
May he who heard himself acclaimed by all
Hear, too, the whisper of a long-still voice,
And in his counsel find the strength to bear
The fearful burden he may one day share.

The Curious Isle of Sark.

Linemaster: Cast your historical eye on some queer customs and laws which have regulated the native life of the little, cliff-girdled isle of Sark, in the Channel Islands [June 28].

The only access to its picturesque interior is a 200-foot tunnel, the single harbor being dry at low tide. A barrier of precipitous granite cliffs guards the colony of 40 farms, which were forbidden by Queen Elizabeth ever to be divided or sold. Hence the name given it, "The Island of the 40."

Sark is the world's sole remaining purely feudal state, where the laws of the old Norman fiefs remain in force. The domain is—or was—ruled by Sibyl Hathaway, officially la Dame de Sark, and her American born husband, Robert Hathaway, officially the seigneur lord of the isle. French is the official language, but every one speaks English, also a patois, never written and unintelligible to outlanders.

Only the seigneur can keep pigeons, grind corn, or have a mill; no dogs allowed, no motor cars or divorces; no sea gulls killed, because in a fog their cries warn fishermen; no farms can be sold without the lord's consent; when sold, 1-13th of the price goes in the ruler's purse; tithes, called "dimes," are levied on all produce as farm rental; land bequeathed, but lacking an heir within the fifth degree of affinity, reverts to the seigneur.

BENEFITS OF TRAVEL.

Adventure? That's the life, thought I,
When young and bold. And so to die
Or do I sought strange scenes afar
(Ho, Samarkand! Yo, Zanzibar!)
To snare wild beasts, to scale tall peaks,
Hobnob with pirates, cossacks, sheiks.
But O, the long, long hours I wept
On finding one ne'er should accept
The stuff they print in books!

The Days and the Weeks.

About 20 years ago William McAndrew, then superintendent of Chicago public schools, complained about "interruptions" to regular school work. He enumerated requests by outside organizations for the schools' participations in collections, celebrations, pageants, plays, essay contests, oratorical contests, poster contests, and others, as follows:

Arbor day, Bird day, Johnny Appleseed day, Near East Relief Bundle day, Mother's day, Father's day, Poppy day, Bloodless day, and other Tag days.

Apple week, Leather week, Book week, Thrift week, Health week, Cleanup week, Constitution week, Boys' week, Girls' week, Music week, and American Welfare week.

TEST CONSTRUCTION OFFICERS.

College graduates between ages 30 and 40, with one year post-graduate training concentrated in the field of tests and measurements, may be able to qualify for an appointment in the navy. Applicants must have had at least two years' experience in the field of test construction and research such as would have been gained in a test construction bureau or as a college or university instructor in psychology. A Ph. D. in psychology with from five to ten years of practical experience would win the candidate a good rank. See the office of naval officer procurement, Board of Trade, Chicago.

R. O. ASKS: "Can I borrow money under the G. I. bill to consolidate my debts and save interest charges?"

ANSWER: The loan provisions cover borrowing for purchase of homes, business, farms, paying assessments, taxes, repair, etc., but not for the purpose you suggest. Send a 6 cent stamped envelope for data sheets on various sections of the law.

CARDIOSPASM BLOCKING THE GULLET.

WHEN we swallow, food reaches the stomach via a tube which we call the "esophagus." When at rest, this structure is collapsed. In other words, the inner walls will be in contact with one another.

Years ago, physicians did not realize that the apparatus was under the control of the sympathetic nervous system. It receives a mouthful of edibles and automatically sends it along with a wave-like contraction [of which we are unaware] until it drops into the gastric pouch. Now and then, because of an impulse which is not understood, material will pass down this channel, arrive at its lower end, and be stopped suddenly because the fibers at that point become constricted. In a few cases, of course, there are organic reasons why this occurs. For the most part, however, the tissues will be normal but sensitive to the point of spasm. They will clamp down with the touch of a feather.

The disorder is not new and a 17th century medical man described a patient with this malady. The doctor thought she had a tumor or was the victim of paralysis. A long, rod-like instrument made of whalebone was devised, by means of which she was able to feed herself for a dozen years or more. She overcame the stoppage by actually pushing nutriment past the narrow, tense portion so that it could enter the "bread-basket."

It is wholly possible that whenever swallowing causes pain, the lower end of the conduit may be disturbed reflexly. At any rate, a real problem is presented if X-rays show a dilated pathway immediately above the site where the gullet joins the stomach.

An interesting history is reported from one of our Philadelphia clinics. A woman of 30 had noted increasing difficulty of this type. She had lost nearly 30 pounds in a period of six months because she could not eat. Food accumulated in the tube but failed to travel onward. Attempts to use dilators were only partially successful. Her trouble appeared following a severe nervous shock which began with signs of indigestion.

Her symptoms were not improved by several weeks spent in the hospital. The attendants noted, however, that she became worse after calls from certain visitors. Conversely, she was much better when they remained away. A peculiar personal antipathy had transformed itself into what was tantamount to an obstruction in the first portion of the alimentary canal. With the assurance that the abhorred individual would not bother her thereafter, complete relief was obtained.

All varieties of cardiospasm cannot be traced to emotional storms. Many of these patients will fail to secrete sufficient hydrochloric acid in the gastric juice. Just how this explains the situation is not clear. Apparently, some nerve reflex is overstimulated. A large number of sufferers have been benefited by supplying the missing acid with each meal. Not only is digestion aided, but morsels of food are able to proceed thru the gullet without the slightest hindrance.

Nevertheless, psychic elements merit investigation. Not infrequently, we can regard the episode as a neurosis which can be overcome with freedom from the causative factors.

HEAT PRODUCTION.

Mrs. N. writes: Will the metabolic reading be the same before and after losing 25 pounds?

REPLY.

It isn't weight that counts. The test determines the rate at which you consume oxygen and hence burn up your own tissues. As a rule, obesity means that the figure is low.

TIRED AFTER SLEEP.

Mrs. M. writes: What causes an all-in feeling after nine hours of sleep?

REPLY.

Investigate elimination and the blood pressure. The force within the arteries may be quite too low for alertness.

THYROID DEFICIENCY.

P. J. writes: My condition has been diagnosed as myxedema and I am taking thyroid extract. As I am fast losing my memory, I wonder if I should consult a psychiatrist?

REPLY.

Give the thyroid extract time to see what it will do. Unless circulation within the brain has been impaired, alertness will probably return.

It's unpatriotic to travel;
I think you'll agree without cavil,
The trains and the buses,
The sky Pegasuses,
The motors and horses,
Are for the armed forces;

and anyway, if you do get a reservation on a plane or a Pullman, even if it's only an upper or a provisional lease on a chair, good only between Hammond, Ind., and whatever the next station is, it's pretty sure to be canceled, but even if it isn't, even if you ride like a general or a precinct committeeman or Eleanor or, for that matter, like Mr. Sewell Avery—personally conducted with pomp and circumstance by the army and the department of justice, so to speak—and you actually get to where you want to go, how in the world are you ever going to get back? Well, really!

I think you'll agree without cavil, considering all the discomfort, inconvenience, and the risk of being stranded for weeks and weeks, maybe even for the duration, in some town where you can't get a hotel room or a lamb chop or a ticket to "Oklahoma!" or find a laundry that isn't too busy to do your shirt,

It's unpatriotic to travel!

It's beamed for over there, but it's not illegal to listen over here. The program is introduced by just 15 seconds [we counted] of Yankee Doodle. And after the story has been told in English it is told again—a boon to students of foreign languages—in French, Italian, and German. Discovery: It is possible to tell the truth in German.

At first kept good men out, bad in;
But now those massive walls grow thin!

And in the end his citadel
Becomes the madman's prison cell!

AUSTRALIA'S TARIFF LOCKOUT.

Portland, Ore., June 27.—I have read your editorial of June 23, "Pacific Bases," with Mr. Keith Murdock's suggestions. What you do not bring out in this editorial is that Australia, New Zealand, and all other so-called British countries have discriminating tariffs against the United States which amount to a lockout.

To give you a concrete illustration, a cargo of lumber shipped from Canada to Australia pays, roughly, $20,000 less duty than an identical cargo shipped from the United States to Australia, notwithstanding the fact that Australia is a free and independent country. She has her own tariff rates and her own regulations of commerce, and has no more right to discriminate against us than we would have to discriminate against her. What I have said about Australia applies to all British countries.

Mr. Hull's trade agreements are a one way street in which we allow British countries our lowest tariff rates and none of them allow us their lowest tariff rates. This not only applies to lumber, but to almost everything else manufactured or produced in the United States.

Chicago, June 30.—Printed in all the newspapers, spoken over the radio, and shown on the screen is the plea to welcome your bond warden so he may obtain pledges on the fifth war loan campaign.

What I want to know is where are all these bond wardens that we have read and heard about? My family, and it seems that nearly everybody I have spoken to, are still waiting to welcome these bond wardens and gladly furnish them with our pledges. Has the civilian defense organization in Chicago and surrounding towns collapsed?

WHAT 750 TEXANS THINK.

Houston, Tex., June 26.—At a recent convention of the Lumbermen's Association of Texas, in Dallas, a call was made for any one in favor of the New Deal to stand. Not one of these gentlemen arose. I pass you this information so that the good people of Illinois will know that Texas is not completely filled with New Dealers. Their failure to stand was not for lack of energy, because when one of the speakers gave a derogatory opinion of Vice President Wallace, the entire assembly gave loud cheers. There were 750 members present.

DEWEY CAN DO IT.

Chicago, July 1.—I cannot renounce the political faith of my fathers; so when I wear a party badge, it has the word Democratic printed on it. However, I have not worn it at national elections for 12 long years; and I have concluded I'll not wear it next November.

I purpose carrying a Republican campaign banner this year. I painted it myself, and it reads: "Dewey Can Do It."

REP. LUCE'S SPEECH.

THOMAS J. COX.

THE SPENDTHRIFT.

Rudyard, Mont., June 29.—Thomas E. Dewey says Roosevelt is getting old, tired, and feeble, and the nation needs a young man full of vigor and ambition. Then a New Dealer says Roosevelt, being old, has had experience, and should be reelected. Usually the Dads have had to hold the young men down to keep them from spending more than both could make, but in this case, the young man saves, while Dad has mortgaged everything we have, and spent it to get votes. Being a farmer, I have been forced to accept payments instead of parity prices, and I find my income taxes will be much larger than the payments. I guess that is what is meant, when we hear our votes are being bought with our own money. Kind of smart politics, don't you think; or is it?

FRED ATER.

HOT TIME COMING UP.

Chicago, June 30.—Many reasons have been given for the lack of ballyhoo at the Republican convention. In the first place, the convention was overshadowed by the tragic consequences of war. Furthermore, there was no "voice from the sewer," nor was there a horde of federal payrollers in attendance to whoop it up. Now Hedda Hopper intimates that there was a cooling system but orders had been given not to turn it on until the Democratic convention. Anyhow, the Republican heat is still on in full force for the coming campaign.

MRS. DALE.

A STRONG COMBINATION.

Clinton, Ia., June 29.—I like Thomas E. Dewey and believe he is the man we need in Washington. He will keep his feet on the ground. No froth or glamor, no promises of "again and again" to break—just a man who means business and responsibility to the people who will elect him. He is a man with courage and ability to see us thru and bring home our boys and men. I also believe he will guide us in ways of thrift and honesty and reduce our national debt. "Dewey and Bricker"—a strong combination.

NO GAS FOR FISHING TRIP

Battle Creek, Mich.—Upon receiving a convalescent furlough after being confined to a hospital for six months I went to my ration board, trying to obtain a little more than the usual five gallons of gasoline.

The doctors recommended that I take things easy and do a little fishing. I went to the board and explained the situation, giving as a reason for applying for extra gas the fact that I was going on a fishing trip.

The board director refused me, saying that even the best defense worker couldn't obtain gas for that reason. I may not be President, but I like to fish, too.

DENY ROOSEVELT PLANS 4TH TERM VISIT TO FRONT

Acceptance of 'Draft' in Battle Area Rumored.

BY WALTER TROHAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 5.—White House Press Secretary Stephen T. Early today characterized as "pure speculation" reports that President Roosevelt would go to France or possibly Honolulu to accept the fourth term nomination as a draft of the commander-in-chief.

Political observers here had expected that Mr. Roosevelt would try to cloak the fourth term "draft" with some drama by making a trip to one of the war fronts while Democrats were meeting in the Chicago convention.

It was believed the President might go to Cherbourg on an inspection trip of the invasion front to give some color to the alleged fourth term draft. It was also held possible he might go to Honolulu to make a bid for west coast votes while accepting the nomination.

Nazis Predict Visit.

The German radio had reported President Roosevelt was preparing to visit the invasion front. It was generally recognized here that the Nazis had no information, but were merely guessing on the ground that such a visit might influence the election.

Early's denial of an impending Presidential visit to an active war front was viewed skeptically in capital political circles. It was felt that such a visit would be in complete harmony with previous Roosevelt campaigns.

In 1936 Mr. Roosevelt refused to acknowledge he was campaigning for a second term until about five weeks before the election. However, he spent the entire summer in making what he called drouth and flood inspection trips, which carried him into almost every section of the country.

"Defense" Tour in 1940.

In the third term campaign of 1940 he was even more reluctant to acknowledge the opening of the political campaign. Instead, he spent months in what he called defense inspection tours, during which he showed himself to millions of voters.

New Dealers strongly favor battle-front inspection trips for the fourth term campaign. They argue that Presidential visits to an active sector of the war—one which is technically open to attack such as Hawaii if not one actually under fire such as Cherbourg—would give strong support to the New Deal campaign to draft the army and navy commander-in-chief.

Further, New Dealers insist, an acceptance speech delivered against a background of enemy gunfire or a convenient battle-stations alarm, would give a tremendous lift to the fourth term campaign, which has thus far failed to enlist any enthusiasm except among office holders.

The ceremony was held last night in the home of Judge and Mrs. Levi M. Hall, a Hennepin county district judge. Present were Judge and Mrs. Hall and Mrs. Lundeen's two children, Lt. BUSBEY TO SEEK QUIZ ON ARMY, NAVY RED FILES

Informed of Plan to Destroy Them.

Rep. Fred E. Busbey [R., Ill.] said yesterday that early next month he will ask the military and naval affairs committees of both the house and senate at Washington, D. C., to determine whether any files of the army and navy intelligence departments have been destroyed.

He said he also will ask committees to ascertain what persons or organizations are interested in the army and navy records.

Foe of Radicals.

Busbey is one of the most militant foes of radicals and Communists in congress and is a member of the house committee on un-American activities. He is a candidate for reëlection in the 3d Illinois district on the south side and had been told that the CIO political action committee, composed largely of Communists, has appropriated $75,000 to defeat him.

"I am going to ask the house and senate inquiries because I believe that there are sinister forces at work, and because I am reliably informed that they would destroy these records representing years of work," Busbey said.

"Officers of both the army and navy intelligence services have come to me and told me about it. It seems that particularly the Communist records are to be destroyed."

Committee Halts Action.

Members of congress revealed on May 25 that a move was on by the navy to destroy its Communist records both in the New York and Chicago areas. The senators and representatives said they had received authentic information to that effect and were investigating it. This was one day after the senate military affairs committee had halted army plans for destroying all its records of investigations of subversive activities of army and civilian personnel.

Members of congress, Busbey said, told him that plans for destroying the navy records in New York included the transfer of the division of counter-espionage of the office of navy intelligence to other duties.

COMPANY JUST WALKS OUT ON STRIKE PICKETS

One hundred CIO pickets outside the plant of the United Wall Paper Factories, Inc., 3930 Federal st., were in danger yesterday of soon having nothing to picket.

In five large trucks, the company was moving from the building to transfer its activities to one or more of 24 other plants that it operates thruout the country.

The company decided to move, officials said, after one worker was slugged and others were threatened by pickets on June 5. They described the labor difficulty as a dispute between the AFL and the CIO. The AFL held a closed shop contract at the plant, most of whose employes were Negroes.

18 Fur Firms Pay U. S. $21,267 on Overcharges

The office of price administration reported yesterday that 18 wholesale furriers in Chicago had made payments totaling $21,267 to the United States treasury in settlement of overcharges on women's fur garments. Alex Elson, regional OPA attorney, said investigations of the firms had been carried on for several weeks. Cases against these firms and six others have been pending in federal court. The others still are pending.

The War Products show is sponsored by the United States treasury in cooperation with THE TRIBUNE and armament manufacturers. Thousands of visitors have viewed the exhibits since the show opened last month.

Mighty Guns Shown.

The visitors have seen mighty guns, captured enemy equipment, ponderous tractors and earth moving machines, rifles, shells, bombs, and displays of parts and items, each one of which is essential to the fighting forces. The show is open daily from 10 a. m. to 10 p. m.

Among the most popular exhibits are the heavy tools of war manufactured by the International Harvester company, Chicago. One of the biggest of these is the company's 13 ton prime mover for heavy guns.

Carries Nine Men.

The prime mover, known as the M5 high speed tractor, was designed to answer the army's call for a vehicle that could haul either a 155 mm. or 105 mm. howitzer, or a 4.5 inch gun fast enough to meet the requirements of a war of movement.

International Harvester also is displaying its new 57 mm. anti-tank gun, which proved effective against heavy German armor in North Africa, Sicily, and Italy.

BOND SALES RISE NEARLY 10% AS END APPROACHES

Sales of bonds in the fifth war loan drive of Chicago and Cook county thru Tuesday totaled $643,838,000, or 72.02 per cent of the quota of $894,014,000, Philip R. Clarke, drive chairman, reported yesterday. This represented an increase of almost 10 per cent over the sales figures as of Saturday, when Clarke asserted that the city-county campaign was lagging.

Sales to individuals rose to $134,545,000 thru Tuesday, or 48.5 per cent of the 277 million dollar quota. Corporate sales climbed to $509,292,000, or 82.54 per cent of the quota of nearly 617 million dollars.

The individual bond sale drive will continue thru July 31, but the four coupon issues, intended primarily for corporation, institutional, and large individual investment, go off the market at the close of business this Saturday.

Sales in Illinois totaled $852,000,000 thru Tuesday. This was 76.9 per cent of the quota, $1,107,000,000.

RADAR INDUSTRY DINNER TO HEAR GRASHIO'S STORY

Maj. Samuel C. Grashio, who took part in the "March of Death" on Bataan and later escaped from a prison camp with the late Lt. Col. W. E. Dyess, arrived in Chicago by plane yesterday from his home in Spokane, Wash. He will speak tonight in the Palmer House at a dinner and war bond rally held by the Radar-Radio Industries, Inc., of Chicago. Vice Adm. DeWitt Clinton Ramsey, chief of the naval bureau of aeronautics and a task force commander in the battle of the Coral sea, also will speak.

Maj. Grashio, holder of several war decorations, will tell of his experiences in the Phillippine jungles after his escape from a Japanese prison camp. How he finally returned to allied forces is a military secret.

WRENCH KILLING CLEW SOUGHT FROM DICE GAME

Two Men and Woman Held for Inquiry.

George Hurt, 41, of 1825 Wellington av., a welder at the Whitehall Specialty company, 1735 Diversey pkwy., was found slain with a pipe wrench in his basement apartment yesterday.

George Hurt.

Police questioned Ralph Chadwick, 29, of 3056 Lincoln av. and Taylor Brown, 47, of 1636 Melrose st., who admitted shooting dice with Hurt in his apartment Saturday night; also Mrs. Hazel Swanson, 35, of 3035 N. Ashland av., mother of two children, who said she was acquainted with Hurt. All, however, denied knowledge of the slaying, according to Lt. John Warren, deputy chief of detectives.

Police found 15 dice that they described as "tops," or "miss outs," in a dresser drawer in the apartment.

Body Found by Friends.

Hurt's body was discovered by two acquaintances who called at the apartment to visit him. They are Buford Carlton, 1704 Wellington av., and Edward Oran, 2850 N. Clark st., who told police they had known Hurt in Martin, Tenn., his former home.

The body was slumped in a pantry. A 30 inch pipe wrench, with which police said Hurt obviously was slain, was found in a bathroom adjoining the pantry. Efforts had been made to wash off bloodstains, police said.

Carlton and Oran told police that Hurt and his former wife, Mrs. Effie Hurt, were divorced six months ago. Mrs. Hurt, who has been living at 1434 Wolfram st., is now visiting in Martin, Tenn., with the couple's two children, Glen, 14, and Robert, 8, they said.

Rooney Murder Baffling.

Policemen investigating the slaying Tuesday night of Daniel Rooney, 37, an ex-convict, have been confronted with a multitude of motives, Capt. Jerome Looney of the Warren av. station said yesterday.

"There are almost a million reasons why he would be shot," Capt. Looney said. "He was a neighborhood terror and almost every one was afraid of him."

Rooney was shot to death by two men in front of 3116 5th av. He was released from Joliet prison last December after serving 15 years for the murder of William Watson, 22, in a robbery.

SOLDIER AND WIFE PLEAD FOR RETURN OF KIDNAPED BABY

Two teams of detectives, assigned by Deputy Chief John Warren, yesterday pressed the search for Lawrence Harding Jr., 2 month old son of a Negro soldier, who was kidnaped Friday as he lay in his buggy at the rear of his home, 6150 Rhodes av.

The parents, Corp. and Mrs. Lawrence Harding, in an advertisment in THE TRIBUNE asked "whoever has our baby" to return him to avoid endangering his life inasmuch as the infant needs special medicine and a special diet.

The infant's mother, Marguerite, 28, reported that she left the baby in his buggy at 4:30 p. m. Friday while she went into her basement apartment. Returning in seven minutes, she found him gone. Neighbors said they saw two Negro girls, both about 16, pick up the child and walk off with him.

62 LIEUTENANTS SEEK JOBS OF 20 POLICE CAPTAINS

Sixty-two police lieutenants yesterday registered as candidates for captaincies in a promotional examination which the city civil service commission announced would be held on Sept. 6. There are 20 vacancies for jobs as district police commanders, six of which resulted from the recent trials of captains charged with non-enforcement of laws against gambling.

Walter L. Gregory, chairman of the civil service commission, announced the date of the examination in a letter to Police Commissioner Allman.

It was understood that Commissioner Allman would have the most influence in making the promotions, for he has the sole power to give the candidate a marking for efficiency, and this marking carries a weight of three points out of 10.

The other points are: Duties, 4; education, 1; oral, 1; and seniority, 1. All points awarded are predicated on the requirement that the candidate must qualify physically.

HOLDS CRUELTY TO WIFE NO BAR TO CITIZENSHIP

Lincoln Is Cited As Poor Husband.

Federal Judge Philip L. Sullivan ruled in effect yesterday that a man may be a good citizen altho a poor husband, and that a divorce granted on ground of cruelty is not convincing evidence that a man is not of good moral character.

Among 125 applicants for naturalization before the jurist was Gregory Antikol, 31, of 1861 Komensky av., a salesman. His application alone was recommended by a naturalization examiner to be denied. The examiner's reason was that Antikol, who came to the United States from Latvia in 1939, was not of good moral character because he had been divorced by his wife, Millie, two years ago on ground of cruelty.

Carries a Magazine.

Antikol, nattily dressed in a two toned brown ensemble, carried a magazine under one arm as Judge Sullivan asked what he had to say.

"Well, your honor, a man can be a good citizen even tho a poor husband," Antikol answered. "Abraham Lincoln was a great and a good man, but a poor husband."

At this point, Antikol cited an article in the magazine, written by Peter J. Hampton, a psychologist.

Reads to Court.

Antikol read to the court from the article: "History is full of examples of good men who turned out to be poor husbands." Among them Lincoln was named.

"Do you put yourself in the same class with Lincoln?" Judge Sullivan asked.

"No, your honor, but I can be as good a citizen."

Lakeside, Mich., Is Popular as a Near-by Vacation Spot

BY JUDITH CASS.

THE office of defense transportation's urging to patriotic Americans to stay close to home for summer vacations is followed with pleasure by the Chicagoans who own summer homes in Lakeside, Berrien county, Mich., which is practically within commuting distance, and by those who have leased cottages there for the season. The Chikaming Country club, the Lakeside Inn, and Gibson's store, to which mail is delivered, are the three principal gathering places in Lakeside. Informal clothes are in order, and so is restful relaxation on the sandy beaches.

A guest at the Leonard C. Reids' Lakeside home over the week-end was Mr. Reid's cousin, Mrs. George M. Dewey, mother of Gov. Dewey of New York. She and the Reids were among the guests at an informal gathering in the Raymond Ashcrafts' lake front cottage. The Ashcrafts' daughter, Mrs. Douglas K. Huntress; Mr. Huntress, and their children are in Lakeside as much as possible during the warm weather months.

Other summer residents are the Richard D. Nugents, who have taken the Walter Warrens' rambling lake front home, not far from the house which Mrs. George N. McMurray owned for many years, but which she sold last year. Mrs. McMurray's daughter, Mrs. Robert G. Walker, and Lt. [j. g.] Walker's mother, Mrs. William M. Walker, returned yesterday from New York after bidding Lt. Walker good-by before he started on overseas duty. While there the Walkers had a reunion with the former Linda Jane Sherer and her husband, Stanley R. Morton, who just had returned from nine months overseas, and with Mrs. James Slattery, who lived here until Lt. Slattery went overseas with the navy, and who is expected in Lakeside July 21 for a visit with the Nugents.

Harold H. Swift's hospitable Lakeside home is a summer gathering place for the younger members of his family. Mrs. Errett Van Nice, his niece, and her children have spent five summers in one of Mr. Swift's guest cottages. Her husband now is a lieutenant commander in the navy. Mrs. Van Nice's brother, Lt. George H. Swift Jr., and his wife, and the Jack Hampton Monroes chartered a sailboat and sailed across the lake to Mr. Swift's home and back again over the long holiday just past.

The Chikaming's clubhouse is the replica of Shakespeare's home which was removed from an exposition at the Chicago stock yards some 20 years ago to its present location. It has rooms for a few guests.

Listed on the honor roll of Chikaming members who have sons in service are Mrs. George L. Cragg and the Lowry K. Grulees. Mrs. Cragg and Mrs. Grulee are at their Lakeside homes now. Stopping at the inn on a vacation are the William McSwains. Other holiday visitors to Lakeside were the Jere Pattersons.

Wedding News.

Miss Roberta Seaver and Lt. [j. g.] Donald O. Bolander, whose engagement to be married was announced two weeks ago by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jay J. Seaver of Evanston, were married suddenly last night in the First Congregational church, Evanston, with a large reception following at the Evanston Woman's club. Lt. Bolander, son of the Rev. and Mrs. Oscar Bolander of Denver, Colo., and his bride will be at home in Little Creek, Va., after a wedding trip to the Virginia Hot Springs.

The bride wore the handsome rose point lace veil belonging to Mrs. Burt J. Denman and which was worn by Mrs. Denman and her daughters. Miss Elizabeth Henkel of Grosse Pointe, Mich., was the maid of honor, and the other attendants included Mrs. Mauritz Anderson as matron of honor, and Miss Elizabeth Haines, Miss Patrice Duncan, and the bride's cousin, Miss Margaret Smith of Roanoke, Va., as bridesmaids. The bride's brother, James, was best man. Lt. Bolander and his bride were graduated from Northwestern university, and she also received a degree from Bradford Junior college.

Engagement News.

Mr. and Mrs. W. Kedzie Teller of Riverside announce the engagement of their daughter, Louise Anne, to Petty Officer 2d Class John Maurie Harts, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Harts of New York. Miss Teller is a junior at the University of Illinois. Her fiance, who was stationed at the university with the navy, now is serving overseas.

Mr. and Mrs. Oscar H. Damman of Park Ridge announce the engagement of their daughter, Grace, to Ensign Durwood L. Bergman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold R. Bergman of Fort Atkinson, Wis. Miss Damman was graduated in February from Lawrence college. Her fiance, who attended Ripon and Lawrence colleges, recently received his commission from Camp McDonough in Plattsburg, N. Y., and has been assigned to overseas duty.

News of Births.

Mr. and Mrs. William Walker McLaury [Catherine McDermott] have named their new son, born July 2 in the Illinois Central hospital, for his father. William Jr. and his year old sister, Mary Nye, who are fifth generation Chicagoans, are grandchildren of Mrs. Jay P. McDermott and Mrs. Walker Gailey McLaury of Chicago.

Mr. and Mrs. C. Gordon Brightman Jr. [Lucile Hancock] have named their second daughter, born June 23 in the Evanston hospital, Candace Ross for one of her paternal ancestors. The baby has a 4½ year old sister, Carol Deborah Morton.

Thru the Red Cross, Lt. [j. g.] Herbert J. Naper Jr., stationed in New Guinea, has learned of the birth of his daughter, Margot Anne, June 8 in St. Joseph's hospital. During Lt. Naper's absence his wife, young Margot, and Herbert III, will be staying with her parents, the Roy J. Barnetts of Sheridan rd. Mr. and Mrs. Naper Sr. live in Wilmette.

Two Novel Bonnets, Both Delightfully Cool for Warm Summer Day

This summer trifle to wear with prints or city sheers is made of meshed black veiling, secured to a tiny black disc. It also comes in pastels. Both this and hat at right are available in a Chicago store.

This clever bright green cut-out hat for a warm summer day has three leaf clovers for its pattern. A pair of hat pins of the same design keep it snug on the coiffure. [TRIBUNE Studio Photos.]

Millinery Made of Froth and Frills Rests Lightly on Heated Browlines

BY REA SEEGER.

Ideal summer hats are the creations that are next to nothing at all in weight. What they lack in bulk or size they make up in gayety and amusement. Most of them are trifles, concoctions of froth and frills, resting as lightly on a heated browline as the riffle of a summer breeze.

Such confectionery bits include an entire hat made of lace ruffles, a bow of apple green satin ribbon tying together a couple of spicy pink carnations, and a beehive looking arrangement of wide mesh veiling.

Flowers are still used as dainty nosegays of color, with perhaps a whiff of pastel veiling added for contrast; others are made into garland and halo effects, tied with either satin or velvet ribbon.

The most amusing creations are the intriguing models made of feathers or trimmed with feathers. For instance, there's a tiny hat of felt trimmed with tiny pussy-cat faces of pale pink feathers, with the whiskers, eyes, and nose worked in black. All this sounds a bit wacky, but who wants anything reasonable on a warm summer day? The lighter the color and sparkle of the creation the smarter the summer topper.

Among the featherweight creations designed for such easy going around town or country are the clever cut-out hats. Fashioned like the popular bonnets, they're made of thin felt in such charming motifs as three leaf clovers [in giddy green felt] and in ivy or maple leaves. Each tiny leaf is skilfully attached to another so as to leave plenty of open work for the hair to gleam thru. You must see them to appreciate their distinction and cool charm!

Women in War Work

By Dorothy Johnson

Between chattering guns on Saipan and clattering typewriters in Chicago, there are several thousand miles, but marines are responsible for both sounds indicating the corps' prosecution of the war. Here in the city, it's the women marines at office machines, filling important jobs for which they were put into uniforms, jobs which they do to permit leathernecks to go on active duty.

Completing its survey of the work of women in uniform in Chicago, this department visited the seven offices in which 44 members of the marine corps women's reserve are on duty as stenographers, clerks, typists, receptionists, and administrative officers for the corps' central division.

Twenty-one women, all sergeants, work in five offices in central division headquarters of the corps at 225 S. Clark st. At desks, file cabinets, typewriters, and telephones, they assist officers in the central procurement division and the office of the quartermaster, handle the staggering amount of paper work involved in the paymaster's and pay roll clerk's departments and in the office of the public relations officer.

Women in the latter division have been assigned especially to several duties other than clerical ones. Much of the news writing and radio presentation of the department is the work of women marines, as is the release of stories by combat correspondents to publications within the 16 state area covered by the division.

At humming typewriters in all five offices, feminine workers wearing sergeants' stripes are turning out official directives related to the activities of the division. Seven others, one stenographer and six typists, perform similar duties in the marine corps recruiting district, 325 Plymouth ct. In the procurement district, at the same address, 10 stenographers, typists, and clerks and one receptionist handle the paper work associated with enlistments in the women's reserve. There they keep files on volunteers, notes on the results of interviews, and personal data.

Serving with men officers of the division are two women officers, a captain and a first lieutenant. Another lieutenant is assistant to the director of the women's reserve.

A woman reservist first lieutenant is on duty at the Geat Lakes Naval Training center as a rehabilitation officer, and another, a second lieutenant, is senior officer of 60 women marines studying aircraft maintenance and repair at the Chicago School of Aircraft Instruments, 2200 Lawrence av.

Numerically, the 44 women in uniform compose the smallest group in Chicago but, like their American sisters, the 330 WACs, 1,350 WAVES, and 60 SPARS on duty in the city and suburbs, they're fulfilling the mission for which they were recruited, that of releasing men for fighting.

Salvation Army Camp to Welcome 40 Today

The Salvation Army camp, Wonderland, on Camp Lake in Wisconsin, across the state line from Antioch, Ill., today will welcome 40 children from the Outing Association for Crippled Children to its 77 wooded acres for a free vacation. Tomorrow 20 children from the Chicago Heart association will go to the camp, and in the evening 200 needy mothers and their children will arrive.

Wedding

Mrs. Alma Thompson Haugan and Capt. Laurens Grose Hastings of the army air forces will be married today in Los Angeles, surrounded by a small nucleus of Chicago friends, including Mr. and Mrs. John A. Kovas and Harry M. MacLeod. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Amasa Thompson of Wilmette. Capt. Hastings and his bride will make their home in Los Angeles.

Teach Students Need to Think, Says Educator

Educators should not be content to teach students merely to react in the proper and accepted manner to certain stimuli, but should strive to train them to think their way thru changing situations, Lewis A. Dexter, professor of sociology at Talladega college, Talladega, Ala., yesterday told the fourth annual conference for teachers of the social sciences in secondary schools and junior colleges.

The conference, which will run thru tomorrow, is being held in Ida Noyes hall at the University of Chicago.

"It is said that you can train a chimpanzee to drive an automobile and always to stop at a red light and start at a green one," Prof. Dexter said. "But you cannot train him to take into account changing factors or different meanings which may, occasionally, make it wise to stop at a green light or proceed at a red one."

The speaker also touched on the fact that a person's social position, nationality, place of residence, and other such factors help to determine his opinions on many subjects, and he compared preconceived ideas to a pair of spectacles which distort in some manner their wearer's view of a situation or condition. Prof. Dexter said that he conceived training in the social studies as something which would give a student the ability to say with accuracy:

"Yes, to me the situation appears like this, but I know my particular set of spectacles for looking at the situation are likely to distort it in the following specific fashion . . ."

Another speaker, Herbert J. Abraham, assistant professor of education and assistant examiner of the University of Chicago, declared that the last two years of high school contributed little to the student's thinking ability. While more extensive schooling gave older students a greater command of facts, they were no better qualified to reason about them than were the younger students, he added. He insisted that thinking should be incorporated with fact-gathering, not left to a distant future when it is vaguely practiced after the facts are forgotten.

American colleges had a unique opportunity to revitalize education under the army specialized training program, but they fumbled this opportunity because they kept too close to traditional academic procedures, Dean Clarence H. Faust, director of the University of Chicago pre-meteorology program, told the conference. While the colleges offered fairly good scientific programs, he said, they handed out for the most part already pre-digested historical information instead of bringing the actual writings of such men as Franklin, Jefferson, Madison, and Lincoln to their students' attention.

He speculated on the possibility that the government may call on the colleges again to train specialists for the post-war task of reconversion, and he urged that educators review the earlier program, draw lessons, and equip themselves to meet the new opportunity.

White Collar GIRL

BY RUTH MAC KAY

Last Day in an Office.

She came to her office in the building of the department of labor in Washington, D. C., becomingly dressed that day. But then, Mary Anderson always is becomingly dressed. The only difference was the orchid she wore, the gift of the other workers in the women's bureau. Everything was much the same as usual. There were last minute letters to write and matters to take care of—a day's work to be done.

Outwardly things were the same. Inwardly all the members of the women's bureau had come to work last Friday morning determined not to permit Mary Anderson's last day in her office to be a sad one. Yet there had been sadness since invasion day, when she called a meeting of her staff. To those sitting around the long, highly polished table in her office she had explained her intention to retire. Frieda Miller had returned to the United States, Miss Anderson had said. It was Miss Anderson's wish—her suggestion and her choice—that Miss Miller should succeed her as head of the women's bureau. It was as simple as that.

A Long Career.

So now the long public career was drawing to a close—the career that began when she was an immigrant girl in a West Pullman garment factory, that progressed in 1918 to the women in industry service of the United States department of labor, weathered five administrations, and made Mary Anderson, as head of the women's bureau, dean of women in appointive positions in Washington.

Two nights before her retirement there had been a dinner at the Mayflower hotel, with testimonial speeches and a gift of a traveling bag and an evening bag. But Friday, the last day in her office, was marked by a more informal gathering—a luncheon planned by her coworkers of the women's bureau. No one must be gloomy! That was the edict.

Room 1307.

At the luncheon there were short talks by those who had worked side by side with Miss Anderson to the betterment of working conditions for all women, those who knew first hand her vision and good sense, her calmness, patience, and devotion. Mary V. Robinson presented the department's gift, a bracelet of small leaves of two tone gold and three rose gold roses, with a pin to match. Mary Anderson put them on and spoke briefly. The luncheon ended. Every one tried not to be sad. But every one was.

That evening Mary Anderson closed the door of her office, Room 1307. I could not have believed had I not seen it how empty the room was without her. Her paintings still hung on the wall, the oils by Mary Winslow, onetime editor of the women's bureau publication. But the room was empty.

At the end of her last day in her office Mary Anderson didn't dine with senators or at the White House. She went to a small dinner at the home of her secretary, Isabel Schaefer, given in fond tribute to a great and good woman.

'One Is Missing' . . . . . By H. Vernor Dixon

(Copyright: 1944: By H. Vernor Dixon.)

INSTALMENT X.

ALWAYS SHIELDED.

Ellen stared into Jed's eyes and saw that they were dull and tired. Suddenly she realized that he was only another man after all. Ellen Banning had never had any difficulty with men. Even one such as this brute of a killer before her. She smiled at him and touched his hot arm with her cool fingertips. "You look frightfully tired. Why don't you lie down for a while?"

But there was no answering smile in his eyes. "I believe I will."

He disappeared below and she heard him curtly greet the others and say something about using the shower in the aft stateroom. Ellen looked up at the sky and a light smile played about her lips. The situation was not really so frightening, after all. There were the hazards of the jungle and the Japanese, but there were also men t. shield her from those hazards.

She had drifted lightheartedly into an early marriage with the heavy drinking heir of one of Detroit's better families. She drifted into another marriage, and another. Banning was the fourth, but not necessarily the last. When she left Banning—which she might, she thought with a pout—Tom Riddell would be waiting. One really should never plan those things. Anyway, Tom's insistence that she leave Banning was becoming a trifle boring.

Young men were that way. Difficult. They insisted upon their male superiority and were always making impossible demands.

Why, she pouted, couldn't they be like older men? The middle-aged man was forever grateful when he possessed youth and beauty in a woman. He guarded it like a treasure and was thankful and pleased for every small favor.

She stretched luxuriously and yawned. But still, she thought, the younger men were more exciting. They had a great deal in their favor. And they were just as impressed by her beauty.

Even this brute, this Capt. Jed Reed, would ultimately be fawning upon her, willing to shield and help her as had all the others. It would not be an easy matter, being nice to such a repulsive character as the captain, but one had to make sacrifices now and then. Probably, she thought, sitting up, the others wouldn't appreciate it.

Lights danced before her eyes and her chest suddenly felt as if it were caving in. She felt the full power of the Malayan sun and it frightened her. This beastly sun! She got to her feet, tightened the belt around the robe and carefully made her way below to the semi-gloom of the steaming main salon.

Ellen replied, as if to a child, "I just washed my hair."

She turned away and went down the dim passageway to the aft stateroom. She opened the door and stepped in and her hand flew to her mouth. Jed Reed was standing in the middle of the room, combing his hair.

"Sorry," he said. "Yours is the only decent shower on the boat. I'm afraid we'll all have to use it."

"But of course. I — I didn't know——"

She paused and stared at him. This was a different Jed Reed, wholly different. He had changed to a clean khaki shirt and sun-tan trousers and white tennis shoes. The green paint had been removed from his face and arms and his bronze skin gleamed and shone in the filtered light of the cabin. His face still gleamed from the shower. It was a rugged face, powerful and bony and strong, but now there was a certain beauty about it. His thin lips were parted and his strong even teeth gleamed as whitely as Bart's.

Ellen was so surprised that she was momentarily stunned. She stared at him until he had finished combing his hair and was brushing by her to leave the cabin. Then she smiled and touched his arm and he turned to face her.

Her laughter tinkled in the room and she said, "You look so—so different. Really. That horrible green paint—ugh!" She shivered. "Honestly, I was afraid of you—before."

His voice was flat, without feeling or emotion. "Not now?"

"No. Not now."

"That's too bad. You know," he said, "you're much too beautiful for your own good—and mine."

She stared at him and laughter bubbled from her soft lips. "You're very dramatic, captain. You've lived in the jungle too long. It has changed your perspective. I may help you to regain it."

His large hands went to her shoulders and then dropped. For a moment he watched her, then he said, "I wouldn't be at all surprised."

He turned away from her, stepped into the passage and closed the door behind him. Ellen stood there looking at the door and then a finger went to her mouth and she smiled. They're all alike, she thought. She turned toward her open suitcase on the port bunk and carefully selected a dress.

Jed Reed stood over the large stove in the galley frying four planduks, small deer. All the men stood about him, watching. Mae Nolan leaned in the doorway. She looked at Jed thru narrowed eyes, one corner of her mouth turned down. "You're not so bad looking, captain, now that you've washed your face. You were pretty hard to take before."

"That seems to be the consensus around here. Maybe I should enter a beauty contest."

Mae's head went back and her laughter pealed thru the ship. "Never, captain, never. Frankly, I like 'em a little rugged. Then a gal can knock off the rough edges and make believe she's done a good job of it, instead of God."

Banning looked from one to the other and then at Tom Riddell. The pilot nodded. Banning cleared his throat and said: "We were looking around the boat last evening, captain. Examining the damage. It must have been touch and go there for a while, when those Jap planes jumped you."

Jed shook the large frying pan and the scent of the cooking meat filled the cabin. He said, "I wasn't on the boat. Bart was the one trying to get it thru. He could tell you about it."

Bart looked up from the small stool on which he was seated and said, "It happened before Singapore fell. I was in Burma, with the boat, and my services were requisitioned to run the Jap blockade to Corregidor with a dribble of supplies. My crew was composed of 11 Chinese and a Malayan. I'm the only one living."

Riddell said, "Unlucky number."

"I suppose. Anyway, Jap planes jumped us in the middle of the gulf and had a little sport killing off my crew."

Story of Touhy Poor Film Fare for These Days

"ROGER TOUHY, GANGSTER."

A 20th Century-Fox picture, directed by Robert Florey, featuring Preston Foster, Victor McLaglen, Lois Andrews, and Kent Taylor, and presented at the Garrick.

By Mae Tinée.

Good morning!

Can you tell me, pretty maidens, and what goes with you, WHY, in this crowded hour of history, we should have the gangster activities of such blots on America's 'scutcheon as Roger Touhy and his crowd rehashed and served to us?

We were glutted with such screen fare at the time the racketeers ranged highways and headlines. We thought we had buried the subject. But now like a zombie it walks again. Well——

The theater was plenty crowded with teen-agers. It was such who hero worshiped—and often imitated the Capones, the Touhys, and the Dillingers.

Personable and adroit Preston Foster portrays Touhy callously and effectively. His skill at outwitting the police drew gusts of admiring laughter from the audience and sympathy seemed to be with him and his cohorts till along toward the end, when the FBI really gets into action and preyers become the prey. Touhy, captured, backing from his hideout—hands over head—into the custody of the police, is no romantic figure. The film has a "Let-This-Be-a-Lesson-to-You" finale, for which I suppose one should give thanks.

Direction was in competent hands and all of the acting is excellent. But things that smell had usually best stay buried.

See you soon.

According to Culbertson

[Copyright: 1944: By Ely Culbertson.]

North in today's deal thought that he was giving his partner plenty of encouragement toward a slam, but actually his efforts were sadly misdirected.

South, dealer.
North-South vulnerable.

	NORTH
	♠ K J 10 6 5
	♥ A 10 9 6
	♣ Q J 7 4
WEST		EAST
♠ 7		♠ 4
♥ 8 4 2		♥ Q J 5 3
♦ A K 10 7 5		♦ 6 4 3 2
♣ 9 6 3 2		♣ K 10 8 5
	SOUTH
	♠ A Q 9 8 3 2
	♥ K 7
	♦ Q J 9 8
	♣ A

South	West	North	East
1 spade	Pass	3 spades	Pass
4 diamonds	Double	4 hearts	Pass
6 spades	Pass	Pass	Pass

Obviously, South could lay the hand down for 13 tricks, so the contract was not all that could be desired.

North wanted to know why South had "signed off" at four spades after the strong support given him by North. South answered, with telling simplicity, that when the four diamond bid, which he had of course intended as purely exploratory, ran into the double from West, and North had not been able to offer any reassurance about diamond losers, South had had to abandon hope for even a small slam. No matter how much strength North might have in spades, hearts, and clubs, he might also have two little diamonds that would be immediate losers.

South's point of view was certainly understandable. The crux of the bidding was for North to counter West's double of four diamonds, and that was easy! North should have bid five diamonds, directly over the double. His failure to redouble would be a clear message that he didn't really like the suit, and thus, from the basis of pure logic [aside from convention], would announce that North could control the diamond suit. Later, when North bid hearts, South would not have to stretch to bid the grand slam.

OVEN DINNER—EASY ON THE COOK

While you're relaxing on the porch swing—or out digging for Victory in the garden!—isn't it comforting to know that dinner's getting itself cooked without your ever-watchful presence? After you shove today's delicious meat into the oven, there'll be leisure ahead for you while it's roasting to a turn.

Cushion-style Pork Shoulder Roast . . . B-V Stuffing

Ask your dealer to bone a Boston Butt and sew up two sides, leaving one side open so you can stuff it with bread dressing. There'll be very little waste—only about a quarter pound of bone to a five pound roast. Season meat inside and outside with salt and pepper. Fill cavity with B-V stuffing, which should be light and fluffy, and sew opening together with a clean cord. (If you do not have a curved or long needle, ask your meat dealer for skewers, put them through the two layers of meat about ½ inch from the edge and lace together with cord.) Place meat on rack in a shallow baking pan and roast in a moderate oven, 350° F., for 35 to 40 minutes per pound.

Clip Recipe Here

"MORE STUFFING, PLEASE!"

That's what they'll call for if you give the stuffing a rich, delicious meat taste by adding Wilson's B-V. Just make your regular stuffing and allow a teaspoon of B-V, dissolved in a little hot water, for 2 quarts of soft bread crumbs. It's really surprising how much B-V improves the flavor of bread stuffing.

With the roast pork I'd serve apple juice as a cooling cocktail, browned potatoes, new peas, garden lettuce, radishes and green onions; and for dessert, a luscious berry cobbler. Make mine blackberry.

Fruit Cobbler Is Easy to Make

To serve six, sweeten 2 cups of fruit, mix in 2 tbsp. flour and put in a square cake pan (8 inch). For the topping, sift together 1½ cups all-purpose flour, 3 tsp. baking powder, ½ tsp. salt and 4 tbsp. sugar. Cut in 4 tbsp. Wilson's Certified Margarine until texture of corn meal, add ½ cup milk all at once and stir only until thoroughly combined. Roll to fit pan, place on top of fruit and bake in a hot oven, 450° F., for 15 min.; reduce heat to 375° F. and continue baking until topping is done and fruit tender (another 20 to 30 min.). Serve warm with cream.

SUNDAY SUPPER SUBJECTS

After a hearty dinner, why not make it a simple buffet supper? Let the children raid the refrigerator and prepare the table. They'll love it if you give them full sway. Chances are when called to partake you'll find sandwich makings in all their glory including delicious Wilson's MOR, Certified American Cheese and Certified Deviled Ham. Youngsters do like to do these things if given complete freedom, so why not make it a regular Sunday night custom?

Sincerely yours,
GEORGE RECTOR

Most canners add salt to vegetables before processing. The quantity to use depends upon the family's liking for seasonings, but the general rule is ½ teaspoon to the pint, 1 teaspoon to the quart. Rarely are other condiments necessary, but ½ teaspoon sugar often helps out a quart of tomatoes. Tomato juice may be seasoned with salt, white pepper, celery salt, and a dash of spices, if the family likes a "pepped up" morning cocktail.

Iodized salt should not be used in canning. Ordinary table salt is all right for seasoning vegetables for canning, but if the vegetables are to be pickled, cooking salt is better. Table salt contains a starchy ingredient to keep it free-flowing, and while the addition won't change the quality or flavor of pickles, it is likely to make the pickling solution cloudy.

"Every family in California keeps a bottle or jar of simple sirup in the refrigerator at all times," declares a California friend. I know that many families living in hot sections of the south do the same. In weather which calls for frequent lemon and limeades, it's a great help to have a sweetener ready to use.

Granulated sugar does not dissolve readily in a cold drink, and there's likely to be undissolved sugar in the bottom of the glass when it is used. With sugar sirup, the sweetening is done easily. Boil 2 cups water and 2 cups sugar for 5 minutes, pour the sirup into a bottle or jar, cool, cover tightly, and keep refrigerated to use as needed in lemonade and other summery drinks.

You can make a lemon mix and keep that in the refrigerator ready for drinks at a moment's notice, too. Extract lemon juice to make 2 cups and blend with 1 cup sugar and 1 tablespoon finely grated lemon rind. Stir thoroly to dissolve sugar. Store in a glass [not metal] jar with a cover. Water and ice are all you need to make lemonade at any time. Use ¼ cup of the lemon sirup for each tall glass.

American or Jerusalem artichokes, those bumpy, potato-like vegetables which are crisp textured and good cooked or in salads, are now being made into noodles. Artichoke noodles are valuable in special diets which call for a low starch intake, for they are a nonstarch vegetable. Don't confuse them with the green globe artichoke, which is no relation. The green artichoke is a flower, the American artichoke a tuber which grows underground. Several Chicago stores carry the artichoke noodles, which are good eating whether you're on a diet or not.

Household Forum

Mrs. Ed. F., Chicago—If you are toting groceries these days—and most of us are—you can help yourself to a good grip on your shopping bag by slipping an old metal spectacle case over the rope handle. Attach the case to one of the ropes when not in use, and you'll always have it handy.

Mrs. Harry S., Gary, Ind.—For the duration I'm making only ice box and drop cookies instead of rolled ones. This is a time saver. Also as a soap saver as well as a time saver, I'm combining the doing of dishes for two and even three meals.

Ellen J., LaSalle, Ill.—Your new clothesline won't be so likely to tangle or stretch if you'll boil it for about 40 minutes before using it.

Two-Piece Frock

This tailored, two-piece fashion makes lovely use of the new kimono shoulder, so smart this summer. The easy lines of the blouse especially recommend this fashion, which is equally pretty in either prints or plain colors. Style No. 3819 is designed for sizes 10 to 40. Size 16 requires 3¾ yards of 39 inch fabric or 4¼ yards of 35 inch material.

Order Clotilde patterns from Chicago Tribune, P. O. Box 537, Grand Central Annex, NEW YORK CITY. Print name and address; state size. Each pattern is 10 cents, plus 2 cents for mailing. The spring and summer fashion book, on sale at Tribune Public Service offices, is 15 cents, 12 cents if ordered by mail with a pattern.

Give the Baby Gentle Care and Affection

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

[Copyright: 1944: By News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

A pediatrician [or perhaps she is an obstetrician] recently made a small stir in one of the newspapers because she had brought out a book telling mothers, among other things, to rock their babies and sing them to sleep.

Now I wouldn't say that you should go forth shopping to buy yourself a rocking chair so you might rock your baby to sleep, but there is no real reason why your baby shouldn't be rocked occasionally, if you just happened to own a rocking chair! I don't mean rocked to sleep as a regular routine, so that he would demand it as an unfailing bed time or nap preliminary, nor that he always should be comforted by being rocked.

Of course you understand that this is only one way of saying that there is no reason why a baby shouldn't be held by his mother at some time other than when he is being fed, bathed, or "changed." Happily, the painful and proudly labeled "modern" method of being completely businesslike and coolly impersonal with a baby is going the way of the first "modern" gaspipe furniture which so outraged our esthetic sense a few years ago—that is, into the discard.

And after all, why should we be so businesslike and impersonal with our baby? He is a human being and dear to us, then why shouldn't we treat him as a person we love, treat him so that he is aware of that fact? The answer is, we should.

So we no longer think it wrong to cuddle a baby and to go to him when he cries. Those ways which were called "old fashioned" are back in style. In fact, there are many old fashioned ways that are new fashioned because they have been proved to be best. And holding your baby and being interested in him and playing with him are old fashioned new fashioned ways of which thoughtful doctors and parents approve.

Miss McClure Is Married in Highland Park

At 12:30 p. m. yesterday in Trinity church, Highland Park, Miss Margaret McClure, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence F. McClure, became the bride of Laurance Brown, son of Mr. and Mrs. George H. Brown of Highland Park. A reception for the families followed in the Highland Park residence of the bride's parents. Miss Mary Katherine McClure was her sister's only attendant, and the bridegroom's father served as best man. The bride attended Northwestern university. The bridegroom, who attended the University of Chicago, is a pre-medical student in the army specialized training program, stationed at the University of Minnesota, and he and his bride have gone to Minneapolis to live.

In a garden ceremony in the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Louis J. Donohue of Winnetka, Miss Patricia Donohue and Lt. Richard A. Brude of the army air forces were married at 4:30 p. m. yesterday. Lt. Brude, who received his commission June 27 at Pampa, Tex., will take his bride to Randolph field, San Antonio, Tex., while he completes his training there. The bride attended the University of Wisconsin, the University of Southern California, and Lake Forest college. Lt. Brude is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas M. Brude of N. Seeley av., formerly of Park Ridge.

Miss Virginia Marie Gatke, daughter of Mrs. Florance Spooner Gatke of Sheridan rd., became the bride of Lt. Robert P. Hoffman at a ceremony performed in the post chapel at Camp Pinedale in Fresno, Cal., June 12. The former Miss Gatke is a graduate of St. Mary's academy, Notre Dame, and Northwestern university. Lt. Hoffman, son of Mrs. Herbert B. Messec of Miami, Fla., and his bride are at home in Fresno.

Announcement of the marriage June 20 of Miss Marjorie Haedtler to Ensign John H. Rutherford, son of Mrs. John M. Rutherford of W. 100th st., has been made by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Martin C. Haedtler of S. Claremont av. The ceremony took place at St. Paul's Union church in Beverly Hills. Ensign Rutherford and his bride are living in Fort Lauderdale, Fla., where he is stationed at a navy air school.

Thru the Looking Glass

The mutations of tone in suntans are countless. The individual's natural skin tone before the tan is acquired is one factor; others are the amount of sun taken and the individual reaction. Some women can acquire a real bronze, others a warm golden tint. In between these two there seem to be thousands of nuances of shade. The choice of a powder tint to accent or to harmonize the shade YOU acquire is vastly important—and so is the choice of the tint used when you're in the transitional stage of acquiring your final tan shade.

If, anywhere along the line, you can wear a shade developed by a house famous for its powder—and a shade that in itself is extraordinarily beautiful — we think you ought to try it. The shade is the rich, golden color of cafe creme—not just plain suntan, you understand, but that lovely color of tan with just a amidge of coffee hue. On the fair blonde, with green or blue eyes, it is superb. And the fair brunette will love it, too; in a subtle way it deepens the creaminess of her coloring and brings out sharply the natural color of her eyes. It's a glamor shade if ever we saw one.

This is only one of many shades of this house for the skins that have been kissed by the sun or which are made smarter looking when a tan is simulated. If you can wear it, whether with a tan or over your creamy skin to give the illusion of a suntan, you can develop one of the smartest, most flattering of makeups.

In this shade and in all the others in the line from which you have to choose you also will have the advantage of a powder with quality. It's fine, but not so light that its clinging qualities have been sacrificed. It doesn't polka-dot on the skin after an hour or so, and it has fine fragrance. Not expensive, either. ELEANOR NANGLE.

Looking at Hollywood

—By Hedda Hopper—

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., July 5.—Bing Crosby is staying on the air this summer because of thousands of letters from service men. So many of the big fellows have gone off for summer vacations that they've pleaded with Bing to remain on. As soon as he completes "Here Come the WAVES" with Betty Hutton, you can look for Bing to go overseas and say hello to the fellows. . . . Because Father Thomas J. McCarthy asked for it, 500 nuns had a private showing of "Going My Way" at a session of their summer school here. . . . Betty Grable and Lana Turner are giving New Yorkers a real glamor panorama—but talk only about their babies. . . . Judith Evelyn of New York's "Angel Street" is up at RKO for one of its most important parts of the year. . . . Dick Rodgers is buying lunches for Zorina in New York, which looks as tho he had something in mind for her.

They're in Cahoots, It Seems.

Jack Carson thinks his doctor ordered him to take off 20 pounds in 30 days. He doesn't know that Warners suggested it to the doctor. . . . Robert Alda's son, recently recovered from infantile paralysis, now is enrolled in St. John's Military academy for this fall. . . . Alfred Drake, star of the New York cast of "Oklahoma!" has arrived with his bride to begin his Columbia contract. Up to date, no picture has been scheduled for him. . . . Charley Rogers has signed Arthur Lubin to direct Jane Powell's next, which is "High Among the Stars." . . . Sam Goldwyn called up Merle Oberon to congratulate her on "The Song that Lived Forever" and said, "It's one of your finest pictures. Almost as good as 'Wuthering Heights.'" . . . A farmer neighbor gave Allan Jones a donkey, saying, "You're always singing about a donkey—here's your chance to get acquainted with one."

For Her It's Christmas Every Day.

Wait until you hear Margaret O'Brien doing the Lord's Prayer in her next picture—and she can't even read. She was telling me about her presents—a gold wristwatch from Eddie Mannix and a monkey from Henry Koster. She's had dolls from all the producers on the Metro lot. But her prize present is a tiny diamond ring from her aunt. Speaking of presents, Joe Pasternak gave Elisabeth Taylor a pony, and her parents had to buy one for her brother. . . . A sergeant in New Guinea writes: "I had the honor of meeting Lew Ayres the other day, and want the world to know he's the kindest, most sincere person I've met. The fellows are with him all the way. He is a man's man." He's O. K. with women, too. . . . Donald O'Connor writes from Santa Ana hospital that he hopes he won't be out of the army because of a physical disability. He wants to go right on being a private for Uncle Sam.

Not Boiled—Just a Boiler.

When John Charles Thomas was in Salt Lake City on a war bond drive, he had himself a time with 22,000 people listening to his singing and being interviewed all over the place. He asked one of the reporters, who wrote for a farm paper, whether he knew where he could get a copper boiler. Well, it seems the reporter wrote the story up in his paper, and just as John's plane was about to take off, a fellow came running up and said, "Were you kidding about that boiler? I've got a copper one." And I'll be darned if he isn't sending it on. I asked John why he was so anxious to get one. He said, "I want to cook my hams in it—and not the Hollywood variety either." . . . It isn't every violinist who can thumb himself a ride on an army bomber. But Yehudi Menuhin has been doing just that touring bases in Alaska, the Aleutians, and the Hawaiian Islands. And after his bowl concert here July 11, he'll continue his air hitch-hiking to play army hospitals. He's hoping, too, to be the first violinist to give a concert in Paris, after the allies take over.

Here's Hoping We're That Lucky.

Eric Johnston, president of the United States Chamber of Commerce, made a name for himself when he went to England and talked over international affairs with Winston Churchill and all the gang over there and was just as cordially received by Stalin and the dignitaries in Moscow. Now I understand he's been approached by Will Hays to help him represent the Motion Picture Producers and Distributors of America. Well, if we're lucky enough to get him, it will be the best day's work our producers have done in many years. Johnston is one of the most able, clear thinking Americans we've had around in many a day.

Park Orchestra Shows Promise in 1st Concert

BY CLAUDIA CASSIDY.

After inauguarating the Chicago Theater of the Air and army nights, with the navy coming up on deck this evening, the free concerts at Grant Park took a bow of their own last night, opening the 10th season with the newly organized Grant Park Symphony orchestra under the direction of Rudolph Ganz, with Hertha Glaz, Viennese contralto of the Metropolitan Opera, as soloist.

A lot of things have happened to the band shell since I saw it last, and all of them are good. It has been built out toward the audience so that everyone on the stage looks more comfortable and the music has a better chance to focus, and its restful blue paint and orange music stands turn all sorts of pleasant color tricks under a barrage of persuasive lights. You can even get a cushion to sit on this season, and, all things considered, it wouldn't surprise me in the least if the Chicago Park District also ordered the perfect opening night with its enormous moon rising out of the lake like a slice of pink watermelon.

But these are mundane things to delight the hedonist. Your more implacable music lover found them secondary in importance to the good common sense of having one Grant Park orchestra chosen from the best men available. Even last night, when it was too new to be an ensemble, it had the unmistakable makings of an orchestra worth hearing. All it needs is what it will get, a chance to rehearse and develop.

Last night's concert opened with a capable performance of Glinka's "Russian and Ludmilla," then turned to the Tschaikowsky Fourth with less than complete success. Mr. Ganz was being understandably cautious, and the result was on the rigid side, with a touch of the sluggish. But the andantino had some expert playing and the finale struck glints of fire. The "Danse Macabre" was too slow to be a crackling performance, but it displayed Sam Thaviu's talent for the concertmaster's chair. And by the time the orchestra got to Grainger's "Londonderry Air" and "Shepherd's Hey," it was playing with high spirits and the sweep that makes good listening.

Surely one of the prettiest contraltos in the business Miss Glaz did herself less than justice in her choice of music. Why not some of those lovely Viennese songs? Tschaikowsky's "Adieu, forets" is scaled in the grand style, which she does not possess, and the group of songs for aftermath turned out to be dull. But in between, as an encore, she tucked Carmen's Habanera, in which her voice was smooth and dark and altogether charming.

Garden Motifs

BY NANCY CABOT.

This is an appealing group of embroidery motifs which may be used on a variety of items. There are 19 different items in a combination of outline and cross-stitch, measuring approximately 1¼x1¼ and 2½x3½ inches. These are ideal designs for luncheon sets, towels, or potholders.

For the hot iron transfer pattern of the garden motifs, No. 580, send 10 cents in stamps or coin, plus 2 cents to cover mailing cost, to the Needlework Bureau, Chicago Tribune, 220 5th av., New York 11, N. Y.

Sally Seeking Items to Help Needy Homes

BY SALLY JOY BROWN.

Mrs. B. is the widowed mother of four children. She receives a small grant which is sufficient for their living needs but does not provide for any extras. Because she has arthritis she is unable to work and supplement her income. The family's most imperative needs are a large size bed and studio couch, but the mother also would be grateful for curtains, bedspreads, and living room furniture of any kind. The address is on the northwest side.

Mrs. N. also is a widow and receives state assistance. She has two small children. Their living room is unfurnished, with the exception of a couch which now is beyond repair. Rugs, chairs, curtains, lamps, or similar items would help to make the home more livable. The address is on the west side.

Due to her husband's illness Mrs. X. was unable to keep up payments on furniture and most of it has been repossessed. They are in need of a number of household items, including table and chairs, a gas range, a bed, dresser, and an icebox. The address is on the south side.

Mrs. F. is the mother of two small children. Her husband is in the army and now is overseas. The baby is very active, and since their quarters are confining the mother would like very much to have a play pen for the youngster. Further information may be obtained from this department.

BY EDWARD BURNS.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 5.—Manager Jim Dykes gave his White Sox lineup a shakeup tonight, but didn't discover a combination that could see well enough to win under lights. The Senators won, 3 to 1, the victory being the ninth after supper loss for the Chicagoans in 12 ordeals.

Dutch Leonard.

The lineup change involved the benching of Third Baseman Grey Clarke, who hadn't been fielding. Eddie Carnett, who has been hitting, went to first, and stopped hitting tonight. Ralph Hodgin went to third, looked good on his three fielding chances—and made the fifth of the Sox's five hits off Dutch Leonard. Guy Curtright ended a long term on the bench to go to left field. He didn't get a hit—but he scored Chicago's only run after walking in the second inning.

Schalk Spoils Dietrich's Effort.

Bill Dietrich made his third futile try for his tenth victory. Bill was all right and the winning run wouldn't have got home in the seventh but for an error by Leroy Schalk.

After Schalk had wasted a double in the first inning, the Senators put over a run in their half. Dietrich passed George Myatt, who went to third on Joe Kuhel's single past Carnett. He scored while Kuhel and Jake Powell were being sunk in a double play.

A walk bloomed into the tying and only run in the Chicago second. With one down, Leonard passed Curtright, whereupon Tom Turner beat out a slow bouncer to Johnny Sullivan. Curtright stopping at second. Skeeter Webb whizzed a single to left, Curtright scoring and Turner stopping at second. Dietrich then grounded into a double play.

Kuhel Doubles in Sixth.

Dietrich got out of some trouble in the home second, then retired the Senators in order in the third, fourth, and fifth innings. Bill halted trouble in the sixth when Kuhel doubled with one out.

In the seventh Gilberto Torres led off with a double and advanced on Rick Ferrell's sacrifice. Then Sullivan struck out on three pitches. Dietrich got the first two pitches past Leonard for strikes, then threw two balls. Then Dutch topped a roller toward second. Schalk had to come in fast and, tho he picked up the ball nicely, his toss to Carnett was wide. This let Torres get home with the winning run.

The run the Senators made in the eighth was produced on Kuhel's third hit, a single, Powell's sacrifice and Torres' single to right.

The Sox, already in third place, had a chance to rise within a game and a half behind the second place Red Sox. Instead they were dumped into fourth place.

Santa Clara, Cal., July 5 (AP).—The University of Santa Clara reported today the resignation of Lawrence T. [Buck] Shaw, head football coach for the last eight years. The announcement said that in view of the war curtailed schedule it was felt to be to the best interests of Shaw and the university that his contract be terminated.

'Twas Ever Thus.

Before the children reached their teens,
It was a different thing.
But now it's never meant for me,
Should the phone bell start to ring.

Friends used to call us now and then,
But now they have no chance;
The phone is busy all the time
With puppy love romance.

I used to answer every call,
But now I hesitate,
It's usually for sister
About her dancing date.

Or brother's going fishing,
And some one wants to know
If he has found his fish pole,
And is he set to go.

Some day, when they've all married,
And gone out on their own,
I'll have to start all over,
And learn to use the phone.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

Lured by Jim Tobin's butterfly pitch, the Cubs wandered back into the National league cellar yesterday after 24 hours of seventh place luxury. Handsome Jim, the 1944 no hit specialist, worked his magic so successfully on Charley Grimm's innocents that they were in a giddy trance until the ninth, the Braves in the meantime lathering a trio of Cub mound workers so neatly that a 7 to 2 victory was fabricated.

For quite a stretch the foxy Mr. Tobin had the Cubs fearing he might be up to another of his hitless tricks, of which he has two for the year. He not only had a no hitter, but a perfect game, until one man was out in the sixth when he lost both on a sudden streak of wildness and an infield hit. Then he was assaulted for two hits in the eighth—one a scratch—and in the ninth, with nothing to worry about, cheered up his hapless foes a bit by letting 'em put on a two-run, four-hit jamboree.

Erickson Has a Rough Day.

Paul Erickson was officially in the party just long enough to see his pals escape the no-hit threat in the sixth. However, Big Paul didn't have to wait that long to see the Braves' first hit. In fact, there was no wait at all. He was bashed for one safety in the first inning and another in the second, the latter driving in two runs.

The violence continued thru the remainder of his term, two more scoring. Then Dale Alderson was clipped for two runs in the seventh, a contributing factor being a fumble by Stan Hack. Hy Vandenberg surrendered the seventh run in the ninth.

Erickson made the mistake of passing Buck Etchison and Dambn Phillips in the second inning. Whitey Wietelmann then tripled and that's how the first two runs scored. In the fourth, Wietelmann beat out a bunt and Mr. Tobin, who also wields a mean bat, doubled him home.

Ryan's a Busy Fellow.

The other run off Erickson developed in the fifth on singles by Connie Ryan and Phil Masi. Ryan also singled in the seventh. He scored on Hack's error which should have been the third out, and Masi, the beneficiary of the error, counted on Phillips' single. Butch Nieman's single and Masi's double induced Vandenberg to give up his run in the ninth.

The Cubs' attack got under way when Dewey Williams walked with one out in the sixth. With two out, Hack also walked, and Roy Hughes broke the no hit spell by beating out a roller to Wietelmann in deep short.

The next assault on the butterfly pitch was clean. Williams punched a double to left center in the eighth, after which Hack got into the argument with a scratch roller past Tobin. Then Phil Cavarretta beat out a hit to open the ninth. Legitimate singles by Dom Dallessandro, Andy Pafko, and Don Johnson followed to eliminate the shutout threat.

Foxx Dropped from Cubs' Player List; Made Coach

Jim Foxx, one time famous home run hitter, was moved from the Cubs' active list to the role of a coach yesterday.

FILLY SEEKS NINTH STRAIGHT

GOLFERS OPEN ILLINOIS STATE TOURNEY TODAY

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

The 14th annual Illinois state amateur tournament of the Chicago District Golf association will be opened today over its 1942 site—the Mount Hawley Country club of Peoria—with a field of 60 of the state's leading swingers entered.

Storekeeper 1st Class Mike Stolarik, who won the 1943 title at Springfield, will not be able to defend his championship, since he has been transferred from the Great Lakes naval training center. However, Harold Foreman Jr. of Chicago's Lake Shore club, runner-up to Stolarik last summer, and Jim Frisina, winner of the 1942 crown over the same Mount Hawley agriculture, will be on hand.

Qualifying Test Today.

Today's program will consist of 36 holes of medal play to determine the 32 qualifiers in the championship flight. The remainder of the field will enter subsidiary flights of 16 each.

Among the other entries are Gus Moreland, Peoria, former western amateur star and Walker cup player, who won the 1943 qualifying medal; Gus Novotny, Butterfield veteran; Lt. Columbus Gaetano, Gardiner hospital, who has returned from 25 months' overseas duty; Frank Kovack, Waukegan; Bob Cochran, Belleville; Dante Vicini, Chicago, and Ken Detweiler, Dixon.

Many Stars Entered.

Other stars include:

BY FRANK MASTRO.

Pep, who captured every one of 10 rounds in his debut in this city against Frankie Rubino of Brooklyn, sparred three rounds and then put away his training togs. He will take things easy today, planning to do his chief relaxing a tthe game in Wrigley field this afternoon.

Hopes to Gain Weight.

Willie is being given the holiday in an effort to gain a couple of pounds. The 22 year old ex-sailor from Hartford, Conn., weighed only 126¾ pounds in scoring his 11th straight victory and his 73d in 74 fights at the expense of Rubino in the Coliseum two months ago. That mark is two pounds less than he expects to be against Joyce.

Completes Drills Today.

Joyce, the 1937 Chicago intercity Golden Gloves title holder, ended boxing drills in the Coliseum Annex gymnasium yesterday by going five rounds with Johnny Bratton, also a Golden Gloves alumnus. He will complete drills today with light exercises.

Willie appeared in excellent form. Joyce was given a disputed verdict over Henry Armstrong in Chicago Stadium on June 2. Regardless of the merits of the award, however, Willie must be given credit for waging a smart defensive battle, strategy he probably will not have to use against Rep.

Charity Meet 3 Day Handle Is $4,252,007

BY WILFRID SMITH.

Chicago's Charity week race meeting sponsored by The Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc., continues to establish records at Washington Park. The impetus of capacity crowds and successive Illinois state betting records on Monday and Tuesday carried over for yesterday's program when 14,000 turf enthusiasts wagered $830,319.

This attendance was more surprising to the Washington Park officials than the crowd which jammed the track Monday, for on the comparable day last year, the program following the annual Stars and Stripes handicap, only 5,865 were present. The mutuel handle that day was $278,592.

Total Passes $4,000,000.

Chicago's needy, of course, will be the recipients of the largesse of the race fans. With yesterday's handle, $4,252,007 has been wagered in three days of the charity meet. On Monday a state mutuel record of $1,681,395 was established only to be broken Tuesday when $1,740,293 was bet.

First race	$ 58,832
Daily double	45,080
Second race	84,048
Third race	102,574
Fourth race	99,297
Fifth race	116,900
Sixth race	106,831
Seventh race	103,143
Eighth race	113,614

The last business session of the annual convention of the National Association of State Racing Commissioners will be held at 10 a. m. today in the Stevens hotel. Leslie Combs II., chairman of the Kentucky racing commission, will discuss uniformity of racing rules. Benjamin F. Lindheimer, executive director of Arlington and Washington Parks, will speak on stewards and their responsibilites.

International Angles.

James Heffering, president of the Incorporated Canadian Racing association, and Oscar Obregon, member of the Federal Racing commission of Mexico, will discuss international coöperation for racing. Officers will be elected before adjournment and the commissioners will attend the races this afternoon.

In the evening the commissioners and guests will gather in the north ballroom of the Stevens for the testimonial dinner to John L. Hervey, known thruout the world as the dean of American writers on matters pertaining to the American thorobred and as the outstanding historian of racing in this country. Much of his writing has appeared under the nom de plume "Salvator," a pen name he has used for almost a half century. Hervey began his career as a turf writer in 1886. Chicago has been his home since 1892.

Underwood Will Preside.

Tom Underwood, editor of the Lexington, Ky., Herald-Leader and secretary of the association, will be the toastmaster. Other guests include Dr. Charles E. Hagyard, noted veterinarian and president of the Thorobred Club of America; Alex Robb, secretary of the Thorobred Racing associations; Harry Wooster Smith, internationally famous sportsman, author, and financier, who will be the principal speaker; Chris J. Fitzgerald, veteran turf official; Wayne Dinsmore, secretary of the Horse and Mule Association of America; Del Holeman, Howard Oots, Henry H. Knight, Thomas Platt, A. B. Gay, William Helis, Charles T. Fischer, Crispin Oglebay, J. A. Bell, R. W. McIlvain, Maj. Tom McCreery, and other prominent horsemen and owners; J. A. Estes, editor of the Blood Horse; Neville Dunn, editor of the Thorobred Record; Edgar Horn, editor of Turf Digest; Herbert Bayard Swope, chairman of the New York racing commission and head of the T. R. A.; Harry Parr, president of Pimlico; John Swisher, secretary of the Jockeys' guild, and Mort Shaw, director of mutuels at Arlington and Washington Parks.

Athletics Buy Infielder from Indianapolis Club

Indianapolis, Ind., July 5 (AP).—Secretary Al Schlensker or the Indianapolis Indians announced tonight that the American association club has sold Second Baseman Joe Burns to the Philadelphia Athletics. Burns played 58 games with the Indians, hit 70 times in 232 trips to the plate for an average of .302.

TWILIGHT TEAR, OCCUPY LOOM AS TOP RIVALS

Skokie Entries

SEVEN 3 year olds were named overnight in the $10,000 added Skokie handicap, to be contested today over seven furlongs at Washington Park. The field in order of post positions follows:

Horse.	Wt.	Jockey.	Odds.
Occupy	121	O. Grohs	8-5
*Pensive	126	F.A.Smith	6-5
Birde	114	G. Woolf	8-1
Twixt	104	S. Brooks	20-1
*Twilight Tear	121	No boy	6-5
Zaspet	104	W.Morrissey	15-1
Challenge Me	106	A.Skoronski	20-1

BY MAURICE SHEVLIN.

Trainer Ben Jones of the Calumet farm's string of racing headliners made a surprise move yesterday and entered Pensive as a running mate for Twilight Tear in today's $10,000 added Skokie handicap, feature of the fourth day of Charity week at Washington Park under the sponsorship of The Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc.

The addition of the Kentucky Derby and Preakness winner, which failed to get going in the $50,350 Stars and Stripes handicap Independence day and finished fourth in Georgie Drum's surprising victory, raised the number of starters in the Skokie to seven and established the Warren Wright entry as a 6 to 5 favorite.

Occupy Ready to Go.

Next in line is John Marsch's speedy Occupy, winner last year of the Washington Park and Belmont Futurities and fit and ready to make his first start of the year a successful effort. Occupy is a full brother to Occupation, the Futurity specialist of 1942 and top sprinter of the present season. At the moment, however, there is much more interest in Twilight Tear, the champion 3 year old filly, which will seek her ninth straight victory of the 1944 campaign and her 13th triumph in 16 starts in two years of racing.

Pensive will carry top weight of 126 pounds, while Twilight Tear and Occupy have been assigned equal weights of 121.

Bright Willie, a 5 year old from the stables of Creech and McIlvain, won as he pleased by five lengths in yesterday's featured race, the $3,000 Stagehand for 4 year olds and upward at one mile. Freddy Smith was the rider. A. S. Higgins' Quizzle, with Jess Higley up, took second by a neck from Happy Hour farm's Martian, ridden by Tony Skoronski.

Six horses went to the post and Bright Willie, the 2 to 1 favorite, paid $5.80, $3.60, $2.60. Quizzle refunded $7.80 and $4.20, and Martian $3.80.

Two More Riders Suspended.

The stewards cracked the whip again and Jockeys Skronski and Dunice Dubois were suspended for 10 days each—Tony for his failure to keeep the victorious Sir Lo straight in the stretch in the first race and Dubois for crossing over too sharply with Wise Admiral at the start of the fourth. They join Conn McCreary, who is sitting out the remainder of the Arlington Park meeting for foul riding.

A couple of outsiders won to open the eight race program and the daily double paid $165.60 for each $2 ticket. Skoronski brought Mrs. John Purpura's Sir Lo into the winner's circle in the first, a 6 furlong sprint for 3 year olds, and the winner's price was $17.40. Lestabert took the place and Valdina Seer the show in an 11 horse field.

P. Kelley's old timer, Float Away, with Robert Campbell up, accounted for the second race, another sprint, and a $2 ticket was worth $19.80. Flaming Chance was second and Prince Sang third.

Grohs Wins on Big Push.

Col. C. V. Whitney's Big Push, with Otto Grohs up, took care of the $2,000 Iron Mask purse, fifth race on the card, a six furlong sprint for 3 year old fillies. The daughter of Peace Chance finished three-quarters of a length in front of the favored Miss U. S. O.

Can the All-Stars Do It Again?

The professional champions had won four straight when the College All-Stars whipped the Washington Redskins last year, 27 to 7.

The All-Stars, on the night of Aug. 30, in Dyche Stadium, Evanston, will be trying to topple the Chicago Bears, three time winners in this series.

$6.60, $4.40, $3.30 and $2.20

Send your orders to the All-Star Football Ticket Manager, Tribune Tower, Chicago, Ill., and make checks or money orders payable to Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc. To expedite mailing, please include self-addressed envelope.

CARDS' 3D INNING SPLURGE BEATS GIANTS, 4 TO 1

Munger Wins Eleventh Game of Season.

St. Louis, Mo., July 5—(AP).—The league leading St. Louis Cardinals extended their winning streak to seven games tonight with a 4 to 1 victory over the New York Giants.

George Munger, pitching what probably was his next to last game before entering the army next Tuesday, marked up his 11th triumph of the year. He has been beaten only twice.

FRED L. MILLS FUNERAL IS SET FOR TOMORROW

Death Takes Pioneer in Juke Box Field.

Services for Fred L. Mills, president of the Mills Industries, Inc., who died yesterday in Delnor hospital, St. Charles, after an illness of more than a year, will be held in the family residence on Dean st., St. Charles, at 2:30 p. m. tomorrow.

Fred L. Mills.

A pioneer in automatic machinery business, Mr. Mills was credited with developing juke boxes, soft drink dispensers, and many other coin operated devices. The company, at one time one of the largest manufacturers of slot machines, makes war products.

Succeeded Father in Post.

Mr. Mills, who was 49, became president of the concern after the death of his father, Herbert S. Mills, in 1929. The name of the company was changed from the Mills Novelty company to its present form last year.

Mr. Mills attended Notre Dame university and studied law at the University of Illinois. He was a member of several athletic associations and the St. Charles Country club.

Widow, Daughters Survive.

Surviving are his widow, Isabelle, a son, Lt. Fred L. Mills Jr., and two daughters, Mrs. Paul E. Blower of Ann Arbor, Mich., and Marcia Isabelle Mills. Three brothers, Ralph, Herbert, and David Mills, all officials of the Mills company, and four sisters also survive.

TEST SUIT FILED IN EXCLUSION OF JAPS FROM WEST

Los Angeles, Cal., July 5 [Special].—Charging that military authorities have no legal power to enforce exclusion of loyal American born Japanese from the Pacific coast area, the American Civil Liberties union today filed an injunction suit in behalf of three Japanese-American citizens against Maj. Gen. Charles H. Bonesteel, western defense commander.

The suit is a test case. It is the first of its kind filed since the apparent danger of military action by Japan against California has passed.

The plaintiffs in the suit are Shizuko Shiramizu, widow of Kiyoshi Shiramizu, native born Japanese, who was wounded in Italy and awarded the Purple Heart; Masaru Bada, who was honorably discharged from the army in 1942, and George O. Chikubo, a farmer-dentist who is now in the Topaz, Utah, relocation center.

The suit contends that there is no further military necessity which would justify the exclusion of the plaintiffs or other loyal American born Japanese from California. Superior Judge Emmet H. Wilson issued an order to show cause on a temporary injunction to be heard July 21.

LANDLORD GOES TO JAIL FOR HIS RENT GOUGING

Otto Hough Willard, 50, a public school fireman for 18 years who recently took a job in a war plant, surrendered yesterday to Chief Deputy United States Marshal Joseph Tobin to start serving a 60 day jail sentence imposed by District Judge Elwyn R. Shaw for contempt of court.

He was held guilty of contempt after testifying that tenants had signed leases for apartments in his building at $50 a month and three tenants had sworn that the signatures were forgeries and that the rent actually had been $40 a month. The building is at 3431-33 Congress st.

Judge Shaw awarded the three complainants triple damages of $2,430 and attorney's fees for the rental overcharge for 22 months. Altho Willard's daughter, Mrs. Laura Miller, 25, also was sentenced to jail for 30 days for corroborating her father's testimony, a motion to vacate her sentence was continued.

C. J. Peck, 56, Dies Here; Owner of Tri-Cities Clubs

Charles J. Peck, 56, of Moline, died yesterday in St. Luke's hospital after an operation. He operated the Belmont clubs in Moline and Rock Island which were raided by ministers and police last November. A month later he pleaded guilty in County court in Moline to three gambling charges growing out of bookmaking activities at the clubs.

Woman, Recovering, Says Wound Is Self-Inflicted

Mrs. Rosalie Ord, 25, of 3335 Diversey av. was recovering yesterday in Belmont hospital from a bullet wound in the shoulder which she admitted was self-inflicted. Mrs. Ord is a telephone operator and the wife of a soldier stationed in the Pacific theater.

OBITUARIES

Mrs. Azubah E. Perkins.

Services for Mrs. Azubah Elizabeth Perkins, 99, a volunteer nurse in the Civil war, will be held at 2 p. m. tomorrow in St. Mary's Episcopal church, Park Ridge. Mrs. Perkins died Tuesday in the home of her granddaughter, Mrs. A. J. Buchheit, 511 Park pl., Park Ridge. Born in Rushville, N. Y., Mrs. Perkins came west in a covered wagon with her parents. On her 99th birthday last Nov. 6 she said she last consulted a doctor in 1875. She met her husband, the late George F. Perkins, when he was one of her Civil war soldier patients. Besides Mrs. Buchheit she leaves a great-granddaughter, Ensign Betty Buchheit, U. S. N., of Washington, D. C.

George G. Otto.

St. Louis, Mo., July 5 (AP).—George G. Otto, 49, originator of the national waste paper salvage campaign and an officer of the Alton, Ill., Box Board company, died yesterday. He devised the waste paper salvage program before war was declared and formed a national committee to conduct the campaign. In 1943 he was director of the paper board division of the war production board.

VACCINE FOUND THAT PREVENTS POLIO IN MICE

Announcement of a new vaccine against infantile paralysis, developed by three Chicago physicians, which has proved successful in experiments on mice, is contained in the forthcoming issue of the Journal of the American Medical association.

The report is presented by Drs. Albert Milzer, Franz Oppenheimer and Sidney O. Levinson of the Samuel Deutsch Serum center of the Michael Reese hospital and the Michael Reese Research foundation, who recently announced a new technique for preparing vaccines against viruses and bacteria. The technique consists of first inactivating the disease producing organisms by exposure to rays from a special ultraviolet lamp developed by the Chicago group.

The mouse strain virus, the report states, is completely inactivated in from one-half to two-thirds of a second. Mice inoculated with it do not contract paralysis, but develop specific neutralizing anti-bodies that protect them against subsequent inoculations. Mr. Milzer said last night that the experiments on mice have given rise to hope that the vaccine may be successful in immunizing humans.

The will of Edward J. Hughes, Illinois secretary of state who died in New York, June 28, was filed in Probate court yesterday leaving an estate of approximately $40,500 to his widow, Winifred, and their daughter, Mary Elizabeth, 19, a student at Maryville College for Girls, St. Louis, Mo.

The estate included $20,000 in personal property and a $20,500 home in Springfield, Ill. The residence was left to Mrs. Hughes. She and her daughter will share equally in the remainder of the estate.

DI MAGGIO—Maria Di Maggio, 1942.
Now that you live in God's green pastures,
And are lost to Life's cruel ways,
We will not complain of your happiness,
But just of our lonely days.
LOVING FAMILY.

SCHNAEKEL—Amanda M. Schnaekel.
Loving and kind in all her ways,
Upright and just to the end of her days;
Sincere and true in her heart and mind,
A beautiful memory she left behind.
She had a nature you could not help loving,
A heart that was purer than gold;
And to those who knew her and loved her,
Her memory will never grow cold.
LOVING HUSBAND AND SON.

HOGS ADVANCE 5 TO 10 CENTS AS RECEIPTS DROP

Some Butchers Higher; Orders Unfilled.

Another reduction in volume sent the market for hogs up mostly 5 to 10 cents a hundred pounds at the Chicago Stock yards yesterday. Some of the heaviest butchers showed gains of as much as 15 to 25 cents in late trades when some orders could not be filled because of the short supply.

Buyers paid a 5 cent higher average of $12.90, equal to the highest daily cost in eight weeks. The practical top for the session was $13.85 for full carloads, 10 cents above the floor. One small lot reached $13.90.

Hog Prices to Improve.

Members of the trade forecast general impovement in the hog raisers' position during July, but said that some weights cannot rise more than 25 cents above their present level because of the $14 ceiling for all hogs over 240 pounds. Stock weighing 240 pounds and below can rise to $14.75 without violating OPA ceiling rules.

Most good hogs weighing 180 to 270 pounds sold at the $13.75 floor price, and 280 to 325 pounders brought $12 to $12.50. Sows weighing 300 to 500 pounds brought $10.90 to $11.30.

Cattle Declines Extended.

The general cattle market continued to weaken. Declines ranged to 25 cents for many classes of steers, with weakness reaching into the $17 price bracket near the close. Cows dipped 15 to 25 cents.

BRANDS MONEY SCHEME WORLD INFLATION SEED

Flouts Old Lessons, Rep. Dewey Says.

BY THOMAS FURLONG.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Bretton Woods, N. H., July 5.—Charles S. Dewey, Republican congressman from Chicago, today declared that adoption of the program under consideration here at the world monetary conference would bring about world-wide inflation.

Rep. Dewey.

Earlier, Harry D. White, official spokesman for the parley, replying to critics of the 8 billion dollar stabilization fund and the 10 billion dollar world bank, told newsmen that the foreign currencies that would be put into the fund would be "just as good as gold."

Dewey appeared as an accredited observer of the conference, representing the post-war economic policy and planning committee of the house of representatives. He was accorded the privileges of an observer by the state department at the request of the house committee.

Lessons of Last War Ignored.

Dewey said the technicians of the United States treasury and other nations who drafted the plans for the world bank and stabilization fund ignored experience gained after the last war.

"The United States will be pouring billions of dollars into these two projects without any assurance that the nations to be benefited will put their monetary affairs on a sound basis," he said. "There is no compulsion on the recipients of these billions to put their affairs in order.

"On the other hand, the foreign countries are talking in grandiose terms about their plans to create full employment in their countries after the war. They will not submit to the necessary adjustments that would put their economic affairs on a sound basis."

Predicts Loss of Prestige.

Dewey said that altho the United States will contribute most of the money to these schemes, it is likely to emerge with lessened prestige. "When we finally shut off the money, we will not be thanked for what we have contributed," he said. "We will be condemned for not putting more money into the pot."

Dewey has a resolution pending before the house proposing that the United States set up a 500 million dollars revolving fund out of which loans could be made to foreign countries to stabilize exchange rates after the war. The fund also would be empowered to make longer term reconstruction loans. The fund would remain under United States control. When a foreign country asked for a loan this country would be in a position to tell that country on what conditions the loan would be made.

Under the proposals pending at this conference the United States would put up the largest share of Chicago Corp. Adds to Texas Gas Interests

Chicago corporation has extended its interests in southwestern gas fields in preparation for the operation of a 1,263 mile pipeline from Texas to the Appalachian industrial area, it was learned yesterday. A one-half interest in 6,400 acres in the Menfee gas field of Texas was purchased from the Salt Dome Oil corporation and the Pan American Production company.

Terms of the purchase were not announced, but are subject to approval by the Reconstruction Finance corporation, which is advancing 44 million dollars for the construction of the 51 million dollar line.

Follows Similar Purchases.

The Menfee field is on the line of the Tennessee Gas and Transmission company, controled by Chicago corporation. The purchase follows similar transactions designed to supplement supplies of gas to be piped thru the Tennessee line from Chicago corporation gas fields near Corpus Christi, Tex.

Chicago corporation and Pan American, which is controled by Standard Oil Company of Indiana, also purchased a 50 per cent interest in two completed gas wells owned by Salt Dome.

Under the agreement, Tennessee would purchase a minimum of 10 million cubic feet of gas daily from the Menfee area, paying 5 to 7½ cents per 1,000 cubic feet over a 20 year period and begin deliveries about Jan. 1, 1945.

Term Reserves Moderate.

Chicago corporation officials described the newly acquired gas reserves as of moderate size, with an expected life of 36 years at the contemplated rate of withdrawal.

Work was said to be ahead of schedule on the seven compressor stations along the Tennessee line, which are being built at a cost of 1½ million dollars each. Already 430 miles of pipe are under ground and officials said they hoped to have the line in operation early in October.

EARNINGS OF MAJOR CHICAGO BANKS RISE IN FIRST HALF OF '44

Indicated earnings of principal Chicago banks increased in the first six months of 1944, figures issued in response to the calls for condition of banks as of June 30 showed.

Continental Illinois National Bank and Trust company had indicated earnings of $7,413,229, equal to $4.12 a share, against $6,693,203, or $3.72 a share in the first half of 1943. Per share earnings for both periods are based on 1,800,000 shares, altho 300,000 fewer were outstanding a year ago.

The First National bank does not issue six month earnings reports, but bank sources indicated net income was about 4 million dollars, or $8 a share, about 20 per cent ahead of last year.

Indicated earnings of other downtown banks were: Northern Trust company, $450,000, equal to $15 a share, against $426,915, or $14.23 a share a year ago; City National Bank and Trust company, $369,000, equal to $9.23 a share, compared with $281,436, or $7.04 a share; American National Bank and Trust company, $248,000, equal to $12.40 a share, against $247,977, or $12.39 a share a year ago.

BROAD DEMAND SENDS STOCKS TO NEW PEAKS

Steels, Motors, Air Lines Advance.

New York, July 5 (AP).—The holiday recess provided the stock market with a good backlog of buying today which, plus a buoyant rise in United States Steel, enabled the general list to extend its advance to new seven year highs.

Buying sentiment was stimulated by Steel's sprightly opening, a 5,000 share transaction at 62, up 1.

Groups most active on the broad demand were the steels, motors, air transports, communications, gold mines, utilities, coppers, specialties, and oils. Final gains ranged from fractions to about 2 points. The rails showed early progress, but faltered near the close. Some industrials retreated from their best levels in the final hour.

Volume Shows Confidence.

Brokers again associated the buying with the great volume of idle money, good war news, political hopes, and general confidence as to post-war business prospects.

The Associated Press 60 stock composite moved up 0.2 point to 56.0, a record since October, 1937.

Up 1 to 2 points were American Airlines, Western Union A, Oliver Farm, Dow Chemical, Johns-Manville, United Air Lines, and Pan-American Airways.

BOND LIST ADVANCES.

New York, July 5 (AP).—The bond market moved up fractions to more than a point today with rails leading both in gains and volume.

The market started with a sizable volume of buying orders accumulated during the holiday and except in a few cases maintained the higher trend up to the close.

CHICAGO STOCKS GAIN.

Prices on the Chicago Stock exchange advanced yesterday as volume rose to 73,000 shares. Among the most active issues were United States steel common, up 1⅝, and Libby McNeil and Libby, up ⅝. Pullman, up 2⅛, and United States Rubber, up 1⅛, were among the 33 new highs.

ASSAILS METAL AND MINERALS CONTROL BY U. S.

Washington, D. C., July 5 (AP).—A senate subcommittee today asserted that much of the production of war minerals and metals has been achieved "by luck, main strength, and awkwardness."

It said there had been an "extraordinary lack of over-all direction and coördination" and that many government agencies concerned with strategic minerals and metals still are "operating independently and with a vast disregard of each other."

The statements were made in a preliminary report of the subcommittee on mining and minerals to the special small business committee. Sen. Scrugham [D., Nev.] is the subcommittee chairman. The report was released at this time primarily for study by the mining industry and is subject to revision before being submitted formally to the senate.

Weasel in Action

The M-29 personnel and supply carrier traversing rough terrain in an army test.

'Weasel,' Fast Snow Buggy, Takes a Bow

A versatile new type of military vehicle—known as the "Weasel"—has been in secret production at the Studebaker corporation plant in South Bend for almost two years, H. S. Vance, chairman of the board, disclosed yesterday. His statement came simultaneously with an announcement by the ordnance department, army service forces, which described the new transportation unit as "designed either for arctic reconnaissance or commando raids."

Known officially as the M-29 cargo carrier, but nicknamed the "Weasel" because of its ability to strike swiftly and stealthily, the track-laying conveyance is said to be capable of operation over a greater variety of terrain than any other vehicle. It will operate in snow, deep mud, swamp land, sand, or on paved highways.

Rides on Broad Tracks.

The key to the Weasel's ability to negotiate ground surfaces impassable to other vehicles is light weight combined with broad tracks, Vance said. Tracks, extending the full length of a low slung body, are rubber padded.

The unit is powered by a standard six cylinder Studebaker Champion engine and incorporates other features proved on passenger cars, in addition to several mechanical improvements. Thousands of Weasels have been manufactured on converted automobile assembly lines for use both in winter and summer combat areas. For operation in snow countries, the units are camouflaged in black and white.

Deep Snow Is Problem.

The history of the Weasel began in May, 1942, when army officials, seeking a vehicle to transport troops and supplies over deep snow, presented the problem to Studebaker. They imposed restrictions as to weight and size, and outlined tentatively the over-all design and performance standards. The first experminetal job was ready in 34 days.

As work progressed, parts and even complete vehicles were flown between the factory and testing sites, where office of scientic research and development, military, and Studebaker technicians conducted exhaustive experiments. After completing these tests, Studebaker submitted to the war department plans for a completely new vehicle, the one now in production.

BY AL CHASE.

Building construction of all types in Chicago the first half of 1944 was more than three times as large as in the same period last year, Paul Gerhardt Jr., building commissioner, reported yesterday. For the first half of 1944 the value of permits issued for buildings totaled $14,793,008 compared with $3,995,460 last year.

Home building the first half of this year also showed a wide advance over the corresponding period last year. Permits were issued for 2,852 home units, valued at $9,844,403 compared with 611 units, costing $1,419,742 last year, a gain of nearly 700 per cent in dollar value.

Family Dwellings Lead.

Single family dwellings still lead apartment and row house projects in popularity. Up to July 1 permits were issued for 1,467 one family homes and for 1,385 units in flats and row houses against 321 single family homes and 290 apartment and row house units last year.

In June 434 permits were issued for buildings of all types valued at $3,114,518 compared with 89 permits issued last year for structures costing $556,568. Compared with May, 1944, last month's permits were smaller in number but larger in value. May's totals were 495 permits, at $3,026,553.

Home Building Gains.

Home building made a big gain last month compared with June, 1943. Permits were issued for 511 home units, costing $1,742,070, compared with only 116 home unit permits in June, 1943, valued at $332,550.

Last month's home building permits showed a drop in both number and value as compared with May, 1944. In that month 593 permits were issued for home units valued at $2,037,836.

January	$ 1,500,768	$ 712,730
February	2,566,840	456,242
March	2,366,517	314,000
April	2,217,812	967,500
May	3,026,553	988,420
June	3,114,518	556,568
	$14,793,008	$3,995,460

Union Contract Change Asked to Protect Vets

Buffalo, N. Y., July 5 (AP).—Bell Aircraft corporation is seeking an amendment to its contract with the CIO United Automobile workers to prevent discharge of more than 50 recently hired war veterans in company layoffs because of their lack of seniority, Local 501 of the UAW-CIO has asked the union's international for a ruling on the matter, the company said today. It said changing requirements of the army air forces are necessitating some reduction in personnel.

COERCIVE SALE CHARGE LAID TO NEW DEAL BIAS

Packers Deny Use of 'Tie-In' Selling.

The government yesterday accused three large Chicago packing companies of coercive sales practices in violation of the emergency price control act, touching off a counter charge by one of the officials that the New Deal has shown "vindictive prejudice" against big business.

"Tie-In" Methods Charged.

Their salesmen compelled butchers to purchase secondary cuts of meats and unwelcome quantities of luncheon meats, sausage, and dog food in order to receive choice cuts of beef, pork, and lamb, the complaint alleged.

John Holmes, president of Swift & Co., termed the charges "absolutely untrue" and said his company's strict adherence to the law could be proved to any "unprejudiced person."

"I am at a loss to understand the cause for these unwarranted attacks," he said. "I can ascribe them only to a lack of understanding of business transactions and a vindictive prejudice against large business. It is distressing that with the unavoidable problems created by the war, we should have to meet this persecution."

Armour Head Denies Charge.

Holmes' denial followed that of George A. Eastwood, president of Armour & Co., who said: "When the office of price administration issued its regulations against 'tie-in' sales all Armour salesmen were promptly instructed to conform. We have no doubt that they did so and when and if court action results from today's filing of informations the evidence will show that our representatives obeyed our instructions and that they should be cleared of the charges made."

In filing criminal information, the government avoided going before a grand jury to seek indictments. United States Atty. J. Albert Woll and his assistant, Francis J. McGreal, who prepared the action, said that 89 specific violations had been uncovered out of many more complaints made by butchers.

Conviction under each of the 89 counts carries a maximum fine of $5,000, or a possible penalty of $445,000. No charge of ceiling price violation is involved, the case being

HOSPITAL GETS $5,000 GIFT OF RADIO WORKERS

Employes of the Hallicrafters company yesterday presented a gift of $5,000 to Brig. Gen. P. J. Carroll, commanding general of Vaughan General hospital, Hines, Ill., for any designated use at the hospital. Half the amount represented wages for two extra hours worked on D-day, contributed by the employes, and the other half would have been used for the company's annual picnic, which employes voted to forgo this year. The company manufactures radio communications equipment.

HOSPITAL CARS BEING BUILT BY ARMY FOR INVASION CASUALTIES

Washington, D. C., July 5 (AP).—The war department announced today that 100 new unit type hospital cars are being built for the army by the American Car and Foundry company, to be placed in service in September, "before invasion casualties in large numbers reach the United States." The army also is converting 120 ward cars and ward dressing cars to unit type cars with built-in kitchens to be used when dining cars are not available.

UNITED STATES OF MEXICO

NOTICE OF

Interest Payment on External Public Debt

Payment of the July 1, 1944 interest coupon (No. 3) will be made at the office of the undersigned at 70 Wall Street, New York, N. Y. to all holders of any issues of the External Public Debt of the United States of Mexico who have assented to the terms of an agreement dated November 5, 1942 between United Mexican States and International Committee of Bankers on Mexico and who surrender their coupons for payment.

Holders of securities of the External Public Debt of the United States of Mexico who have not previously accepted the offer of the Mexican Government for the resumption of service on a modified basis as set forth in the terms of said Agreement, but who now desire to accept said offer, may deposit their securities with the undersigned, provided said securities have been duly registered as to non-enemy ownership under the Mexican Decree. Letters of Transmittal for assenting to the terms of said Agreement and for obtaining fiscal payments thereunder, including payment of the July 1, 1943 and January 1, 1944 coupons, may be obtained from the undersigned upon request.

Further information may be obtained from the undersigned or from counsel for the Mexican Government and the Fiscal Agent, Messrs. Hardin, Hess & Eder, 74 Trinity Place, New York, N. Y.

GRAINS ADVANCE ON RUMOR U. S. UPHOLDS WHEAT

Government buying mistakenly believed to be a move to bolster wheat prices caused a rally yesterday of 2½ to 3¾ cents a bushel from early lows and closing sales on the Chicago Board of Trade were up 1⅝ to 2⅝ cents, July leading. An early break had carried July contracts off about 1 cent to $1.54⅝, the lowest since November.

Later information from Washington, D. C., said wheat purchases by the Commodity Credit corporation were made under a live stock feed-wheat purchase program begun more than a year ago to help relieve feed shortages in deficit feed areas. No new program for supporting wheat prices has been ordered, CCC officials said.

Buy at Market Prices.

Government purchases are made at market prices, and such purchases if large tend to boost prices, officials said. They refused to say what quantity they expected to buy in the future.

Prior to the rumor, which was labeled an administration attempt to fulfill partly the provisions of the price control extension act, the markets showed a heavy undertone on large receipts. More than 20 million bushels have been received this week at primary and subterminal markets.

Other Grains Follow Wheat.

Other grains were dominated by the action of wheat. Oats rallied 2½ to 2¾ cents and rye, 2¾ to 2⅞ cents from early lows with the close about the top. Oats gained 1 to 1⅞ cents; rye 1⅞ to 2 cents, and barley 1½ to 2 cents.

Harvesting of winter wheat is progressing rapidly, but the corn needs rain. Near Terre Haute, Ind., oats harvesting was under way.

Canada lowered the duty on oats exported to the United States 1 cent to 45 cents a bushel.

CASH GRAIN PRICES

Estimated receipts of cash grain at Chicago Wednesday: Wheat, 146 cars; corn, 204; oats, 2; rye, 11; barley, 16; soybeans, 7. Range of cash grain prices per bu in leading markets:

Commodities

Cotton futures closed $1.25 to $1.95 a bale higher at New York yesterday after successive trade and commission house buying found offerings scarce. Traders attributed gains to the increased Commodity Credit corporation selling price which is in line with recently passed legislation calling for a full parity value on raw cotton. A private forecast of low cotton acreage also aided the upturn.

MONETARY PLAN BRANDED WORLD INFLATION SEED

the money for post-war stabilization and reconstruction, but would have only a minority voice in determining the conditions on which loans would be made.

Held New Deal Inflation.

Dewey termed the stabilization fund and the world bank mere extensions of the Roosevelt administration's inflationary fiscal policies to a world-wide basis.

That Dewey will be given the privilege of attending all meetings of the conference is expected. Fred M. Vinson, acting chairman of the conference in the absence of Secretary of Treasury Morgenthau, will submit this question to a vote tomorrow.

Major controversies may develop on two principal provisions of the international monetary fund. One relates to the quotas of individual countries. White said today no agreement has been reached on the initial quotas to be put into the fund. Yesterday he had predicted an agreement would be reached soon on this question.

Would Raise Purchase Quota.

A second question centered on an amendment offered to the original proposal of the experts which would increase the amount of foreign currency a country might purchase from the fund in any one year from 25 per cent of the country's quota to 33 per cent. The United States is reported to be opposed to this change which is favored by delegates from Australia, Brazil, and France.

At his press conference, White sought to allay fears that this country would run the risk of losing its vast stake in the world bank and stabilization fund without achieving world financial stability. He argued the fund would always be worth 8 billion dollars regardless of the character of the currencies it holds.

This is one of the vital points on which many responsible critics believe the fund may break down. They have pointed out that demand for dollars when the war ends will be large. Almost immediately, it is expected, the dollars in the fund will become scarce as other participating countries put their currencies into the fund to obtain dollar exchange.

Adequate Guards Planned.

White said that adequate safeguards are planned to prevent the fund from being loaded up with worthless currencies. One provision provides that if the currency of any member country depreciates below the official rate fixed by agreement that country will be called upon to put up additional currency to make up for the depreciation, he said.

At the same time White warned that the fund will not perform miracles. "It is no substitute for a bad commercial policy on the part of the United States or any other participating country," he said. By bad commercial policy White said he meant a policy that gave a continued favorable balance of trade to any one country.

SHIPPER'S RIGHT TO ASSEMBLING RATE EXPANDED

Washington, D. C., July 5 (AP).—A shipper or association of shippers which sends goods to a central point to be consolidated into carload lots may under certain circumstances be defined legally as a "freight consolidator" and given the benefit of "assembling rates," the interestate commerce commission decided today.

This privilege customarily has been reserved for freight forwarders, companies which act as transportation agents for the shippers, and the Freight Forwarders institute argued that shippers should not be accorded the privilege.

Specifically, the ruling permits Transamerican Freight Lines, a motor carrier, to make assembling rates available to shippers and associations when they consolidate shipments in the same manner as freight forwarders.

The decision means that a shipper such as F. W. Woolworth company, or a group such as the Pacific Coast Wholesalers' association, both of which took part in the case, may be eligible for lower freight rates on goods assembled from several points and consolidated for shipment in carload lots.

People and Events

W. S. Gifford.

Walter S. Gifford, president of American Telephone and Telegraph company, yesterday marked his 40th anniversary with the organization. He started with Western Electric company in Chicago in 1904 as a pay roll clerk at a salary of $10 a week. With A. T. & T. he has been chief statistician, controler, vice president, and president.

Sterling Smith has resigned as chief of the refrigeration and air conditioning section of the WPB general industrial equipment division effective Aug. 1. He will head the commercial refrigeration division of Mills Industries, Inc.

William E. Kress has been appointed midwest sales manager for Philco corporation. He succeeds John M. Otter, who was named home radio sales manager.

Henry C. Bonfig, vice president in charge of household radio, Zenith. Radio corporation, will be in charge of a series of informal discussions with Zenith distributors in different parts of the country. The first will be held tomorrow in the Stevens hotel.

The Midwest Stokers association elected J. J. Hayes, manager of Auburn Stoker company, president. W. J. O'Neil, Iron Fireman company, was named vice president. J. G. Beard, Illinois Iron and Bolt company, was chosen secretary-treasurer.

Lawrence C. Turner has been appointed acting director of the inland waterways division of the office of defense transportation to succeed Glenn E. Taylor, who is returning to the Federal Barge lines as assistant to the president.

COERCIVE SALES CHARGES LAID TO NEW DEAL BIAS

Packers Deny 'Tie-In' Methods Used.

limited to allegations that packers thru illegal "tie-in" or coercive sales disposed of products for which no ready market existed.

List Individual Instances.

The government charged Swift with 27 instances of forced sales between June and October, 1943, Armour with 44 between February and October, and Wilson with 18 between April and November.

Other packing interests said that government specifications in the handling of military orders and other federal regulations had resulted in much larger than usual volume of cuts that must be converted into luncheon meats or sausage or disposed of otherwise. Efforts to popularize these cuts have been partially successful, but the volume is far above normal, it was said.

Last month, the government sued a number of packers, charging too much fat was left on cuts of pork and sold to consumers in violation of OPA rules.

OPA ASKS COURT TO BAR ICC RAIL RATE RISE ORDER

Louisville, Ky., July 5—(AP).—Contending an interstate commerce commission order increasing intrastate passenger rail fares violates its regulations, the OPA today petitioned federal District court here to make it a party to a suit on file against the ICC by Kentucky, Alabama and Tennessee.

The petition, which contended the increase was ordered without application to the OPA for permission to raise the rates, asked that the ICC order be set aside.

DPC Raises Gen. Motors Contract to 82 Millions

Washington, D. C., July 5. (AP).—The Defense Plant corporation announced today a 10 million dollar increase in its contract with General Motors corporation. The money will be used to provide additional equipment in plants in Detroit and Indianapolis and Anderson, Ind., and brings the over-all commitment with General Motors to approximately 82 millions.

Chase Bank Resources Gain in Second Quarter

New York, July 5 (AP).—The Chase National bank, world's largest, reported today its resources on June 30 were $4,990,182,843, compared with $4,765,999,575 on March 31. Holdings of government securities were $2,778,218,273 and deposits were $4,677,872,688, against $2,691,990,166 and $4,457,581,731 on March 31.

NEW DEPENDENCY CREDIT.

Because of the change in credit for dependents in the 1944 individual income tax act, I can now claim a $500 exemption on account of a son over 18 earning less than $500 a year, as I provide more than half of his support. But so far in 1944 the withholding tax on my salary has been based on my former smaller exemption. How can I obtain a refund for the excess amount withheld? G. C.

Answer: Adjustments can be made when you file your federal tax returns for 1944, due next March 15. If the amount withheld by your employer exceeds the tax which you are obligated to pay on income from all sources, your return will show the overpayment. You have the option of asking for a refund of this amount or having it applied on the 1945 tax, by indicating your preference on the return.

ASSAILS F. D. R.'S DRAFT POLICIES ON PRE-MEDICS

The Journal of the American Medical association in an editorial released yesterday denounced President Roosevelt for refusing to review a selective service order banning deferments to pre-medical students and accused him of having a "blind disregard for medical care in the future."

If current policies of the President and the selective service system continue, the editorial declared, a shortage of doctors acute enough to threaten seriously the health of the nation will result.

Services Curtail Training.

The editorial pointed out that in the last six months the army and navy have curtailed their medical training programs to such an extent that medical schools now are forced to find 69 per cent of their students among women and physically disqualified males. Nothing even approaching this number of qualified civilian students is available, the magazine said, with the result that medical classes will be only half filled in the country at large.

"In April the selective service system abolished all further occupational deferments of pre-medical and medical students not in school by July 1," the editorial said. "As a consequence the entering classes of 1945 will be reduced 25 to 30 per cent.

"Should an adjustment not be made to correct the present alarming situation, a tremendous reduction of graduates after the war will ensue. Altho schools will continue the accelerated program, they will admit classes only once annually instead of every nine months. This of itself will reduce the number of graduates from the present annual average of 7,000 to 5,000. If classes can be only half filled, this number will be reduced to 2,500 graduates per year. Since 3,300 to 3,500 physicians die each year, there will result an annual and cumulative deficit of 2,000 doctors a year."

The magazine called on all physicians and medical societies to protest to congress the ban on pre-medical deferments.

F.D.R. BACKS BAN ON DEFERMENTS FOR PRE-MEDICS

Washington, D. C., July 5 (AP).—President Roosevelt declined today to interfere with a selective service order banning occupational draft deferment for pre-medical students after July 1.

"No one is more keenly conscious than I am of the need of maintaining the health of the nation and of making sure that we have an adequate supply of doctors," the President wrote Rep. Miller [R., Neb.], "but in this war the need of the armed forces for young, vigorous men must also be given thoro consideration."

Miller wrote the President asking him to review the order withholding deferments for pre-medical students. The President said the inter-agency committee on deferments—a group of government officials set up some months ago to study essential occupations — concluded that present day medical students would not be available to practice medicine before 1948 and "many of them would never practice medicine."

The President said the committee also gave attention to the fact that young men and women who do not meet military physical standards are available to become pre-medical students.

The Inquiring Camera Girl

BY MARYON ZYLSTRA

[The Tribune will pay $5 for each interesting question submitted by a reader and used by The Tribune. Today's question was submitted by Delia Olson, Bremerton, Wash.]

THE QUESTION.

When did you first think seriously of marriage?

WHERE ASKED

THE ANSWERS.

Charles H. Goodall, technical editor, La Porte, Ind.—Building homes was my profession and I made my first house when I was about 22. I thought it was awfully cozy looking and that it would be nice if I could live in it myself. A short time later I married a lifelong girl friend and we moved into the new house.

Marion Whinery, sub-editor, 1260 N. Dearborn st.—At the early age of 5 I had my future husband picked out and was quite sure about it. He was a little boy in my class who was smaller than I and it was my duty to take him home from school every night. It must have been my protective instinct coming out.

N. Kaplan, business executive, 1236 Columbia av.—I started working when I was 16. At that time I always said people should never marry before 30. One afternoon a pal of mine invited me to his uncle's wedding. The maid of honor was a beautiful girl and we became good friends. I married her when I was 21.

Lorna Little, assistant manager, 819 Gunnison st.—I was a freshman in college and met the nicest fellow. I thought, "I'm 17 and if I don't know my own mind now I never will. That's the boy I want to marry." We were going to get married and finish school, but when summer vacation came we forgot all about each other.

Bonnie Jean Dewey, secretary, 6456 N. Seeley av.—A boy I went with for three months in high school threw me completely off balance. I was seriously contemplating marriage. I hadn't expected to marry until I was 22 but thought this was it and why wait? But he didn't even ask me and I soon forgot.

Lois Bandstra, stenographer, 35 W. 103d pl.—Right now is the first time I've ever thought seriously about marriage. I'm trying to make up my mind which is best—to marry now or wait until after the war is over. I'm giving the matter a lot of serious thought. I think I'll wait until he's back from the army for good.

96 HEED PLEAS AND END STRIKE IN WAUKEGAN

Under the urging of company and union officials, 96 employes in the wire drawing department of the American Steel and Wire company, Waukegan, returned yesterday afternoon to the jobs they left last Sunday night in an unauthorized strike. They agreed yesterday to settle their alleged grievances at conferences with company officials. The strikers, members of local No. 1115 of the CIO United Steel Workers of America, asserted that a new production standard which became effective July 1, increased production but cut their wages from 50 cents to $1 a day.

U. S. SETS WASPS ON CORN BORERS TO SAVE CROPS

BY GAIL COMPTON.

More than 40,000 wasps and flies, released by the department of agriculture, are battling in Illinois corn fields against the European corn borers that are attacking the crops. Another 5,000 insects will be turned loose in a few days.

The wasps and flies, gathered by the department in New Jersey, are natural enemies of the borer and are being used in an effort to check the increase in the number of borers, which already has reached alarming proportions.

Hunt Borers in Their Lairs.

The winged fighters turn the tables on the borers by doing a little boring themselves. The wasps penetrate the body of the borer and lay eggs in it; the flies deposit eggs on the outside of the borer. To reach their prey, both insects crawl into the tunnel made by the borer in the corn stalk.

The eggs of the wasps and flies live on the body of the borer and continue to feast on it even when the borer enters the pupa stage. Then, instead of a new generation of borers emerging from the pupa, out comes a new batch of wasps and flies to continue their work.

Two Types of Wasps Used.

Two different types of small wasps are being used, and a fly that resembles the common house pest. These parasites have been used with moderate success in the eastern part of the nation. Iowa also is using them this year because borers are showing up in appreciable numbers for the first time in Iowa corn fields.

Most of the insects released in Illinois were loosed in the northern, central, and eastern sections of the state, said J. N. Wright, entomologist with the Illinois natural history survey. Early planted corn in the eastern part is suffering severely from borer attacks, Wright added, and the northern part is in for trouble.

Wright urged farmers to continue the practice of clean farming and deep plowing, because the wasps and flies cannot be relied upon to do the job alone.

DISMISSES SUIT AGAINST WRITER OF RADIO SERIAL

Judge Harry M. Fisher in Circuit court yesterday dismissed for want of equity a suit brought by Emmons C. Carlson of 715 N. Taylor av., Oak Park, Chicago promotion manager for the National Broadcasting company, against Miss Irna Phillips, radio script writer, seeking an accounting and 50 per cent share of her profits from the radio serial "The Guiding Light."

His decision reversed the ruling of Master in Chancery John Mulder, who last November held in Carlson's favor and ordered an accounting. Carlson had alleged that he and Miss Phillips originated the show, which has been on the air for seven years, and agreed to go into partnership. She denied there had been such an arrangement.

Miss Phillips, who has a half dozen serials on the air, was represented by Attorneys Howard Ellis and J. B. Martineau of the firm of Kirkland, Fleming, Green, Martin, and Ellis. She lives at 3920 Lake Shore dr.

RALPH SHELDON, CAPONE GUNMAN, DIES IN PRISON

San Quentin, Cal., July 5 [Special].—Ralph Sheldon, 48, Chicago gunman, Al Capone henchman, and once the terror of the Chicago stock yards district, died Sunday in San Quentin prison, officials of the prison announced today.

Sheldon was serving life for the 1930 kidnaping of E. L. [Zeke] Caress, a betting commissioner of Agua Caliente, Mexico. Ransom of $50,000 was paid for the release of Caress, his wife, and a Japanese house boy.

'DAY by DAY on the FARM.

The FARM by Gail Compton

July 5, 1944.

THE special 10 acre corn field at the Fox river farm on which an attempt is being made to break the world's record in yield per acre is attracting many visitors these days.

On the holiday, when most corn was standing knee high, the stalks in this patch reached to the chest of one of the young farm workers. When the big green leaves were lifted they reached a height of almost six feet. Packed closely together, the green stalks make a solid sea of corn in the small field and bring exclamations of envy from neighboring farmers.

Borers Are Danger Signal.

For a time it looked as if the weeds would choke the corn out. The manager was able to get the field cultivated only once before it got too high to permit the use of the cultivator. In many spots the weeds were taller than the corn. Now, however, the situation is reversed and the weeds are almost undiscernible among the thick, green stalks. A visiting seed corn salesman declared it was the best field of its kind he had seen anywhere.

There are storm signals flying in the field, however, that spell trouble, and may mean a considerable lowering of the eventual yield. Many of the leaves are riddled with holes and on the underside can be seen the clinging white egg masses of the corn borer. The pests seem to have attacked the field with unusual vigor and, unless they can be halted, they probably will knock a big chunk out of the field's production.

Fast Pace in Haying.

At present the manager is not quite sure just what can be done to defeat the borers. Spraying would be an expensive proposition and difficult because of the size and closeness of planting. There also is some evidence of chinch bugs working in the field, another serious enemy of corn.

Haying continues at top speed on both farms, and this year should see a record tonnage of the fodder move into the barns and silos. Never before has the hay grown so fast and rank. The warm sun and multitude of early spring rains started the hay off in good style. Since then the weather has continued perfect and the hay has grown to unusual heights.

Along with the greatest hay crop on record for the farms is the greatest weed crop. Many weeds are finding their way into the hay mows and silos, for they have had a good growth in the hay fields. Fortunately, the oat fields are comparatively clean of weeds.

The GARDEN by Ben Markland

CRYOLITE is becoming more common on gardeners' shelves as a substitute for arsenical poisons in spraying and dusting against chewing insects. The government is urging the use of cryolite because it is in better supply than the arsenates.

One manufacturer packages cryolite in two forms: as a straight chemical for diluting in water for spraying, and mixed with sulphur in dust form for dry application. The dust is effective against bean beetles, cabbage worms, flea beetles, potato beetles, and other common chewing insects. The cryolite spray also is effective against such pests and, in addition, can be used against leaf eating insects on shade trees and many common flowers.

The cryolite dust contains sulphur, which is very harmful to the foliage of cucumbers and cantaloupes. A safe rule for all the vine crop pests is to use straight cryolite as a spray, or mixed 50-50 with common flour as a dust.

AIR LINES SET TO DRAW PLAN FOR TERMINAL

Favor Northeast Site for New Building.

Final plans for a new terminal building at the airport soon will be drafted by a committee of air line technicians, A. F. Heino of United Air Lines said yesterday. Heino's commission is ready to recommend a Chicago architect for the project, he notified Commissioner of Public Works Hewitt.

Size and shape of the building have not been determined, but the committee favors a two story structure in which cargo would be handled from the ground level and passengers on the upper floor.

25,000 Feet Needed.

The eight lines using the Chicago airport would have ticket sales and other operating facilities in the building, requiring at least 25,000 square feet of floor space. Heino told Hewitt the structure also would include offices and public areas for the city, space for the handling of air mail and air express, and control tower facilities.

The building probably will be located in the northeast section of the airport, on the west side of Cicero av. from north of 57th st. to south of 58th st.

May Advance Meeting.

The committee is scheduled to meet July 18, but the date may be changed. Other members of the building group are E. H. Sittner of American Airlines, Inc.; Walter Prokosch, Eastern Air Lines; F. R. Meisch, Northwest Airlines, Inc., and R. M. Huber, Transcontinental & Western Air, Inc. Meisch also speaks for Pennsylvania Central Airlines corporation, and Prokosch represents Braniff Airways, Inc., and Chicago & Southern Air Lines, Inc.

Another committee headed by P. M. Willcox of the United Air Lines is handling negotiations for the building. Other members are Kenneth Crago, American; Arthur Jens, TWA, and Robert J. Wilson, Pennsylvania Central.

Capt. Ruth Briggs of the WAC, whose engagement to Col. Elliott Roosevelt, son of the President, was announced yesterday. Roosevelt has been married and divorced twice.
